The position, sunk 50 feet in the centre of an open field thick with mines, was a mile and a half from the beach and five miles behind the front.

First it was shelled by guns firing over open sights, then tanks waddled up the slope and raked it with more shells. Next assault engineers blasted their way through mine fields and wire barriers and finally the commandos charged in with bayonets.

The Nazis signalled with white flags that they had had enough and nearly 200 of them, nerves shattered by the bombardment, unshaven and beaten, came from their trenches and underground tunnels.

Nuisance To Beachhead

For 12 days the Germans had been a nuisance to the beachhead, sniping at night, occasionally shelling nearby camps and roads with a few 50-millimetre guns and wirelessing information to Germans in the Caen area. By-passed by the first invading troops bent on pushing inland, the German position, while a nuisance, also had become something of a joke around the beachhead.

Everything above ground was destroyed by the British-Canadian assault, but elaborate underground chambers and tunnels where a radar station was located still were intact.

I watched this graphic little battle first from a church steeple and then from the woods and fields on the perimeter of the enemy position.

The strongpoint was about a mile square on the crest of a slope in the centre of a wheat field. It was three miles south of St. Aubin on the coast a mile west Douvre. It was surrounded by several hundred yards of barbed wire and mine fields.

Eastern Canadian units first bumped into the fortress on D-day as they pushed south from St. Aubin and Bernieres, but their orders were to penetrate inland and they didn't stop to attack in strength. Next day the navy shelled it and a British battalion attacked but couldn't break through.

The Germans hung on day after day. Supplies were dropped from planes at night.

300 Commandos

A commando unit which fought with the Canadians at St. Aubin and which also had been at Salerno and with the Canadian 1st Division in the Sicily landing asked for a chance to attack it. Finally on Saturday afternoon this perfect little assault was carried out by 300 commandos with assault engineers.

The action started at 5:30 p.m. with artillery firing on the trench systems and dugouts. By 5 p.m. the assault engineers had made their way through the mine fields and wire into the inner defences. Great explosions rocked the area as gasoline dumps blew up. Mines went off all over the place. Enemy guns crackled at the tanks. Commandos, faces smeared with grease-paint, moved forward with machine-guns.

From a field about 600 yards from the centre of the strongpoint I saw two Germans leap from a trench, wildly waving white flags. The first to surrender, they stood there terrified.

When I got to the wire defences the first group of prisoners was coming down the road, guarded by Ptes. Bill Hurs and Albert Knipe. both of Toronto.

Hurst and Knipe recently arrived with reinforcements and were just going up the line when they bumped bang into this little battle. So they joined in.

Firing had stopped as I went through the tangle of wire into the shattered stronghold. Fires were blazing fiercely and pillboxes, fortified buildings and gun casements had been blown to pieces. Piles of stores and equipment were scattered over the floors.

Credit To Engineers

Enemy wounded were being cared for by British orderlies. One Canadian orderly there was Pte. Bill Fulton, Belleville, Ont.

The Commandos gave all credit to the assault engineers and said it was these rugged sappers who smashed up the position. "It was a pushover for us," said Commando Bill Cook, a tough little cockney. "We just came in with bayonets and tommy guns and the Jerries gave up. The assault engineers really did this job."

Three German officers passed under guard. One was old, tired and dirty. Another, about 30, was immaculate and looked scornfully at his captors. The third, an air force officer, looked scared to death.

The old man said they had held out because they were German soldiers but his weary voice didn't carry the ring of conviction. These Germans had been pounded into submission and they were in no mood for many of the usual German heroics.

Tragedy

GLENDIVE, Mont., June 19 (AP) —Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Strugis were awakened in their trailer house by violent pitching and tossing. Thinking it a recurring violent wind which had shaken eastern Montana Friday, each parent bundled a child and started for a nearby ranch house. They stepped into a flash flood more than five feet deep and the churning waters jerked the babies from their arms. Today, the body of one child, three months old, was found near the trailer-house. The other, 16 months old, still is missing.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

by Martha Logan

Premium Broilers

Now that broiling chicken is at its tender best! Here's a trio of tasty ways to cook it.

BROILED PREMIUM CHICKEN

Brush quartered or halved Swift Premium broilers (1 to 2 lbs.) with melted fat. Place on greased rack, cavity side down, below preheated broiler. Broil for 10 to 15 minutes. Turn, brush with fat, cook 15 minutes; turn again, cook briefly until tender. Season and serve. Caution: Keep chicken 5 inches from broiler with heat not too high.

FRIED PREMIUM CHICKEN

Have your butcher cut up chickens for frying (2 to 4 lbs. Swift Premium birds are best for this purpose.) Wipe the pieces with a damp cloth and place in a large brown paper bag with ½ cup well seasoned flour. Shake vigorously so that all the pieces are well coated. Fry in well flavoured fat, at least half inch deep, in a heavy pan. Turn frequently so that the pieces are browned evenly. Cooking time, 20 minutes.

CHICKEN SAUTÉ WITH MUSHROOMS

This is a real party dish for special occasions. The quantities given serve four.

- 2 Premium chickens (3-lb.)
- 1 large onion, chopped
- ½ lb. mushrooms, peeled and sliced
- Salt and pepper
- 2 tbsps. butter or well-flavoured fat
- 1 cup chicken stock or canned consommé
- 1 glass sherry (optional)

Have the butcher cut up the chickens as for frying. Season well. Lightly sauté the onion and mushroom. Strain out vegetables and remove to a casserole. Now brown the chicken pieces evenly in the fat over high heat. As soon as they are brown remove to casserole laying them on a bed of onion and mushrooms. Pour off fat from pan, swirl the consommé (and sherry if used) round the hot pan, scraping vigorously, then pour over chicken. Simmer, covered, over low heat or in oven for 30 minutes.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

WACS SHOULD MAKE GOOD WIVES

Army Trains Them to Take Orders, Be Neat, Do Things on Time, Which Will Help.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — I read in the paper where some colonel said that WACS would make better wives than women who had had no military training. Do you believe this is true?

SERVICE MAN'S WIFE.

ANSWER—Well, I can think of several ways in which an army training would benefit the domestic technique of women and make them more soothing companions to live with. For one thing, a wife who had been disciplined by a drill sergeant would take orders from her husband more meekly than one who was accustomed to handing him back talk when he even dared to make a suggestion to her.

Women Will Be Neater

For another thing, the lady soldier would have had habits of neatness and order ground into her so thoroughly that she would never leave hairs in the brush and the top off the tooth paste. And perhaps a global war will teach women how to do things on time, so that the lucky men who get soldierettes for wives will not have to gnaw their fingers to the bones while waiting for dinner.

Every experience that we go through teaches us something, and every woman, unless she is totally lacking in brains and heart, is going to be a better wife for what she has learned in the war. She is going to appreciate her husband more and be better and kinder to him. She may have secretly thought that he was a failure because he didn't make much money, but when she undertook supporting a family and found out how much it takes to pay the rent, and feed and clothe a lot of hungry children, he looms up on her horizon as a wizard of finance.

She may even have thought that she had fallen out of love with a husband who was no ball of fire, but in the long, lonely evenings at home, with no one but the cat and the baby for company, she will have found out how necessary he is to her happiness, and how dear.

DEAR MISS DIX—My son is a 40-year-old bachelor now in military service. He is in love, or thinks he is, with two women. One is a lovely girl of 18. The other is a widow with a son in high school. She is four years his senior, but does not look it. There is no financial question involved in either case and one woman is just as fine and attractive in her own way as the other.

With which one of them would he have the better chance of happiness? He seems to have an aversion to women nearer his own age.

A MEDDLESOME MOTHER.

ANSWER—Any man who cannot make up his mind which of two women he prefers does not care enough for either one to risk taking her on as a life companion. He is wise if he sticks to his bachelor estate and waits until some charmer comes along who sweeps him off his feet and make him think that life will be cinders, ashes and dust without her.

When a man of 40 tries to choose between a girl of 18 and a woman of 44, he is likely to fall between the stools, because one is too young and the other is too old for him, especially as he is allergic to age in women. Baby chicks are pretty to look at and make nice pets, but they haven't much flavor as a steady diet. And old hens are apt to be a tough dish. So there you are. And no one can tell him if he doesn't know himself which is the better investment.

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think it very sporting of a husband to tell his wife that people often ask him what a good-looking man, such as he is, ever saw in her that made him marry her? I am that unfortunate woman and I am not bad-looking, but I am stouter than he is.

A DISHEARTENED WIFE.

ANSWER — A man who would say a thing like that to his wife is not only a bad sport, he is worse. He is a brute. The next time he says it to you tell him that you made a bigger mistake in marriage than he did, for you thought you were getting a gentleman for a husband, but found out you had married a cad.

Sunrise Service Is Held By CGIT

Representatives from all churches in the city, as well as C.G.I.T. and Teen-Age girls, and leaders and teachers, gathered on Armour Hill early Sunday morning, for a Sunrise service, sponsored by the Girls' Work Board of Peterborough. Miss Jean McIntyre, president of the Girls' Council of the Y.W.C.A., conducted the service, assisted by Miss Loretta McDougall, who led in the singing of hymns.

The program was as follows: Devotional, led by Miss Phyllis Kidd; a reading, "I Met God in the Morning," Miss Jean DeNure; Scripture reading, Miss Doris Hendry; Miss Willa Wright led in prayer.

Mrs. Ada Huffman, on behalf of the girls, presented Miss Marie Casey, whose marriage takes place today, with a vase and matching wall pocket.

Elva E. Hilker Wed in Lakefield

A quiet wedding took place in the United Church parsonage, Lakefield, on Saturday afternoon, when Elva Emma Hilker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Hilker, of Clydesdale, became the bride of Andrew Gordon Kidd, son of Mrs. W. M. Stabler and the late Hugh Kidd, of Lakefield. Rev. G. Kelly officiated.

The bride wore a street-length frock of white brocaded organa, with a sweetheart neckline, and full skirt. She carried white accessories and wore a corsage of red roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Pearl Hockaday, of Lakefield, wore a dress of blue sheer, with white accessories and a corsake of pink roses. Elwood Beckell of Lakefield was best man.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party left for the bride's home, where a reception was held in the evening. For the wedding trip to Loon Lake, the bride wore a turquoise suit, with white accessories. On their return, the happy couple will live near Lakefield.

IN MEMORIAM

TURNER—In loving memory of our dear sister, Audrey Louise Turner, (Mrs. Gordon Endicott) who passed away one year ago, June 19th, 1943.

Time speeds on, one year has passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast;
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant place there is none can fill;
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by Sisters and Brothers.

TURNER—In loving memory of our dear girl, Audrey Louise Turner, (Mrs. Gordon Endicott) who passed to the Great Beyond one year ago, June 19th, 1943.

June brings sad memories,
Of our dear girl gone to rest,
Who will always be remembered
By those who loved her best.
Her life was a beautiful memory
Her death a silent grief,
She sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunshine of perfect peace.
Sleep on, dear Audrey, You are free
From sorrow or from pain,
We will miss you here so very much,
But trust in God to meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Father.

Robert Abbott Leads Fields

The new handicaps listed by the match and handicap committee of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club made quite a difference in the showing made by many of the members in Saturday's sweepstakes. All members are asked to turn in three 18-hole cards as soon as possible so changes may be made in their handicaps.

Some players are now rounding into mid-season form, and some real scores are expected in the next few weeks of play.

There have been a fair number of names entered for the club championship and a large number for the MacDonald Trophy. Draws for these two tournaments will be completed this week, so if you plan on playing get your name on the board at once.

Bob Abbott beat the field again with a low gross of 78 for first prize in the top flight; low net first flight, C. S. Cummer, 88, 20; net 68.

Second flight, first low gross, Gordon Maniece, 93; low net, C. P. Brown, 96, 26 net 70.

London Times Reviews C.C.F. Victory

LONDON, June 19—(CP-Reuters) —The sweeping victory won by the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in the Saskatchewan elections was interpreted today by The Times of London as showing that the farmers "are losing faith in the old individualist philosophy as no longer adequate to their need for reasonable economic security."

The program of the party "shows affinities with the program of the British Labor party, though it is somewhat less condemnatory of individualism as such, and in its detailed plans has been influenced by the new deal legislation of the United States," said the newspaper. The Times added:

"Like other left-wing parties, the C.C.F. has suffered from the extravagances of some of its supporters, but its official constitutionalism is safe in the hands of its present leader, Mr. Coldwell.

"The party is as yet a major influence in Dominion politics but is hoping to gain more ground in the general election due next year, in the hope that its triumph will be further encouraged by its 5-to-1 majority in Saskatchewan . . .

"There have for some time been signs that Canada was outgrowing the traditional alternatives of Liberal and Conservative which for so long met the political desires of its older provinces. To a younger generation more interested in economic and social than in political issues, its programs can be made to attract both older organizations."

Universe Is Filled With Spiritual Idea

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough, on Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands." (Hebrews 1:10).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 1:1: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

Co-relative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following: "God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He evolves, and they are obedient to the Mind that makes them."

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Scout Jamboree

The Annual Scout and Cub Jamboree will be held at the Scout Grounds on Saturday, September 30. Now it is up to all Scouters to make plans accordingly. No names were given as to who are on committees, but it is assumed that the program will be drawn up on the same lines as previous years. It was also reported that two permanent outdoor fireplaces will be built, one at each end of the grounds and that Troops and Packs will be asked to use these and no others. It has been the policy of some to build fireplaces all over the lot and to leave little piles of stones disfiguring the field. No word has been received about Apple day but it will be held this in conjunction with the Dominion Apple day in October.

Our sincere congratulations are extended to Matt Sergeant who was awarded his commission in the Air Force on Friday last. Matt, who was a former member of St. John's Rover Crew, has been in the Air Force for some time and this spring was promoted to Flight Sergeant. At the present time, he is home on leave. We wish him Good Hunting and happy landings.

Down at Sacred Heart

It was a very happy trip along the Jungle Trail for several lads during the last week, when their parents were present to witness their advent into the Pack Council, Karl Clancy, Leon Blodgett, Douglas Blodgett and Bernard Quesnel made their Cub Promise before Akela and the Pack at an investiture ceremony held for their initiation into the World Wide Brotherhood of Scouting. Ronald Coulson and Ronald Collins were presented with their first year Service Star. Jim Clarke proved to be the boy with the keenest hearing in a game that lent a lot of fun to the evening's program. The tumbling mats also took a lot of punishment as Lionel Johnson and his Six put in a lot of practice at leap-frog and somersaulting whilst Ronald Collins found out that skipping was not as impossible as he thought it to be.

Gerald McMurray got to work and finished all his First Star tests.

All Saint's Pack

Following opening at headquarters the boys marched down to a field near the home of Senior Sixer Bob Webb. Sides were picked and a ball game played. The high light of the evening was the supply of weiners and Coca Cola that was provided by Mesdames Webb, White and Halladay. Then as the Pack gathered around the Council Rock, Gordon Graham was presented with his First Year Service Star. On returning to the Pack headquarters the boys were dismissed.

St. John's

The Pack:—Games on the Lawn at the east of the church were the main features of the evening. The games were interrupted as each Six was given orders at intervals of five minutes to proceed to Lech's fur store and bring back a report and diagram of the contents of the north window. In the book balancing and ball bouncing only about three of the Cubs were successful but the game of ball and blocks showed several boys very proficient at aiming the ball.

Returning to the hall, each Six wrote out the reports of their observation tests with the following points being awarded, Black Six 22, Green Six 21, Grey Six 20, Red Six 18, Brown and White Sixes being awarded 16 points each. The Black Six had the best written report but the Green six offered the best diagram. Next week the Pack will meet at Akela's residence, 296 Rogers and are to bring their swimming trunks with them. A full program will be drawn up for those who do not swim. Parents are requested to send in the certificates for the sons who are allowed to attend the Cub Camp on Saturday and Sunday, July 15 and 16, so that the leaders can arrange for all the needs. These certificates should be in the hands of the leaders on Friday next June 23rd.

George Nickson passed Savings, Don Ferguson Folding Clothes and cleaning boots, George Franks, Knots.

St. Luke's Pack

Jack King led in the opening Grand Howl at the last regular meeting of the Pack at which the arrangements for the week-end camp were fully discussed for the benefit of the boys. Some instruction was given out also the game "Cat and the Mouse" was played. The evening ended with Jack Bertrand leading in the closing ceremonies.

On Saturday afternoon St. Luke's church seemed a very busy spot as many youngsters were seen arriving with bags and bundles of blankets, happy smiles were seen on every face as the Cubs were looking eargerly to their first camp. At 2.30 the cars arrived and on journey the Pack went singing. At the Scout grounds the time was spent in fun and happiness with little sleep as these young Scouts could not just get settled down to their first night in camp.

Assistant Commissioner Albert Hope spent the full time with the Pack helping the Sing-song at the camp fire and telling those stories that the Cubs are always eager to hear. Sunday afternoon and the trip home came all too soon for the merry gang but true to promise Akela had them home in time for supper on Sunday. Akela, Baloo and Rakska wish to express their thanks to all those who assisted in every way to make the Camp a success. As is usual at such affair as these, Akela as numerable articles that the boys left behind, so if any Cub has missed his blankets or his head, just get in touch with Akela at once. The Old Wolf has it safely for you.

There are some announcements of special importanee to be given out this week, every boy is requested to be sure and attend.

Out at the Scout Grounds.

Four members of the St John's Group were out at the Scoutgrounds over the week end and greatly assisted in preparing the Camp fire for the entertainment of the soldiers, were Wilfred Woodcock. Don Searles, Roy Fitzgerald and Cub Billie Cummings. They reported that Mr. Hope worked very hard all the week end clearing rocks from the grounds.

SCHOOL BREAKFASTS

BILSTON, England —(CP)— A plan whereby children will be able to have breakfast at school before lessons has been started in this Staffordshire town. It was instituted because one councillor thought children "were too often sent to school either with no breakfast or with little else but a piece of bread."

25—Declarer's Planning

NOTHING WHICH the declarer has to do is more important than his planning before he plays a card. This part of his work begins as soon as the opening lead has been made and his partner has laid his hand face-up on the table as the "dummy." It is then that the declarer knows for the first time what are his assets and his liabilities. He should appraise them in detail, looking over each suit to size it up, making whatever deductions he can from the opening lead and then, based on this marshaling of the facts, figure out the course of action he decides to follow.

In the case of a No Trump contract, the fine player always counts up the number of certain tricks in sight so he can see how many more must be developed, in order to make his contract. Then he looks over the various suits and weighs the different opportunities to develop them. After that he considers the dangers against which he must protect himself. Considering all these factors, he then builds his plan of action.

If his contract is in a suit, he goes through approximately the same process, except that instead of counting the winning tricks, he generally counts the losers, the the tricks he is in danger of losing to the opponents. If the total is more than he can afford, and still make his contract, he considers various ways to get rid of enough losers, so that his contract will be safe.

Here the two methods are contrasted:

| 1. Dummy | 2. Dummy |
|---|---|
| ♠ 9 4 | ♠ 7 3 |
| ♥ 7 5 | ♥ 10 7 4 3 2 |
| ♦ A K Q 7 3 | ♦ A 6 2 |
| ♣ K J 5 3 | ♣ A K Q |
| Declarer | Declarer |
| ♠ K J | ♠ A K 6 |
| ♥ K Q J 10 2 | ♥ Q J 8 6 5 |
| ♦ 6 5 | ♦ 8 7 4 |
| ♣ A Q 7 2 | ♣ 9 5 |

No. 1 is an example of a No Trump situation, in which winning tricks are counted by the planner. Suppose West led the spade 7. With nine spades out, the declarer sees that it is virtually certain the opponents can beat him with spade tricks and the heart ace if they get the lead after his spade king is gone. So he must try for nine tricks to make his game without losing the lead to them after he wins the second spade trick.

With one trick certain in spades, plus four in clubs and three in diamonds, he has eight positively available. There are two places to try for the extra one—hearts and diamonds. But if he tries hearts, the opponents will get the lead and beat him with spade tricks. He must stake his venture on the diamonds breaking favorably. So after winning the second spade trick, if East uses the ace on the first, he must rake in his four club tricks and then try the diamonds, hoping they are divided three to each defender.

No. 2 is an example of a suit game contract in hearts. Suppose West leads the diamond king. The declarer sees that he must expect to lose two tricks in hearts, and his hand also contains two losers in diamonds—a total of four, whereas he can afford only three if he is to make his contract. Studying then to see how he can get rid of them, he sees that his spade loser is no problem because he can trump it in dummy. So his sole problem is the two diamond losers, since he has no way to prevent the two heart losers.

The club honors afford him an opportunity to discard one of his diamond losers. This must be done before he follows the usual order of leading trumps, as in this case a trump trick would give the defenders the lead and enable them to take the setting trick in diamonds. So he decides, after winning the first trick, to take three clubs, discarding one of his diamonds and assuring that he will lose only three tricks—two in trumps and one in diamonds.

C.C.F. Victory May Delay Next Election

By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, June 19—(CP)—Speculation on the effect, if any, of the Saskatchewan election result on proceedings in parliament and the date of the next general election is common but inconclusive.

It is considered the election may act to speed up proceedings as members of all parties may want to get back to their constituencies and attend to their own organization.

As to the election date, some feel that the political situation in the central Prairie Province, for many years a pillar of Liberalism, will delay rather than hasten a general election, unless some serious issue is raised in parliament.

Many Liberals interpret the election as pointing to the necessity for more extensive and efficient propaganda and organization activity.

Candidates: The C.C.F. doesn't intend to make an all-out effort to win the forthcoming Quebec election, says Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North Centre and acting party House leader.

Mr. Knowles said he doubted whether the C.C.F. would have candidates in 50 per cent. of the 90 Quebec constituencies. Main reason: The C.C.F. did not start organizing in Quebec until about a year ago.

Switch: Persons close to Emmanuel d'Anjou, Liberal member of parliament for Rimouski, say he has decided to join the Bloc Populaire party headed by Maxine Raymond, who represents Beauharnois-Laprairie.

Rumor has it that he decided to make the break following passage of the bill authorizing the Government to spend $800,000,000 this year in mutual aid. Mr. D'Anjou was one of eight Quebec members voting against the bill.

Lightning Kills Farmer's Stock

MARMORA, June 19 —(ENS)— George Davidson, well-known farmer of Marmora Township made the discovery Saturday morning that he had lost eight head of cattle through the electric storm the night previous. It is presumed that lightning struck them about 10.30 p.m.

The cattle were all well-bred Holsteins, five yearlings and three cows. Mr. Davidson said he would not have accepted $100 for one of the cows. It is understood that there was some insurance on the stock.

Man From China Addresses WMS

OMEMEE, June 19 —(ENS)— At the June meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, held at the home of Mrs. Vernon Lang, the guest speaker was Rev. Howard Veals, B.A., B.Paed., recently returned from the Mission field in West China. About 35 members were present and the meeting was in charge of the leader of Group 3, Mrs. Harry Deyell. Mrs. V. Lang, president, conducted the business and members decided to meet in the church basement on July 6 for a quilting. There will be no regular meetings in July and August.

Mrs. Deyell announced the theme of the program to be "Children and Youth — Leaders of Tomorrow", Mrs. E. Woods read the scripture lesson and a responsive prayer was led by Mrs. H. Deyell. Mrs. Arthur Rutherford gave a reading on the topic and Mrs. J. Bradley read 10 pertinent rules for parents, while Mrs. Burt Pogue led in prayer.

Rev. Howard Veals was introduced by Mrs. Deyell, and he and Mrs. Veals and their daughter, Katherine, who were also present, were warmly welcomed. Rev. Veals gave an interesting and enlightening talk on "Children in China", telling of their life from birth, before which no preparation is made by the family or the mother, and at which there is no attending doctor. All life in China moves around the family, and all the family live under one roof, including the grandparents, parents, all the sons of the family with their wives and children. Seven out of 10 children never go inside the door of a school, and no Christianity is taught in the Chinese schools. At the conclusion of his talk Rev. Veals invited questions and an interesting discussion period followed. Rev. Patterson closed that part of the meeting with prayer.

The Society presented Mrs. Veals with a parcel of linen to be used when they set up their temporary home in Canada, since according to plane restrictions they were not allowed to bring any of their household goods home from China with them. Mrs. Veals thanked her friends and spoke briefly, telling something of their six weeks boat trip home.

The women of Group 3 served light refreshments and a social time was enjoyed, when an informal chat with Rev. and Mrs. Veals and Katherine took place.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 20 — (CP). — More than 1.500 American heavy bombers, possibly the greatest force in history, today simultaneously attacked rocket bomb platforms in the Pas de Calais and an array of objectives in central Germany ranging from oil refineries to airplane and tank plants.

The giant armada equalled if it did not surpass that sent out last Wednesday to attack French airfields, bridges and the Emmerich oil refinery in Germany.

With its big fighter escort, the sky fleet totalled upward of 2,000 planes.

The heavy bombers blasted synthetic oil plants and oil refineries around Hannover, Hamburg, Magdeburg and Politz, a tank depot near Magdeburg, and an airplane wing repair and parts plant near Brunswick.

16 Land In Sweden.

Stockholm reported 16 of the heavy bombers made forced landings at the Malmo airport.

Returning crewmen said they found clear weather over Germany but were forced to bomb through a cloud cover over the Pas de Calais. To-day's giant operation took a part of the fleet more than 550 miles almost to the Polish border to hit Politz, about 10 miles north of the Baltic seaport of Stettin in far eastern Germany.

While the American bomber and fighter fleet was over Europe and smashing again at the ramps from which Germany's rocket-bombs are launched, lighter Allied aerial forces swarmed across the channel in improving weather and renewed the harassment of German forces in Normandy.

The Paris radio soon left the air, indicating medium bombers and fighters were hitting behind the German lines.

To-day's bomber formation was the fifth force of more than 1,000 heavyweights the American air force has sent out since D-day.

Flak Is Heavy

The big assault was the third within 24 hours against the Pas de Calais area from which rocket bombs continue to stream into southern England today.

Air Force Commander Gen. Henry H. Arnold, returning from an inspection tour, credited the European Air Force's invasion operation with "having permitted our surface forces to operate unhampered from enemy air opposition and paved the way for them to move forward with greater speed."

"This", he said, "together with

Vote 2 to One For C.C.F. In Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 20.—(CP).—C.C.F. candidates in the Saskatchewan general election polled about two to every one for the other two major parties—Liberals and Progressive Conservatives—in early returns of the soldiers' vote

The soldiers' vote in Gravelbourg constituency last night gave Dr. H. E. Houze, C.C.F., 42 votes against 24 for Hon. E. M. Culliton, virtually assuring the C.C.F. candidate election. Dr. Houze with 2,644 votes had a lead of 95 over Maj. Culliton with only one poll yet to heard from.

Earlier, Premier M. J. Patterson's plurality in Cannington riding was reduced to 18 over Mrs. Gladys Strum, C.C.F.

With the soldiers' vote distributed for 16 of the 48 constituencies where voting in the election took place last Thursday, C.C.F. candidates received 691 votes, Liberals 285, Progressive Conservatives 70, and others nil.

Election of Dr. Houze would bring the C.C.F. membership in the next House of 55 members to 44. On the civilian vote, the C.C.F. elected 43 and Liberals 5 with the C.C.F. leading in Gravelbourg and Turtleford and a Liberal ahead in Meadow Lake.

Election in the remote Cumberland constituency has been deferred until June 24.

Saskatchewan members of the armed forces voted in the constituencies in which they were stationed on election day, but for candidates in thir home ridings. Count-

Imperial Units Gain 17 Miles

KANDY, Ceylon, June 20—(CP).—Parallel columns of Imperial troops striking south from Kohima toward Imphal have advanced 17 miles, the greatest single-day of progress in the counter-offensive to knock the Japanese from the northeastern India border regions, it was announced today.

The plunge narrowed to 29 miles the gap between forces fighting below Kohima, and those advancing north from Imphal. The two strongpoints are 50 miles apart.

Headquarters estimated 3,500 Japanese have been killed in this sector.

The southern push seized Mao Songsamg brushed the enemy aside in Tuphema, and continued to push west of Maram. Two other towns were taken, the invaders were cleared from the Naga hills, and a large ordnance dump and 10 artillery pieces were seized. Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said.

Changsha Falls To Japanese

CHUNGKING, June 20 (AP) — Indicating that Changsha had fallen, the Chinese high command said tonight the situation in the capital of Honan province was obscure following destruction of suburban defence works by more than 50,000 Japanese troops. Radio contact with Changsha was broken.

The Japanese attacked the suburban defences under a cover of war planes, the high command said.

(Tokyo radio said earlier that Japanese Imperial headquarters had announced the complete capture of Changsha Sunday, as well as the taking of Liling, 40 miles southeast.)

Canadian Nurses In France

Both Serve With Airforce Hospital

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN FRANCE, June 20 (CP-Cable)—Tin hats on, battledress trousers tucked into rubber boots, two R.C.A.F. Nursing Sisters, Dorothy Mulholland of Georgetown, Ont., and D. C. Pitkethly of Ottawa, walked down the ramp of an assault craft on to a Normandy beach yesterday morning, the first Canadian servicewomen to land in France.

They came with the main party of an R.C.A.F. mobile field hospital supervised by Wing Cmdr. M. Growse of London, Ont., who with a few other ranks has been in France since D-Day plus one preparing the way for the main body as well as acting as a casualty clearing station for army and air force alike.

The Nursing Sisters said they had a wonderful crossing—"the Captain's quarters! lovely linen sheets and private shower bath."

"Of course," Nursing Sister Pitkethly added, "I think we have to admit some of our success was due to the fact we softened up the Captain by turning up the bottoms of his trousers for him. They were too long and had bothered him for some time."

It wasn't long before the nurses were pitching in with the rest of the party to put up tents and unload vehicles. Growse expected the hospital, only R.C.A.F. unit of its kind in France, to be fully operational within a few hours.

Reciprocal Lend-Lease Plan Made Invasion Possible

LONDON, June 20—(CP).—British and American reciprocal lend-lease programs were the key factors which made possible the invasion, Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of War Production, said today in an address to the American Chamber of Commerce. Referring to charges Britain is selling lend-lease goods to third countries, Lyttelton declared every possible precaution is being taken to prevent anything of the kind happening.

He said American lend-lease amounted to $4,000,000,000 in 1943, and that British reverse lend-lease has amounted to $2,000,000,000 to date. He said the United States is supplying 25 per cent. of Britain's munitions and that the $4,000,000,000 was exclusive of supplies to other parts of the world for use by British forces.

British lend-lease to the United States now is running at more than twice the rate than at the beginning of 1943, he said.

American forces in the United Kingdom have received use of barracks, airports and other military facilities and one-third of all their

300 Jap Planes Lost At Saipan

PEARL HARBOR, June 20—(AP)—American carrier pilots and warship guns have destroyed an estimated 300 Japanese planes off Saipan to win the biggest Pacific air battle since Midway, while a land surge captured a vital airstrip and sealed off the southern end of the island.

In a vicious battle lasting several hours, the offshore task force smashed a sustained Japanese aerial assault Sunday. Admiral Nimitz said first information reported only one American vessel damaged.

(Tokyo radio today broadcast a special Japanese communique saying an "Allied fleet" attacking the Marianas had lost one battleship, two cruisers, one destroyer, one submarine and 300 planes, but acknowledged American forces had established a beachhead on Saipan island.)

With the land battle still raging to their north and southwest, the invaders began preparing the newly-captured Aslito airstrip, on Saipan's southern coast—the first American air base within Japan's central Pacific middle defence arc.

Pushing through tangled canefields and swamps, American marines and army troops have traversed the island on a wide front to reach Magicienne Bay on the east coast, 3½ miles from the western landing beach.

They hold a five-mile coastal strip on the western shoreline, where they have expanded from their original beachhead at Agingan Point.

Gurkhas Capture Jap Stronghold

CHUNGKING, June 20—(AP).—A Chinese communique announced today that Gurkha troops and Kachin levies have captured the heavily defended stronghold at Tiankaup, 40 miles north of Myitkyina in the Fort Hertz valley of Northern Burma, thus ending a six weeks' siege.

At the same time, the bulletin said, Chinese pushing down the Mogaung valley some 40 miles west of Myitkyina have advanced five miles from captured Kamaing. Chinese troops and Chindit forces, meanwhile were reported continuing pressure against the enemy around Mogaung.

Viipuri Port Captured By Russians

Expect Peace Move From Finns In Near Future

LONDON, June 20 — (CP) — A Stockholm dispatch said today that Viipuri, key Finnish seaport, had fallen to the Russian Army after the city had been shelled by massed artillery from positions less than nine miles away.

The Swedish reports, reaching a reliable source in Stockholm, were not immediately confirmed by Moscow or Russian sources in London.

The Red Army increased the speed of its offensive, Moscow advoices said, pouring through a 30-mile gap blown in the "wolf teeth" fortifications of the third and last series of Mannerheim Line defences. The all of the Mannerheim Line brought Finland's winter war with Russia to an abrupt end in 1940.

The reported travels of Finnish Diplomats in Sweden suggested that the Baltic Republic might again be seeking peace. Moscow, however, reported no peace overtures.

Forms New Government

(The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet reported that Field Marshal Mannerheim, Finnish Commander-in-Chief was taking the initiative in forming a new Finnish government which will sue for peace).

The Russian Army newspaper Red Star said coastal defences along the Gulf of Viipuri had collapsed and that the Red Army had defeated the 18th and 10th Finnish Infantry brigades and the "yellow regiment" on the approaches to the city. Some 125 miles to the west lies the Finnish capital of Helsinki.

Soviet airmen and long-range artillery bombed and shelled Finnish ships attempting to flee the seaport, a broadcast Soviet communique said. A London News-Chronicle correspondent with the Russian troops declared spearheads of Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's forces were fighting in the city's suburbs.

The correspondent asserted the Russians "shortly will be in a position to dictate terms" to the Finns.

A prediction the Finnish cabinet would be revamped came from the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, which said Premier Edwin Linkomies and Finance Minister Vaino Tanner, the two men largely responsible for Finland's rejection of Soviet armistice terms three months ago, would retire. The paper did not name a possible successor to Linkomies, but said it would not be Dr. Juho K. Paasikivi, former premier who flew to Moscow last March to receive Moscow's peace terms.

The Russian communique said Soviet airmen sank 16 ships in Viipuri harbor, including six transports, and

It Doesn't Work

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 20 (CP-Reuters)—Allied bombers smashed at the "robot coast" of France today and encountered another "secret weapon." It consisted of a square box-like missile fired into the air to burst and scatter long strips of silvery metallic substance possibly designed to foul propellors. Pilots said the new weapon was ineffective.

8th Army Enters Perugia; Elba Captured

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 20—(AP)—British 8th Army units pressing northward on the Italian mainland have entered Perugia, major communications centre 72 miles air line southeast of Florence and 85 miles north of Rome, after the German position in the north had been weakened by the conquest of Elba by French colonial troops.

The French crushed the last stubborn resistance on Elba yesterday. The swift campaign netted 1,800 prisoners, all but a small portion of the enemy garrison.

Organized resistance on Elba collapsed with capture of Porto Longone, on the eastern shore of the historic island. The garrison of about 300 there hoisted a white flag and surrendered. Large quantities of material were abandoned by the enemy.

Eighth Army troops were encountering spotty resistance today within Perugia. On both sides of the city, however, Allied troops advanced a considerable distance, an Allied communique said.

Eight Army troops were wiping out nests of fierce resistance inide the old town. Despite rain which interfered with the movement of troops and transport the 8th Army advanced all along its front in the face of resistance at key points.

The 5th Army advanced more than nine miles north of Grosseto, which is some 22 miles beyond Orbetello.

Most of the prisoners taken on Elba were German and enemy losses in dead and wounded were estimated at 500.

Portoferraio, the island's capital fell Sunday after an aerial bombardment.

The Villa Napoleona at Monte San Martino was captured unharmed after hasty evacuation by the Germans.

(The German High Command in its broadcast communique said the garrison of Elba was removed to the Italian mainland last night.)

The island will be administered by an Allied Commission.

Participating in the conquest were a battalion of French Commandos, Senegalese and Goumiers (Moroccans), with the Royal and United States Navies transporting and supplying the troops.

Negro Is Suing London Hotel

LONDON, June 20.—(CP Cable).—Counsel for Leary Constantine, internationally-known British West Indies cricketer, said in court yesterday the managers of the Imperial Hotel asked Constantine, his wife and daughter to leave last July because they "did not want Niggers in the hotel."

Constantine's suit for damages from Imperial London Hotels, Limited, for alleged breach of contract to lodge him at the Imperial Hotel, opened with Sir Patrick Hastings, the cricketer's counsel, declaring: "If that expression was used, it would be grossly offensive, in addition to a breach of the duty of an innkeeper to offer board and lodging to a traveller."

Thomas Watson, Labor Ministry official under whom Constantine had been employed to look after the welfare of West Indians at Liverpool, testified Margaret O'Sullivan, hotel manager, had used the expression while explaining to him why Constantine had been asked to leave. "Miss O'Sullivan denied this, saying she had taken particular care not to be offensive.

Constantine testified that he realized there was color prejudice when he arrived at the hotel where rooms for him and his family had been engaged a few days before and the hotel was told he was a Negro.

Americans Seize Valognes Forging Ring Of Steel 4 Miles Outside Cherbourg

British Plunge Beyond Tilly Sur Seulles
Beat Back Counter Jabs
50,000 Germans Trapped In French Port

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 20—(CP).—American troops plunged within four miles of Cherbourg late today and also seized Valognes, 10 miles southeast of the great harbor, while British forces in the eastern sector pushed south from captured Tilly Sur Seulles to occupy Hottot.

Battling against a wall of Nazi armor, the British forces seized the town, two miles south of Tilly and beat back two Nazi counter-attacks.

There was no change in the position in other sectors held by British and Canadians but this did not mean a lull because British and Canadian armor hold in combat four Panzer divisions alongthis front.

The beaches in that sector still were shelled intermittently by German long-range and mobile batteries but the British cruisers Ajax, Arethusa, Belfast and Syrius countered the enemy fire.

A Death Pocket.

In the Cherbourg sector, the veteran United States 9th Division spearheaded the drive directly south of Cherbourg — a death pocket for perhaps up to 50,000 Nazis—advancing to St. Martin Le Grand only four miles away.

On the southeast approach to the north, other Americans seized Valognes and pushed a mile beyond and cleaned the Germans from by-passed Montebourg, four miles southeast of Valognes.

On the eastern coast of the trap tightening steadily on Cherbourg an American column drove two miles north of Quineville.

Montebourg, won and lost by the Americans in bitter street fighting and then by-passed in the push to Valognes, now has been completely occupied Supreme Headquarters said.

Pierce Defences.

The Germans were falling back upon the inner perimeter of Cherbourg's defences, Associated Press correspondent Roger Greene said in a dispatch from U.S. Field Headquarters. He added the Germans fell back from Valognes "without attempting a major stand."

The power drive directly south of Cherbourg carried the 9th Division battering ram nearly six miles north of captured Bricquebec.

U.S. forces on the west coast also made progress north of Barneville, where the first break-through was made sealing off the top of Cherbourg peninsula. Opposition in this sector was reported light.

The Germans have three semi-circular defence lines around Cherbourg, with the biggest stretching out six miles from the port. Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley's offensive has pierced deep through this line and apparently has reached the second defence wall.

Air reconnaissance disclosed the Germans have been demolishing the port of Cherbourg and that it is in bad shape, indicating they had given up hope of holding it for very long.

There were indications the Germans were weaker on the western side of the peninsula than in the east. Heavy fighting has raged in the Montebourg-Valognes sector.

The all-out Cherbourg drive was coupled with what appeared to be the greatest air effort since the first days of the invasion, and more than 1,500 American heavy bombers bombed targets in Germany and the rocket-bomb platforms in the Pas de Calais area on the French coast.

No Escape.

A "Cape Bon" in miniature was believed developing in the Cherbourg Peninsula but there were no signs of any attempt to evacuate the trapped troops by sea.

Lloyd Chadburn Killed Over France

AURORA, Ont., June 20—(CP).—Wing Cmdr. Lloyd Chadburn, 24, D.S.O. and bar, D.F.C., died of injuries received June 13 and has been buried in a cemetery in France, his mother, Mrs. Frank Allen, has been informed.

"We are awaiting an official report on Lloyd's death," said the mother of the Montreal native who was one of the Dominion's outstanding air heroes of the war with a record of 14 German planes shot down, an enemy E-boat sunk, another damaged and a destroyer damaged.

"At present we are told that he was shot down while flying low over the Cherbourg area and didn't have a chance to bail out. We do not know whether he was hit by an enemy fighter or by flak from the ground. He was buried at Benouville, about five miles from Cannes."

One of the youngest wing commanders in the R.C.A.F., Chadburn was mentioned as taking part in D-Day operations. Word that he was missing was received Sunday and the report of his death was received today.

A memorial service will be held in Trinity Anglican Church here on Sunday.

Desert Rats In Normandy

NEW YORK, June 20.—(CP). — Men of the famous British 7th Armored Division, the "Desert Rats" of the North African campaign, are fighting in Normandy and "are punishing the enemy just as much in this close, leafy Norman country as they did in North Africa," the BBC said last night.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said the fighting in Normandy is "very different" from that in North Africa. There are no big open spaces "with hundreds of tanks manoeuvring on each side," it said, adding:

"It's rather a matter of tanks hunting tanks through the woods and orchards, stalking each other down and fighting it out at 200 or 150 yards' range.

"The Germans are exploiting the country for all they are worth. They are lying up in ditches letting our tanks pass, then popping out and firing on any tank commander who has his head out of his turret. They are jumping out of hedges and fastening 'sticky bombs' on to our tanks. They're lobbing grenades through open turrets....

"But the men of the 7th Armored Division are up to all these tricks."

Tremendous Work Backlog

Howe Says 300 Millions To Be Spent

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said last night a backlog of some $300,000,000 of industrial expansion was in prospect for Canada after the war, and that the engineering profession has never looked forward to "such a period of expanded usefulness."

Addressing members of the Junior Graduate Engineers' Association of Ottawa, Mr. Howe outlined advances made in various fields of engineering during the war years, and said synthetics and plastics will "come into their own" with the return of peace.

Gas turbines and jet-propelled aircraft are developments of mechanical engineering, and research in electrical engineering has developed radar and television. In mining engineering, the Alaska Highway and exploitation of Canada's northland will mean the "opening of the north," Mr. Howe said.

He said her sources of hydro-electric power were probably Canada's greatest single asset.

"The development of great power resources necessary for war will mean surplus power for post-war days, and it has been the history of surplus power that it soon brings industrial development.

1940 Invasion Smashed By Air Force

LONDON, June 20 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons to-day that a German attempt to invade Britain in 1940 had been smashed before heavy concentrations of ships and troops were able to leave Continental ports.

Mr. Churchill's statement came in response to a series of questions from the floor by Major Vyvyan Adams, who asked the Prime Minister if he could give the House details of a reported Nazi invasion attempt.

Mr. Churchill first said he had nothing to add to the Government's previous non-committal replies, but when Maj. Adams asked whether "the enemy set in motion the apparatus of seaborne invasion," the Prime Minister said:

"I do not quite know what is meant by setting in motion. Setting in motion in the sense of crossing the Channel, 'No,' but setting in motion in the sense of making very heavy concentrations of troops and ships to cross the Channel, 'Yes.'"

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, then asked:

"I suppose he (the Prime Minister) could say that if such an invasion was made, at any rate it was unsuccessful?"

Mr. Churchill smiled and answered "Yes."

"Did any of this shipping ever emerge from ports across the Channel?" Maj. Adams pressed.

"Not to my belief," the Prime Minister said "A great deal of it was sunk in ports and then they changed their minds."

Shells Batter

Only two alternatives faced the Germans—surrender in large numbers, as did Gen. Von Arnin's men at Cape Bon in Tunisia, or be pulverized by a prolonged hail of high explosives from land, sea and air.

Reuters News Agency said British Headquarters were becoming more and more confident that the Germans might not be able to mount the expected counter-attack and that the Allies will be able to maintain the initiative.

This was due to the heavy damage done enemy communications by the Allied air forces, superior speed of the Allied beachhead build-up and the activities of the underground army.

Communique No. 29 reported "the enemy once again was driven from Tilly Sur Seulles," a town which has changed hands often. From there British patrols pushed as far as Hottot, 1½ miles to the south, without encountering any serious resistance.

The situation remained static around Caen, besieged by British and Canadian forces now being built up for a strong drive. Across the Orne River, northeast of Caen, artillery duels were reported continuing and a field dispatch told of Germans being captured in a wooded sector. Canadian paratroopers were operating in that sector.

In the Cherbourg peninsula, meanwhile, Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the American commander, drew new strength from other sections of the beachhead and sent his troops surging northward in what headquarters called "co-ordinated attacks along the entire front."

50,000 In Trap

Artillery hurled streams of shells into the great port, France's third largest, defended by possibly 50,000 German troops now caught in the closing trap.

The deepest wedge was driven into the German ring of fortifications from the southwest. A column sweeping forward from captured Bricquebec, 11 miles south of the port, hurled the Germans back to the outskirts of Rauville la Bigot, a village between six and seven miles south and slightly west of Cherbourg.

Isolate Pockets

Communique No. 29 said other American columns to the east were driving forward in twin moves to flank Valognes, 10 miles southeast of Cherbourg, after sweeping around Montebourg and cutting off isolated pockets of Germans there.

The communique said the highway southwest to Bricquebec was cut two miles from Valognes.

Supreme Headquarters said that undoubtedly further advances have been made this morning, of which news has not yet arrived.

The American wedge across the Cherbourg peninsula now is 16 miles at its widest point and eight miles at its narrowest. Expanding to the north, the Americans raced toward the main German defence line six miles south of the port.

It was expected that a matter of hours would show the strength of these defences and whether the Germans can manage to swing the muzzles of the port's long-range guns from the sea to repel a land attack.

The German-held channel islands have guns capable of shooting to the Cherbourg peninsula at extreme range, but headquarters said there is no reason to believe "they can seriously interfere with the American advance."

The Supreme Command said "coordinated attacks" meant Bradley had thrown other divisions into the drive on the port under a curtain of fire from 105-millimetre Howitzers and 155-millimetre "long tons."

"The enemy has some advantages in terrain but it can be assumed he is more tired than we are," a headquarters spokesman declared.

German troops all along the north front were reported apparently badly disorganized. Front dispatches said many of the high Nazi officers had been killed and in some sectors units had been cut to pieces.

Montebourg Neutralized

No gains were reported in the Carentan area to the south and it seemed apparent that Bradley was content merely with holding actions there while driving all-out for Cherbourg.

Despite the worst weather in days, Allied fighters and fighter-bombers swung into the fray in considerable numbers, sweeping along the few roads left the Germans around Cherbourg and cutting their military movements to pieces with machine-guns and bombs.

Montebourg, a scene of desperate fighting for a week or more as a key to the German defence in the north, was effectively neutralized as the charging invaders swept around it.

Bradley used similar tactics in Tunisia in capturing Bizerte. Then, he drove straight for the port, leaving numerous German pockets behind him, many of which took several days to clean up.

The building up of the beachhead forces and supplies was hampered yesterday by a wind of 25 miles an hour which whipped up five-foot waves along the beaches. A 60-mile gale swept the channel.

Surrendering Fast

"The Allies' stranglehold on the Cherbourg peninsula has been strengthened by a series of local advances," said last night's headquarter's communique.

The advancing Americans captured Bricquebec, a sizeable town five miles below the enemy's main Cherbourg defence line. Front dispatches said it was unscathed except for a couple of buildings hit by Allied bombers.

Other American units by-passed Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg, and still others swinging southward were threatening La Haye du Puits, 24 miles south of Cherbourg.

More than 1,000 prisoners were taken yesterday. Associated Press war correspondent Don Whitehead, with the American forces, said last night that Germans were surrendering "so fast the units do not know how many they have."

An officer in the field predicted the fate of Cherbourg may be decided on the line of German defences the Americans now have virtually reached.

Whitehead quoted the officer as saying there "is little doubt" the Germans have been ordered to fight to the last and consequently they "may try to make Cherbourg another Sevastopol."

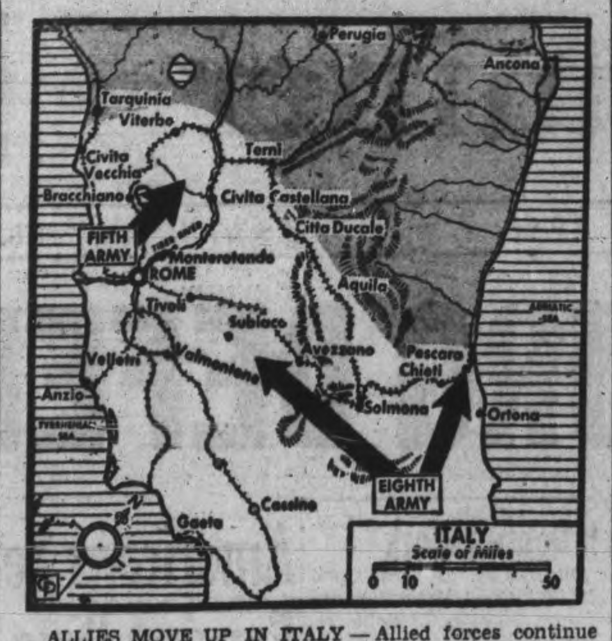
In the withdrawal into these defences the Germans presented only minor opposition to the rapid advance. Whitehead said most of this came from small groups which had been cut off from their units.

Meanwhile the Germans acknowledged that Allied troops have isolated the Port of Cherbourg but intimated the Nazi garrison there was ready for a long siege.

The Berlin radio quoted Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, as saying that American forces pushing across the Cotenin Peninsula had "interrupted land communications between Cherbourg and the interior of France."

"They have undeniably scored a partial success which we do not want to minimize," the paper added.

In an earlier Berlin broadcast, the Nazi Transocean News Agency said: "If the Americans penetrate further toward the north they will get into the range of the heavy fortifications of Cherbourg. One should not forget that the French had fortified the harbor also from the land side. The Germans afterward extended these fortifications."



ALLIES MOVE UP IN ITALY — Allied forces continue their advance up the Italian peninsula, maintaining a swift pace above Rome. The Germans on the Adriatic sector joined in the general withdrawal of Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's forces. The British Eighth Army moved up through central Italy and the Adriatic to occupy towns vacated by the Nazis.

current requirements of military supplies, Lyttelton asserted. He said British aid also consisted of the construction of 100 airdromes, the turning over of a large number of aircraft including 500 gliders and many squadrons of Spitfires and supplying American forces with one-fifth of their food.

An important phase of British aid to Americans, he said, was making available as troop transports the great liners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary.

Capt. Lyttelton said the United States had been given data on a new sight which promises to be the most outstanding gunsight yet devised, and that it will go into large-scale manufacture in the United States practically in its British form.

The Minister also pointed to British research in rocket weapons turned over to United States experts as a part of the British aid to America. He said that American rockets based on British design now are being used with great effect by American forces in the Pacific.

Britain Removes Ban On Travel

LONDON, June 20—(CP)—The foreign office announced last night that the pre-invasion ban on diplomats' travel and other communication had been lifted.

"The heads of all diplomatic missions now have been notified of the removal of the restrictions as from midnight June 19-20," the foreign office said.

Facilities were suspended for transmission of cypher telegrams and diplomatic bags and members of diplomatic missions were not allowed to leave Britain under terms of the restrictions imposed midnight April 17.

The Dominions, United States and Russia were exempt from the ban and during the two-months period a few exceptions were made for other nations, notably Gen. de Gaulle, leader of the French Committee of National Liberation being allowed to visit London.

Ship Crashes Lock On Canal

CORNWALL, June 20 —(CP) — Traffic remained at a standstill in the Cornwall canal to-day as work was rushed on the installation of new gates at Lock 20 following an accident yesterday in which a Canadian naval vessel crashed in to the gates and swept them into the basin below the locks. The ship was slightly damaged.

Canal officials were at the scene this morning supervising the repair work which is expected to be completed about midnight tonight.

Lock 20 is about three miles west of the city.

The passenger vessel Rapids Prince (Canada Steamship Lines) was unable to pass through the canal to Prescott, Ont., and it was understood plans were being made to have passengers brought here for the trip by water to Montreal.

No other damage resulted, but one other vessel in the basin above the lock was grounded.

Speakers Wants Draftees Sent Overseas

GUELPH, Ont., June 20 —(CP)— Criticism of the Federal Government's manpower regulations was voiced by the national leader of the Progressive Conservatory party, John Bracken, and the national chairman of the party, C. P. McTague, here last night.

Mr. McTague, in an address accepting the nomination as candidate for the Progressive Conservative party in the next Federal election in his hometown riding of Wellington South, said Canada's national honor demands an immediate order-in-council making men in the home defence forces available for overseas duty.

Mr. Bracken said he endorsed the statement of Mr. McTague and forecast the defeat of the present Liberal administration in the next Federal election because it had "failed in its manpower policy" by placing party-advantage first, and because it had been guilty of extravagance "on an unprecedented scale."

"When the record of this war is written, Canada's handling of the manpower will be a sorry tale," said Mr. Bracken.

Mr. McTague, former chairman of the National War Labor Board and one-time Ontario Appeal Court justice, was the first to speak to the gathering of Guelph citizens.

He suggested that Quebec's 1941 plebiscite vot no longer reflected the view of the majority in that province and said the government's persistence in leaving the approximately 75,000 members of the Home Defence Army in Canada "can only be construed as deference to the will of the minority in the province of Quebec as voiced in the plebiscite."

Mr. Bracken said the government was calling for volunteers for the Canadian Army and for industry while sheltering "70,000 men in a so-called Home Army" and "the national effort was limited if its manpower was not used fully or was wastefully distributed."

"Canada," the former Manitoba Premier said, "is paying a high price of partisanship in time fo war in a criminal waste of manpower, in financial extravagance unparallelled in the history of the government in this country and in unnecessarily high taxation."

"Never since confederation has there been less of unity than at this critical time," said Mr. Bracken. "For the appeals to racial prejudice that have been sown in certain sections of Canada mainly for partisan advantage, we are now reaping a harvest of discord in an ever-widening sphere."

more troublesome to Allied forces in Italy than any other town north of Rome.

Eighth Army troops pushed up to the city from the south and east and advance elements cut the road to the west. The Germans sprinkled the ground southwest of the city with mines and covered the minefields with harassing fire.

To the east of the city German forces in the mountains appeared eager to avoid any serious fighting with strong armored reconnaissance patrols of the 8th Army.

Indians Active.

The villages of Ripa and Civitella D'Arno northeast of Perugia were captured by troops of an Indian division and considerable casualties were inflicted on the Germans when they attempted a counter-attack.

Farther west British troops reached the southern shore of Lake Trasimeno and approached the road along its western shore.

Citta Della Pieve, where the Germans had offered strong resistance for two days, was by-passed by 8th Army troops who headed for San Litardo to the northwest. Between Citta Della Pieve and Perugia, the town of Panicale and the villages of Mungano, Citaglione and Panciano have been cleared of the enemy. Citta Della Pieve has a population of 9,400 and Panicale 5,800.

Resistance to the 5th Army in the west again became sporadic with isolated machine-gun nests and mortar positions causing most of the trouble. Artillery fire which had slowed progress had slackened, considerably. Late yesterday the advance reached a point nine miles northeast of Grosseto.

The number of prisoners taken by both armies since the start of the offensive May 11 rose to 27,000.

the direct blows against Germany itself, has shortened the remaining time for the defeat of the enemy."

The Germans put up a heavy flak barrage over Pas de Calais in defence of their rocket installations.

The skies were kept humming, however, by the new German rocket bombs, the launching grounds for which along the French coast were attacked twice by American heavy bombers yesterday.

Strong formations of German fighters intercepted the raiders and fierce air battles ensued, Berlin declared.

"Operations of the United States bomber formations were carried out in small groups as a result of the strong German defence," a Nazi broadcast saaid.

Conditions over the continent today apparently were much the same as yesterday, when fliers operating in support of ground forces had to combat four layers of clouds above 4,000 feet in addition to a ground haze.

The German air force hugged the ground yesterday and last night, however. There were no reports of a German plane being shot down during that period. Allied losses were three heavy bombers, two mediums and 15 fighters—all victims of anti-aircraft fire.

Over Britain, snap-shooting anti-aircraft gunners and relays of swooping fighter-pilots blasted dozens of Nazi robot-planes out of the sky overnight, and the Allies now appeared to be getting the range of this new weapon on the sixth day of the "buzz-bomb" blitz.

The Germans first tried a handful of the comet bombs June 13 but did not set the present sustained attack going until June 15.

In one district alone four flying bombs were shot down by night fighters within a few minutes. Three exploded in the air in quick succession.

The Germans were launching the robots in no particular order. Sometimes as many as five came over almost together.

In daylight to-day the Germans kept winging the one-ton bombs into England at sporadic intervals. The Air Ministry announced that new and secret mesures were being taken to wipe out the cross-channel attacks.

As U.S. hevy bombers struck twice yesterday at the rocket emplacements around Pas de Calais the Air Ministry made known that six months of constant attacks had blasted out so many of the launching platforms that the pilotless bombs finally were put into operation on less than one-fourth the scale Hitler originally planned.

Getting Measure.

As Allied preventive measures got into full swing anti-aircraft gunners reported it was somewhat different firing at the rocket bombs than at regular planes. Sgt. Tom Pinckney, British veteran in charge of one gun crew, said they are faster-moving targets than he had been used to "but we are getting their measure and they are not bothering us much."

The Germans reported officially during the night their raiders were over parts of Eastern Scotland, indicating the Nazis were sending some ordinary planes against Britain as well as the robots.

The Air Ministry said only "damage and casualties had been reported" in Southern England.

As flying-bomb delirium swept Germany there were indications of increasing uneasiness among Nazis propagandists that the German population was due for a tremendous let-down.

Voices Caution

In extolling the new weapon and giving elaborate reports of panic in London, German broadcasters voiced frequent cautions against expecting too much.

Gunners on the channel coast pointed out the winged comets do not have the advantage of ordinary night sneak raiders, as the rocket flames light up the bombs and they can be seen sometimes 15 miles out at sea. Gunners open up on them when they are still over the water. Fighters usually deal with them further inland.

The rockets also have the British balloon barrage in their path. one ran into a balloon during the night and exploded with a terrific blast in a field, damaging nearby houses

Gunners said the Germans seemed to be using many different types of the pilotless planes because "we watch all shapes and sizes coming over."

It was estimated the smaller types were capable of speeds of about 200 miles an hour while the larger robots travel at perhaps 400 miles an hour.

Air Ministry officials termed "ridiculous" reports that some of the rocket bombs travel at 600 miles an hour.

SAIPAN NEW HUB IN PACIFIC DRIVE—As the biggest naval task force in history battles for the Island of Saipan (1), in the Marianas group, and for Saipan's fine airfields, the importance of this particular spot—some 1,465 miles from Tokyo and 1,470 miles from the Philippines—becomes increasingly evident. Quite outside its proximity to Japan, Saipan is reported to have flat areas made to order for the big land air bases. Giant super-Fortresses could radiate from Saipan (as arrows show), as well as from China (2) to blast Nippon's big manufacturing areas and slam at the Philippines. Presence of great naval forces there, plus other forces battering at the Bonins, indicate that the big smash is definitely on. It is pointed out that the recent capture of Biak (3) off New Guinea provides bases for cracking at areas indicated by arrows.

House Debates Reconstruction

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—After advancing three important pieces of post-war legislation yesterday the House of Commons prepared today to deal with a fourth, the bill to create a department of reconstruction which will be responsible for planning and co-ordinating the restoration of Canadian economy to a peacetime basis.

Yesterday the House gave third and final reading to the bill providing for disposal of surplus war assets which may run to $4,000,000,000 in value.

It also passed through committee stage a bill creating a department of veterans affairs to handle all pension administration and all activities connected with the training and re-establishment of service personel in civilian life.

The third measure dealt with, a bill amending the Aeronautics Act, makes provision for Canada's post-war aviation set-up. It received second reading.

G. K. Fraser

In discussing the bill to create an air transport board Gordon Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) expressed fear that helicopeter developments would be held up by refusing bus companies permission to operate helicopter services. He said he was particularly interested because Peterborough had poor train connections and no air services. It should be possible to link such cities with points on main airlines.

"The commercial helicopter has yet to be invented," said Munitions Minister Howe, adding it could be at least some years before the machine could be used on a commercial basis.

Mr. Howe said that under the Bill it would be very difficult for bus lines to operate Helicopter services.

One provision requires railway companies to sever their connection with air services and the policy embodied in it is that Air Services shall not be operated by the same concerns that operate other forms of transportation.

It will be some years, the Minister predicted, before commercial Helicopter operations become possible. Most bus lines in Canada had applied for franchises and while no doubt they acted in good faith it might be suggested they were interested in preventing competition with their surface transportation. Helicopter services, if they became possible, could develop better as independent operations.

On the War Assets Bill, which creates a corporation to handle sales or other liquidation operations Progressive Conservative members complained the Minister was given too much power to meet a suggestion by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre).

Mr. Howe obtained adoption of an amendment that the report be in a form prescribed by the Auditor-General and give reasonable detail on all transactions.

Mr. Howe agreed with a remark from C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) an impression created to the effect the Corporation would sell direct to consumers was wrong. The Corporation would have to use dealers in disposing of such things as safety razor but the price to consumers would be fixed and the margin of profit to dealers would be fixed.

On certain things such as scrap sales could be made direct to consumers in some cases. It was not intended that contractors or jobbers should buy surplus assets in large quantities and re-sell them at a profit.

During discussion of the Veteran's Affairs Department Bill Pensions Minister Mackenzie said all aspects of the question of insurance for soldiers, sailors and airmen were being considered.

Establishments of homes for old soldiers who had no relatives with whom they could live and receive reasonable care was urged by Rodney Adamson (P.C.—York West).

"I entirely agree," said Mr. MacKenzie, "with what the member has said respecting homes for old soldiers. We have two of them now, one at Toronto and one at Vancouver. I wish members could see what is done in the one at Vancouver.

"I know that those men receive good care, the finest treatment in the world. It is my hope that these homes may be extended across Canada. I believe we should have possibly two in every province."

John O'Leary Funeral Held At Lindsay

LINDSAY, June 20—(ENS)—People from every walk in life attended the funeral Monday at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, of John O'Leary, prominent Lindsay business man and member of the local Board of Water Commissions.

Mr. O'Leary, who has resided in Lindsay for 30 years, was Past Grand Knight of the Knight of Columbus. He took a leading part in the affairs of the community and gained public recognition for his work as chairman of the Board of Water Commission for many years. He was responsible for the modernizing of the complete system of Lindsay's water supply including the erection of a new water tower, installation of a new system of purifying the water and the innovation of artesian wells. Due mainly to his effort the Water Board gained the confidence of the people in a general election removing them from influence of the town council and from a combination with the Hydro Commission. During the last two years of office as a water commissioner, Mr. O'Leary saw the fulfillment of his efforts with two reductions in water rates and the wiping out of all deficits against the Board.

Mr. O'Leary took a keen interest in the welfare of the children of the community and was president of the Children's Aid Society. He instigated reforms in this department that proved successful and beneficial. He also helped sponsor sports and athletics among the younger element and was an official of Church League hockey and ball organizations.

In business life, Mr. O'Leary was a blacksmith, doing his own work and specializing in the making of sleighs and wagons. His craftsmanship was recognized throughout the province and up to a short time befor his death, he worked steadily at the trade himself. He was a staunch Conservative in politics and a firm believer in the reforms now forming the platform of that party.

He is survived by his wife, the former Sarah McGinley, his mother, Mrs. J. C. O'Leary of Downeyville and seven children, Sister St. Hugh of St. Joseph's Convent, Toronto, Margaret of Toronto, Mrs. G. N. Murphy of Montreal, Joseph of Kingston, Dr. Austin O'Leary of New York City, Daniel of Toronto and Leo of Parry Sound.

All Born In 1926 To Be Called Up

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—Extension of military callup regulations to all men born in 1926 was announced today in the Commons by Labor Minister Mitchell. Men born in 1926 will be instructed to report when they reach the age of 18 years and six months, the Minister said.

No change is made in the age at which men are called, but as the eligible age groups are based on the year of birth, extension to 1926 becomes necessary this year. The regulations previously applied to all men born in the year 1913 to 1925 and single men born in the years 1906 to 1925, provided they have not passed their 38th birthday.

It is estimated that 104,000 men born in 1926 will reach the age of 18½ between July 1, 1944, and June 30, 1945.

Dr. Kelly Urges Amalgamating Health Services

Urging amalgamation of the Department of Health and Board of Education medical services, Dr. H. A. Kelly, M.O.H. declined to be responsible for the welfare and maintainance of the Department of Health unless more qualified assistance and better organization was granted him, he said at a meeting of the City Council Monday night.

He said that approximately a year ago when he arrived in Peterborough the staff consisted of one supervisor and two fully qualified public health nurses. At the present time there are two public health nurses and one registered nurse, and the latter is leaving soon. At the same time, the services rendered have been increased. For the past six months the Department has been without a supervisor, Dr. Kelly continued, and the staff has endeavoured to carry on without decreasing their services.

"However, we have come to the point where we cannot continue; we are doing what we can. The nurses are not satisfied; I am not satisfied; and the department in not in good condition because we cannot extend ourselves farther."

Dealing with the suggested amalgamation with the Board of Education services, Dr. Kelly said that the School Board was responsible for the health and well being of the child while in school. They are responsible for slightly less than one-fifth of the population during approximately six hours five days a week. The Department of Health, he outlined, had the responsibility of all times.

The M.O.H. explained that he felt this duplication of service should be eliminated and a general public health service instituted. Since the Board of Education is on the verge of making new appointments, the Department of Health felt that now was the time to discuss amalgamation. He pointed out however that the Council's own department would have to sit itself in order first. The have to sit itself in order first. The Department would have to have sufficient personnel to be able to carry out the work and have something definite to offer. At the present time with a depleted staff, this amalgamation would be impossible.

Big Increase

Another of the difficulties facing the already overburdened Department of Health is the increase in population which will take place in January, 1945 with new territory taken into the city. At the present time, the staff cannot cope with this situation, Dr. Kelly asserted.

Although he agreed that there was a scarcity of public health nurses, Dr. Kelly said that they could be obtained at a price. He requested the Council to authorize the engaging of a fully qualified supervisor of nurses duties to commence as soon as possible and not later than August 1; an additional fully qualified public health nurse to begin not later than September 1; and a further public health nurse to begin by November.

5 Not Too Many

Alderman James Dutton said that in 1935 it was visualized that at least 5 public health nurses were needed to keep the Department operating at top efficiency. Long ago amalgamation between the two health bodies was envisioned.

"The Board of Education have been doing their work for a long time and have done a good job. They are very proud of it. But this problem concerns not only the Board of Education, but the Council and the Board of Health. It is a bad thing to have the health of the community divided up with one Board responsible for one part of the population and a second board for another. In addition, it is impossible to do the work properly under one man and two nurses. It is a mutual problem shared by the two boards. Dr. Kelly has been doing his duty as an executive officer, custodian of the public health. I want the necessary permission to put our own house in order."

Agreeing with Dr. Kelly's recommendations, Alderman J. E. Sullivan said the Department was at a crossroads. He emphasized that a coordination of the services was desireable, but said, they must have a concrete plan to offer before the Board of Education could be asked to consider the Council's proposition. He warned that they must procure a supervisor, at a cost which would not be under $1,800 and also additional nurses.

Alderman Herbert Bradburn wanted to know if the amalgamation was accomplished how many nurses would be required and Dr. Kelly estimated about six. The basis used is one nurse for every 5,000 people.

Wary Approach

Alderman Roland Glover felt it was important that the two bodies meet soon to discuss the matter. Mayor James Hamilton declared that he would like to see the whole Council meet the Board of Education. He said that they had met the Board of Health a number of times and did not think they wanted to trust their affairs to the city.

"I think they're right," Alderman Sullivan opined. Our Health Department has not been exactly stable. Dr. Kelly is only an acting Medical Officer of Health and is doing a good job. When we have a definite statement on policy then we are ready to talk business."

Alderman Dutton and Max Swanson felt that action should be taken at once by the Board of Health and the City Council to adopt definite plans, in order to meet the Board of Education at an early date before they made any more additions to their staff.

"Isn't the idea in most cities that both Boards should be amalgamated?" Alderman Glover inquired.

"We must be fair about this," Alderman Dutton replied. Prior to 1926 the Peterborough School Board was one of the first in the Province to have a health service and the new laws are not applicable to them.

It was finally decided to have the Finance committee meet later this week and consider more specific action in this matter.

More Study Needed Of State Medicine

CAMPBELLFORD, June 20. — (ENS). — Dr. H. B. Longmore, in his address to the Rotary Club on "State Medicine," said that the need was recognized by all, but the ways and means were difficult because of the differences of opinion.

The Trade and Labor Congress, with a membership of 264,375, approved of the plan in general, but when the concrete Haggerty plan was presented they said "No," he explained, on the grounds that since the people of Canada were paying the bills they and not the Government or the medical profession should control the Council. Edward B. Jolliffe said at London recently that the medical profession would be part of the socialized state. This is patterned on the Russian plan and doctors would be civil servants. The doctor concluded by saying that "There is a long way to go before we have state medicine."

Plastics Used To Win War In General Use

Popular impressions that plastics was something brand new and strictly a development of the war and that the post war world would be completely plactic were questioned by H. A. Gadd, superintendent of the porcelain and plastics division of the C.G.E. in an address to the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel Monday.

"The first is definitely not true," said Mr. Gadd. "Some new formulae, and even more entirely new resins have been developed, of course, to meet particular war requirements and are available as yet only for that purpose. However the big bulk of plastics being used to help win the war were those which were in standard use by the electrical industry and others before the war. Plastics is an established industry. It will some day rate with the large industries such as steel and shipbuilding. It will continue to grow at a more rapid rate, I think, than any other industry with the possible exception of electronics. Plastics is relatively new but it is not a war baby."

"The second point is in connection with the tendency of some of the popular literature to overglamorize plastics. We fellows who work at it are extremely enthusiastic about the future of plastics, we base our enthusiasm on facts and we even do a bit of dreaming and wistful thinking on top of that. However we fell pretty sure that these stories of all-plastic planes and all-plastic prefabricated houses are a bit off the beam—at least for the next 50 years."

Big Field Of Use

"In the meantime with the post-war removal of restrictions on materials and manufacturing there is awaiting a great field of use for plastics in the many places where they will do the job better or be more economical or more pleasing to the eye than materials formerly used."

When after the war you have the benefit for civilian uses of the improvements in technique or manufacture of the prewar plastic plus the newly developed materials you will see some amazing things."

I feel sure that these things that the chemists have developed from air and coal and water will form the basis of an industry that will rate highly in the assets of the nation."

Mr. Gadd who was introduced by Rotarian G. H. Roper, gave a most informative talk that included a description of the manufacturing methods used in the production of plastics. The manufacturing, he said, consisted broadly of two separate functions, one the manufacture of the plastics compound from the raw material and, two, the moulding or forming of the compound into the finished piece.

Moulding Parts

"Our work at the C.G.E. plastics department here in Peterborough," he said, "consists of moulding parts for our company's apparatus and also for many other users. The parts made are mostly industrial or munitions components."

The speaker touched on various types of plastics, their fabrication and their uses and illustrated his talk by exhibiting a large number of plastic products to show the wide use that is being made of the new materials.

The basic of plastics, he explained, were synthetic resins, and defined plastics as being materials the main constituent of which was a synthetic organic resin and which could be moulded to shape with the application of heat.

Only five elements were required for the production of plastics, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, carbon and chlorine. The first was obtained from water, the second and third from the air, carbon from coal and wood and chlorine from salt. These elements were combined synthetically to form the resin required for the production of plastics.

Thanks of the club were extended Mr. Gadd for his instructive paper by Rotarian C. S. Cummer on behalf of the Rotay Club.

Additional Firemen For City Debated By City Council

For the first time in almost 10 years, members of the City Council had to ask for an extension of time at the council meeting Monday night. When 11 o'clock struck, the hour of adjournment, the aldermen were in the middle of a lively debate, and a 10-minute respite was authorized.

One of the most widely discussed issues of the evening concerned the new ruling affecting fire departments limiting the number of working hours a day for firemen, and making sure that their off shift time is free from call ins. This law means that substantial increase in staff is needed to take care of the time the men off shift are not available for duty. Everyone concerned was willing to cooperate, but ideas as to methods differed slightly.

The Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott, accompanied Chief George Gimblett and two members of the Firemen's Union, Virg. Carr and Garnet Brown, to the council. All expressed their views and what plans they had in mind.

Mr. Scott said that the legislation was passed with the intent of insuring that firemen had a maximum work week of 72 hours. It is designed to get rid of the pull backs to the station while men are off shift. Since he explained it is economically impossible to maintain enough staff on duty at one time to handle any emergency which might arise, the Firemen's Union throughout the province, have undertaken to guarantee that firemen will return voluntarily to duty in the event of a serious fire in the municipality.

Deficiency Exists

"The question which must be ironed out between the Council and the Union, is what constitutes a serious fire and that should not be difficult. It is felt that the council can, by making a diligent effort, add men gradually before the end of 1944 and possibly have half the deficiency made up. In that case, the Fire Marshal's office will forget about the rest till the war is over.

In suggestions made to the chief and the council, Mr. Scott declared that not more than half or one-third of the off-duty men should be out of town any one night, even though they were privileged to do so. He felt that they should notify the officer in charge if they were leaving town so he would not count on them in an emergency. In turn he urged the Union to "play ball" with the Council.

Men Unsuitable

Chief Gimblett said his big problem was to find men for the job. They had to be physically fit and veterans of this war were going to be given first chance. Although several applicants have been interviewed, not many have been able to pass their medical examinations properly, he declared. In addition they must be motor drivers so that they can be quickly trained to handle the trucks. The chief told council members that he needed ten men, five for each shift.

Victory This Year?

We see that our Russian allies have decided that this is to be the year of victory for us, the year of ignominious defeat and retribution for the Germans. We sincerely hope that they are right. Anglo-American forces have made a beginning in the west of Europe and will doubtless establish other footholds soon; once they have done that they must either make a quick bid for victory or settle down to a long campaign which could drag on indefinitely and might end indecisively. Although Anglo-American leaders have not been so definite as the Russians, they have said enough to tell us that they are planning on the quick and decisive course of action.

And what is Russia doing? Russia has made a rapid dash into Finland, and we may hear at any hour that the most pitiable of the satellites has surrendered. Russia will then have command of several splendid northern approaches to Europe. The indications are that the big Russian action will be farther south, however, and before the middle of July we should see action in that quarter. Already Russian air forces have begun softening-up operations on the Minsk and Pinsk areas of the Russian front, in White Russia. It is suggested that the Russians may break through in the north between Dvinsk and Minsk, and further south they will try to skirt the Pripet Marshes toward Pinsk, creating a pincers around the Nazi central defences.

In the meantime there might be a drive at Dvinsk which would aim at breaking through Lithuania into North-eastern Germany; and another blow at the Galatz Gap on the Lower Danube might be expected. At least, that is what the knowing forecasters think, and their forecast sounds plausible, for it would mean a Russian drive all along a vast front which the Germans could not possibly hope to defend adequately while fighting in Western Europe.

The last time the Russians made a great drive they advanced 500 miles before they stopped. If they were to do that again they would be on the border of Germany. As the Germans fall back their problem of supply would be easier, but it is not likely that they would derive much satisfaction from that. Undoubtedly the western and eastern drives will be co-ordinated in order to give Germany as little leeway as possible. When that time comes we must expect to hear of bloody fighting and unequalled acts of violence and ferocity by German troops. It is also possible that we shall hear of a sudden disintegration of German morale, although we cannot count on this, and our military leaders never count on it as a possibility or as a factor in deciding the hour of our victory.

We repeat, the Russians insist that victory will be ours this year. We hope that they are right, and our hopes are well-founded on the realities of the war at present. These days we are constantly being warned against over-optimism, but we do not see that it is over-optimistic to suggest that the United Nations' forces, in their full stride, should defeat an enemy in six months of hard fighting.

Hitler Or The German Nation?

During the early days of the war the opinion was often expressed that we were not fighting the German nation as a whole, but only the Nazi gang — and Adolf Hitler particularly — who has misled them. It took us several months to realize that, for all practical purposes, Germany and Nazidom were the same thing, and that any attempt to distinguish between them was foolish waste of time. But during the period in which the illusion persisted our planes dropped several tons of pamphlets on German soil, urging the Germans to overthrow Hitler and make peace; they did not do so, thereby showing their approval of Hitler, and making us look silly.

Times have changed, and the Germans have long memories for anything which may turn to their advantage. It is not unlikely that Hitler may soon abdicate his power, or be forced to do so, and that we shall then be asked by the Germans to honour our early promise and make peace with them. When that day comes we must explain firmly that we understand Germany better than we did in 1939 and that we hold the whole German nation culpable, and not merely its leaders.

H. G. Wells has warned against the danger of making a martyr of Hitler. Certainly if we stepped down from his place as head of the state in order to give peace to his people he would live in German history as a martyr. In this connection the Montreal Gazette reminds us of a similar situation which arose in June, 1815, when Napoleon abdicated. It was then that Napoleon's Minister of War, Marshal d'Ezkmuhl, wrote as follows to the lieutenant-general who commanded the first French division:

"General, whilst our brave armies watch over the welfare of the Empire and its independence, their august chief, wishing to attempt everything by himself to bring peace to our country, has just completed his long labours by the most heroic sacrifice. He renounces the supreme rank, and thus forces the enemies to show if they have been sincere in their declarations and if it is in reality against his person alone that they have declared war.

"All our warriors in rendering homage to this noble self-denial must redouble their zeal and efforts in order that the sacrifice may not be fruitless. If Europe is willing to have peace, France will owe it to Napoleon.... Rally 'round those eagles that have so often led you to victory. Napoleon does whatever depends on him. He sacrifices himself to the hatred of his enemies to spare your blood. Be ever ready to shed it for the Fatherland".

We don't want any nonsense of that kind after this war, and we must be on our guard against it.

The Germans Try Rockets

The Germans have introduced a menacing novelty into air warfare with their rocket-planes. These machines are in effect huge packages of explosive which are propelled like gigantic sky-rockets across the Channel into the southern counties of England. They are capable of doing great damage, but they are not entirely satisfactory to the Germans because they cannot be accurately aimed; they may come to earth several miles away from their intended target; the Nazis admit that they dare not use them in the Normandy peninsula for fear of killing great numbers of their own troops.

These rocket-planes must be immensely costly, for each one is only good for a single flight. However, they do not need pilots, and that must recommend them highly to the Germans, who appear to be saving whatever remains of their Luftwaffe for a furious defence of the homeland.

We cannot get rid of a feeling, however, that these rocket planes are in the true tradition of German 'secret weapons'—cunning, outlandish, terrifying and, in the last analysis, not much good. Such was Big Bertha in the last war. When Big Bertha hit anything she destroyed it thoroughly, but she very rarely hit anything; she cost a great deal of money to build, and a small fortune every time she was fired; her importance in the war was trifling. Just at present the rocket-planes are causing worry in southern England, and where they strike they do great damage. But we are confident that a way will soon be found of dealing with these pilotless craft. If they are really a substitute for an effective air force they cannot do Germany much good in the long run.

There is one fearful possibility, however, and that is that the Germans may send over rocket planes containing gas when the fighting in Europe becomes desperate. Gassing the civil population of Britain would do nothing to help the German fight in Europe, but the Germans have always set a high value on terror in warfare, and gas attacks on a huge scale would appeal strongly to them. We can only wait and see.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A small boy in Ottawa, we read, has swallowed a mouth organ. Now he only plays if pressed.

An advertisement in an Illinois paper reads: "Young mother wants used baby washer with wringer if possible". Sometimes it's a pleasure to wring them by hand.

---

We read of a dentist who kissed a patient, and was fined $50. This must have surprised him, for the average patient is compelled to some extent to eat out of the dentist's hand.

"Big Liberal Defeat", says a headline in a Tory paper, referring to the recent Saskatchewan election. It was a great day for the Tories, of course, who held their own valiantly.

Future Bacon Exports

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

OTTAWA; The recent debate on farm production policies in Parliament furnished a sharp contrast with similar debates in past sessions. The new note, continually cropping up, comes in the form of a question regarding the future of farm production. What assurance will the farmers have that there will be market demand for their products, in order to maintain the level of production achieved during the war?

The House of Commons is beginning to examine post-war prospects for an agricultural industry that has been expanded and geared up to tremendous production. Where the main questions aimed at the Government, a few sessions back, dealt with demands for "parity" prices, for concessions in obtaining labour, for assistance in one way or another in order to increase production; the central question now is: "What happens after the war?" In the changes that have occurred in Canadian agriculture, nothing more dramatic has taken place than the increase in bacon-hog production. The outlook for bacon exports, in many ways, illustrated the whole problem of the future of farm production.

MR. Gardiner announced that the Government had negotiated a four-year contract with the British government for supplying bacon, though it has not yet been signed. The next day he corrected this to say that negotiations had been completed only for the first two years, that is, 1944 and 1945, and no conclusions had been reached on 1946 and 1947. As it stands now, the contract will provide for a minimum of 500,000,000 pounds delivered in 1944 and the same amount in 1945. The Canadian department, it is assumed, wishes to secure a contract for at least the same amount for 1946 and 1947.

Last year, the department's meat board entered a contract for 900,000,000 pounds of bacon to be delivered over two years, i.e., 1944 and 1945. An important feature of this contract, as of the new contract, is that the quantity mentioned is a minimum. As it stands, deliveries of bacon to Britain may reach 900,000,000 pounds in 1944 alone, compared with the minimum contract figure for this year of 500,000,000. Shipments have been:

1941—440,000,000
1942—600,000,000
1943—675,000,000
1944—900,000,000 (?)

AS the House clearly recognized, the development of an export trade in bacon of this size has been possible as a war measure through the operations of mutual aid assistance. "Britain pays part of it and we pay the other part," said Mr. Gardiner. "In other words, we go right into the pockets of the people of Canada; we ask them to put up sufficient of the price to make it possible to get the increased production we are getting." This applies not only to bacon, but to other farm products, such as wheat, eggs and cheese, all of which have been handled through government boards on a quantity-contract basis with the British government, which takes 80 per cent of the Canadian export.

The prospect that large exports of Canadian foodstuffs and other products will continue to require, for some time at least after the war ends, the support of mutual aid financing has already been recognized by Parliament. Mr. Quelch (S.C., Acadia) said:

"One thing is certain, that those nations which have suffered in consequence of the war will not be in a position to pay by export for the things they need. We shall have to make those things available either as a gift or under some international monetary proposal or under some long-term loan."

He said other countries would be "perfectly justified" in expectating Canada and United States to continue to make gifts to them. Coupled with the demand that assurance of good prices be given to farmers several years in advance, this leads to the argument that the Canadian treasury should be prepared to bear a heavy burden in financing exports for some time in the future.

As the debate on bacon shows, Parliament has hardly more than begun to grasp what is involved in this. To continue mutual aid in time of peace would involve heavy governmental subsidies for exports. Aside from provision of relief shipments, which will be limited to immediate needs, this would lead in time of peace to something which in the past most governments opposed, that is, the dumping of goods on which another country has absorbed part of the cost. The limits to which mutual aid may be carried in time of peace remain to be seen.

BUT more than that, the government-to-government system of exports, in which one government board here deals with another government board abroad, is diametrically opposed to the idea of multilateral foreign trade, inclusive of all nations joining in a world system. Mr. Gardiner said that it was for "the period of the war, at least," that government boards would handle farm products. What about the period after the war? Could agricultural prosperity, asked Mr. Hlynka (S.C., Vegreville) be maintained only by foreign trade? Mr. Gardiner's reply was that: "There can be a demand for all the food that we are producing on our farms." The law of supply and demand would exist as before.

"I believe," he said, "that any government that is in existence in this country or any other country which has been associated with the allies in this war should be convinced that we ought to do everything we possibly can to see that these markets are assured in different parts of the world for the food which Canada produces."

Whether Canadian agriculture must operate within a system of rigid control of planned contracts, or find high employment and prosperity in an era of open markets, is obviously the central issue of the future of farming. There is no final answer at this stage. But it will be a matter of choice to be made by Canada in collaboration with other nations, and the choice is being made now in measure of international co-operation to define the terms of the future world order.

NO ARGUMENT HERE

We here in Edmonton agree heartily, of course, with the writer in Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, that the coming years will see tremendous development of aviation "over the top of the world," and that Canada will play an important part in it. We know in our hearts that Edmonton will be a key point on these northerly intercontinental commercial routes.—Edmonton Journal.

"DANGEROUS CURVE BEHIND!"

Post-War Dream—With Alterations

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THOUSANDS of families on this continent are dreaming of a post-war home, complete with miraculous gadgets of comfort, convenience and beauty. Those dreams are bolstered in a good many cases by a nice nest egg of Victory Bonds for the down payment. And now along comes the U.S. National Association of Home Builders with a rude awakening. At first blush it seems a mean trick, but it will probably turn out to be an act of great kindness.

The association recently asked 517 families from coast to coast about their post-war wants and expectations. The following case of a typical family is based on the majority of answers, and may be considered accurate:

This family plans to build within two years after the war, and to pay between $5,000 and $6,000—not more than $1,000 down or more than $50 a month. For that they expect six rooms and basement, with separate dining room and two bathrooms.

They want air conditioning summer and winter; electronic controls to make housekeeping simpler; extensive use of plastics in plumbing, bathroom fixtures, wall surfaces, and elsewhere. They also want movable partitions; outside walls which will open on their garden or terrace in warm weather; complete-unit rooms that can be added or removed according to family requirements. They are confident that all these improvements will be available within a year after the war's end. And here's the catch. This family claims it won't buy or build unless it can have at least the first three of these improvements.

Now, where did these people get their ideas for the post-war house? From stories and advertisements, most of which, it turned out, originated outside the building industry. The association canvassed most of the source and came to these conclusions: There is no basis for thinking that they can get the "revolutionary improvements" they want at the time they expect them, or at the price they want to pay. Some of the new materials are now on the market, but at the present stage of development, most of them are more expensive than the traditional materials. None are available in lower-priced dwellings.

Dreams of such things as electronic cooking and heating are groundless at present; other innovations seem destined for an evolutionary growth over a period of years. All this is important, since the building industry offers one of the most powerful sources of immediate post-war job opportunities. But there will be no healthy "boom" if a disillusioned public, misled by impractical prophets of quick miracles, thinks it's being cheated.

It would be far better for people to face the less glamorous facts and redesign their dreams—then go right ahead with their building plans.

"The Chars Went First"

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

NOT without a certain amount of trepidation do we risk use of the term "charwoman," for it seems to have become a fighting word in some editorial circles. The Brantford Expositor and The Peterborough Examiner were wrangling over it recently, The Examiner upholding its use and Th Expositor attacking it as outworn and detrimental to the dignity of labour. We find it a bit difficult to understand just why the word wounds the dignity of labour. Indeed, the wage these women receive nowadays would seem sufficient to preserve the dignity of their calling against any slight slur which might be cast by the term "charwomen."

While we realize the danger of stepping between our cantankerous contemporaries in their difference, we would like to point out that the Royal Navy has not the slightest hesitation in using the term "charwomen," and using it in a most honourable connection. Under the heading on this article, it has released some details about the gallant sweepers who cleaned the road to Normandy. They are the minesweepers, the 'charwomen of the sea." They were the first ships to come within German gun range off the shores of France, these little minesweepers—the "Smokey Joes," the Admiralty trawlers, converted fishing trawlers, drifters, and other types, some of them built in America. There were 300 of them, carrying 10,000 officers and men, over 2,800 tons of minesweeping gear and 70 miles of sweep wire.

To have investigated where the mines were before the show began would have given it away. So they went in only a short time ahead, cleared miles of channels and marked them for the troop landings. They did it with a two-knot cross-tide which, half way through the operation, turned completely. They steam in echelon formation, each dragging 250 to 300 fathoms of sweep, swung out to port or starboard by the Oropesa float at the end. Each ship sails within the path of its predecessor's sweep, so theoretically only the leader is in danger of mines. Behind them sail the ships that drop buoys marking the swept channel. When a minesweeper becomes a casualty, it drops out and another moves in to take its place. As a mine it cut loose from its anchor by the sweep, it is exploded by gunfire.

The job that minesweepers have been doing around the shores of England, day in and day out for five years, has become a routine one. The jobs they have been doing in other waters have not been essentialy different. They swept around Sicily, Salerno and Anzio. Some of them have swept the White Sea channels to make way for Allied convoys to Russia. The minesweepers were also at Dunkerque. But routine or not, it is probable that theirs is a task that requires the most skilful seamanship of any, even when not subjected to the enemy fire encountered from the Norman shore, for the job is carried out in strong tides, all weather, and shallow waters.

Not much has been heard of the minesweepers in the past. They must work in strictest secrecy, or the Germans will quickly undo their work. On one famous occasion a flotilla of minesweepers discovered it was being watched by a U-boat, but they decided that this was a case of "don't look now" and went through the motions continuing with their work. After a reasonable passage of time they steamed away. The U-boat, assuming that they had swept the field, proceeded to enter the area to re-lay it. Result: one less U-boat.

Many of the minesweepers are converted fishing trawlers, manned by fishermen under the command of their peace-time skippers, who are given the rank of Lieutenant-Skipper or Skipper, R.N.R. By now, however, after almost five years of war, most of the minesweepers in use have been specially built for the job and are manned by the "hostilities only" officers and men of the R.N.V.R.

Not only were the minesweepers the first to go in, but they are likely to be among the last to get out of the war. After the last war it took about a year to clean up the mines, even those mines whose positions were known. It will take longer this time. A great number of mines have been laid by air and their positions are not known, so that there will be enormous areas which must be swept before the seas will be safe.

These are the boats the Royal Navy calls its charwomen. We feel inclined to the belief that cleaning women will see little harm to the dignity of their calling through sharing a name so honourably borne.

A BIT CONFUSING

The salesman stopped his car at a farmhouse and asked the way to the nearest hotel. The farmer pointed down the road.

"You turn left at the schoolhouse," he advised. "Then you go straight ahead till you get to Gad Shor's house. There you take the left fork in the road and keep ridin' for five miles."

The salesman nodded.

"That's clear enough," he said. "And where does that bring me?"

The farmer smiled.

"Wal," he announced, "that takes you right back to where we're standing now. Right here."

The salesman's eyes popped.

"Right here!" he echoed. "But I don't understand. Why should I come back here?"

The farmer shifted his plug of tobacco.

"To git the rest of the directions," he explained. "If I told you them all at once, you might git confused!"

PROSPECTS FOR INDIA

It is clearly not possible for us simply to "quit" and leave India to herself unless there is agreement among her own people. We want, as Lord Wavell said, an India "which can maintain the peace and order and progress which we have endeavored to establish." Our practical sense about orderly development rebels against the lightness with which Mr. Gandhi has spoken of the possibility of anarchy "when the British go." But how contribute to agreement? Lord Wavell said the Congress leaders must abandon their policy of non-co-operation and abstraction but "not in sackcloth and ashes—that helps no one." There may here be the germ of conciliation. The Moderates recently urged that the Congress leaders agree to treat their mass-disobedience resolution "as a dead letter," with the inference that the Government should accept this as an adequate renunciation. Would it not at least be possible for the Government now to allow the representatives of other Indian groups to meet the Congress leaders in prison in order to find out what the prospects are?—Manchester Guardian.

BRITISH BREAKFAST

As everybody who has lived in England knows, an Englishman believes in breakfasting most heartily, and when an Englishman invites you to breakfast with him, you know that you will have an adequate equipment for beginning the day; and the old-fashioned New Englander followed the same fashion.

An Englishman may start with tea and toast in his bedroom, but by the time he is dressed, he is ready for the substantial viands. It is on the Continent of Europe that the light breakfast of coffee and rolls got its start, but a Frenchman or a German always aims to have a second breakfast two or three hours later.

We think, however, that the substantial breakfast of the Englishman had much to do with his ability to outstrip all his neighbours in the conquest of the earth, and that the substantial breakfast of the New England Yankee has had much to do with his dominating influence on this continent. When he moved west he took his habits along with him, and the Middle Westerner, of New England antecedents, ate at the breakfast table as substantial a meal as his forefathers back in New England.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Bible Message

God, believe also in me....

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father....

If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you....

These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you. (John 14: 1, 12, 15-18, 25, 26.)

Unconsidered Trifles

One man was buying some meat in the butcher shop when another entered in a great hurry and rudely interrupted.

"Give me some dog meat, quick," he said to the butcher. Then, turning to the other customer: "I hope you don't mind my cutting in?"

"Not at all," said the other, acidly. "Not if you're that hungry."

A very mean man went into a glassware shop in search of a present for a friend. After spending some time looking at different articles and finding them all too expensive, he at last saw a vase which was broken in several pieces. He enquired the price, and finding it was practically nothing decided to have it sent to his friend, hoping that he would think it had been broken in transit.

Accordingly, he asked the assistant to pack it and dispatch it. A few days later he received the following reply from his friend:

"Thanks for the vase. So thoughtful of you to wrap up each piece separately."

HEADED FOR SUMMER—There's such a wide range of hats this summer that there is just no excuse for the girl who doesn't wear a hat because, as she says, she just can't find the right hat. In every price range and for every type and taste, there's a hat. Useful and pretty is this swashbuckling Everitt needlepoint embroidery model made of 100 per cent. virgin wool. The red and white striped crown offers a contrast to the all-white brim. Hundreds of tiny airholes make it cool and porous for summer wear.

USE CHILDPOWER IN SUMMER

Scrap Paper Drive Proved Youths Willing to Cooperate When Needs Arise In Home.

VACATION time is upon us and millions of harassed women are being driven to the verge of insanity by the incessant cries of their offspring: M-o-t-h-e-r, what'll I do next? M-o-t-h-e-r, gimme a dime for a chocolate soda. M-o-t-h-e-r, can't I go to the movies? M-o-t-h-e-r, can't I go in swimming? M-o-t-h-e-r can't I have a date with Johnnie? And so on and on and on.

To all mothers, except those rich enough to pass the buck to summer camps, the day when school lets out is the day of wrath that they dread almost as much as they do the Judgment Day. For then their children are turned out to sweep over them like an invading army, leaving wrecked nerves and broken furniture and devastated pantries behind them.

Mother's Worries Multiplied

And what to do with all this oversupply of youthful energy and restlessness; how to keep idle hands busy and find amusement for those who have not yet learned to entertain themselves; how to keep Johnnie from getting in with a gang and Susie from going boy-crazy, presents a problem that starts Mother's hair to turning gray. It makes her wonder what old bachelor or old maid started that myth about the "good old summertime."

To the mothers who are wailing that they don't know what to do with their children during vacation, I would humbly offer this suggestion:

Utilize the child-power that is going to waste in every house in the land in which there are youngsters. Gear this activity that is so often misdirected to the domestic machinery and make it help turn the wheels. The reason children are so often a summer pest is because during the school year they are kept busy. Their time is rationed and when vacation comes and they are turned out on their own, they are bored to death. They don't know what to do with themselves.

Nothing is more ironic than that the world is full of over-worked mothers, while their children are pining for something to do and taking courses at the gymnasium for exercise. And if Mother would divide up the household chores among her boys and girls and make each responsible for his or her own job, it would save her a nervous breakdown and bring the whole family together on a basis of mutual helpfulness.

Children Like to Cooperate With Parents

And don't say it can't be done. It can. Children will always cooperate with their parents if the parents will let them share in whatever is being done and permit them to have some authority and get some credit. It is when Mother and Father boss the show and treat the children like little slaves that they rebel.

Furthermore, letting children have a hand in running the home will give them a practical education just as valuable as anything they could learn in school. For the boys and girls who have been taught how to market and cook and darn and patch will make the husbands and wives whose value will be above rubies in the servantless era we are facing and who will never get into the divorce court. For who would quarrel with a mate who could cook a steak bordelaise or whose coffee endeared him to all who partook of it.

The amazing thing that children did in collecting scrap and paper gave ample proof of their ability to turn their energies into useful projects as well as mischief. Let us no longer waste the child-power of the land.

The groom's aunt also received wearing a gown of forget-me-not blue silk jersey, and a corsage of Sweetheart roses. ## Father Performs Marriage for Barbara R. Sisco

MILLBROOK, June 20.—(ENS).—Baskets of peonies, syringa and arbutus, banking the chancel from the steps to the altar in St. Andrew's United church, provided a beautiful setting for the marriage on Saturday afternoon of Barbara Ruth, second daughter of Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco, of Millbrook, to FO. Harry Vernon Ryerse, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. C. S. Ryerse, of Port Dover, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, who also performed the wedding ceremony, the bride wore a floor-length dress of white Duchess satin with fringed bodice, yoke of finely tucked georgette, long sleeves coming to a point over the hand, and full gathered skirt. Her embroidered tulle veil was of finger-tip length, held in place with coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a cascale bouquet of red Delight roses with bouvardia. White kid sandals completed the ensemble.

The attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Dorothy Sisco, of Toronto, and Mrs. George Sedgewick, of Peterborough, who wore street-length dresses of blue and rose crepe, respectively, with appliqued georgette yokes coming to a deep point in the back, fitted bodices and gathered skirts white shoes and gloves, and carried bouquets of sweet peas and pink Rapture roses. Their hats were of fine mohair straw in bonnet style, with tiny flowers around the front, Miss Sisco's being in pink pastel shade and Mrs. Sedgewick's in blue. Mr. Robert Lee, of Port Dover, was groomsman, and the ushers were Henry Gray of Terrace, B.C., and George Sisco, of Kingston, brother-in-law and brother of the bride respectively.

Miss E. L. Hetherington played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register Mrs. James L. Larmer, of Peterborough, and Mr. Gray sang, "O Perfect Love."

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Sisco, mother of the bride, wearing a street-length dress of turquoise blue crepe, with corsage of pink roses, white hat and gloves. The groom's father, Mr. Carl S. Ryerse, was also in the receiving line with the bridal party. The bride's table was laid in the study and had a color scheme of pink and white, the fluted streamers being laid on a white damask cloth, centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, and with pink and white blossoms in low crystal containers. Tea was poured by Mrs. Ernest Bradley, of Mansonville, Quebec, aunt of the bride, and by Mrs. Frank Ryerse the groom's aunt.

Serving more than fifty guests were the bride's sister, Mrs. Henry Gray, Mrs. J. L. Larmer, Mrs. Reginald Edmunds Miss Dora Ketchen, of Havelock, and Miss Merilyn Dougall, of Cowanville, Quebec.

The bride and groom left on their honeymoon to Toronto and points east, the former travelling in a pink silk jersey dress, with blue-jewelled belt, hat in natural color embroidered with wool roses in matching tint, white shoes, and accessories. She carried a Chesterfield top coat in brown tone, with velvet collar. Upon their return they will reside in New Brunswick.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

When planning your wardrobe for your summer vacation be sure to include several lovely prints, with June roses blossoming all over them. Prints are becoming to all figures. Larger flowered prints for the tall woman, smaller patterns for the short, stout woman are dresses they will wear with ease and grace. Prints flashed with white, and flushed with color will make you look lovely in the midsummer sun or in the moonlight. Some of the newest summer shades are shown in the new rayon mess materials, are coral, home-beige, powder, purple and many others. These have exquisite color contrast in the flowers, that are woven into the material. The styles shown are on simple lines, but very smart. The tub dresses of cottons are worn any hour of the day, and on every occasion. They are worn at weddings as well as picnics, for town and country, for dancing or for afternoons at home on the verandah. These new cotton chambrays, piques voiles, muslins, twills and dimities come in styles that look smart on the young daughter of the house as well as mother and grandmother. They are shown in the one-piece frock, and the coat style with either high or low necklines, short or three-quarter length sleeves. Then there are the printed sheers which make a perfect summer dress. The dark backgrounds are enlivened with small floral patterns, in white, aqua, mauve, lime green, rose, and many others. One very lovely sheer I saw, had a background of white, with the small daisy pattern in aqua. This dress was made in one-piece style with a three-quarter length box coat of the plain aqua. A white straw beret trimmed with aqua was worn with it, and white shoes and gloves completed a very charming and smart ensemble.

The pretty light shades in felts are beginning to be shown in all the smart shop windows, and they look so chic with plaid and striped ginghams that are now so much in the fashion picture. Try one of these smart felts when you buy your summer dresses, be among the first to wear one.

Treasure Hunt Is Given Bride

OMEMEE, June 19 (ENS) —A novel entertainment was planned by Mrs. Arthur Williamson and Mrs. Thomas J. Pogue in honour of Miss Patricia Hunt, whose marriage to Sgt. Charles Weir, R.C.A.F., takes place in Omemee this month. It took the form of a Treasure Hunt, the guests doing the searching in groups of three and each treasure being a bridal accessory.

When each trio had found their treasure the group met Miss Hunt, the bride-to-be, and when she was duly adorned with these oddly assorted gifts, all walked back to the home of Mrs. Arthur Williamson, where a beautifully decorated table was laden with lovely gifts. After the guest of honour had opened these she very graciously thanked her friends.

Miss Bernice Smith led in some contests, after which the hostesses served a delightful lunch.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, June 21

Although there are signs of much activity and lively effort in certain directions with a moderate degree of success, yet there may be restrictions, delays, or other thwarting situations to confront, and this with determination, perseverance, hard work as well as clever resourcefulness with keen insight into frustrating circumstances. Employers, superiors, or elders may get in the way or prove a disturbing force, but patience with these, persistence and tenacity in connection with shrewd motion, should eventually secure desired ends.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, although having lively objectives and a keen desire to put them over with skill, shrewdness and constructive ability, yet may encounter tenacious, restrictive and limiting conditions which it may be difficult to circumvent. There may be little support from elders, employers or others of influence, but persistent effort, cleverness, and a quick grasp of underlying situations may lead to final victory despite tenacious obstacles or opposition. Crystallized or static conditions must first be vanquished.

A child born on this day may be naturally clever, talented and possess fine constructive ideas and skills yet may have little encouragement from elders. Perseverance and emotional stability should favor its success.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: I have had to teach my children of 9, 11 and 13 years to prepare their own lunch and they love toasted sandwiches. They can make toasted cheese sandwiches to perfection and would eat them every day I think but I want them to be a little more versatile.

I make a mock pate de fois gras and spread it between bread and dip it in French toast mix and leave it covered on a plate for them to fry. —I also do this with peanut butter and they think they are very special and boast about their cooking prowess to their friends.

Michael, Mary and Dot's Hot Sandwiches.

Spread slices of whole wheat or enriched bread with peanut butter or liver or meat spread. Put together tightly as you would any sandwich. Remove crusts or not, as desired. For 2 sandwiches dip into mixture of 1 beaten egg mixed with ½ cup milk and ⅛ teaspoon salt and shake of pepper. If these have to be made beforehand drain on plate and cover. Fry in bubbling butter on both sides until browned. A little sugar added to the egg mixture, makes the toast brown more quickly.

Dot's Special Sandwich.

Four slices toast, 1 cup sauce, ¼ cup catsup, 4 hard-boiled eggs, 2 strips crisp bacon, sweet pickles. Cover hot buttered toast with cream sauce combined with catsup. Cut eggs in two and place 2 halves on each slice of toast. Place half strips of crisp bacon over each sandwich and garnish with pickle slices. Mother-of-six.

Thanks, how about some "specials" from the other three?

Men's Softball Game Goes Twelve Innings

Plazas spotted St. Peter's three runs in the first inning of Monday night's City League game at Riverside Park, evened up the count by scoring a run in the third and two in the fifth and then battled until the 12th inning before finally beating the Saints 6 to 5 in the first extra innings tussle and most exciting game of the current season.

It was a pitcher's battle between big Dave Wilson for Plazas and Bill Moorhead who made his 1944 debut with the Saints. Wilson got away to a bad start, yielding three hits and a base on balls for three runs in the opening frame but he blanked St. Peter's for the next ten innings before finally yielding two unearned runs in the second half of the 12th frame when the Saints, down three markers, rallied with two out to pick up a pair of counters and make the ending a photo finish.

Fans 15

Wilson set a new strikeout record for the season by whiffing fifteen of the losers, including the side in the tenth.

Moorhead only had two strikeouts but he pitched steady ball throughout and was especially effective when Plazas had runners in a scoring position.

Both teams fielded snappily behind this good pitching. Al Courneya handled eleven chances and Joe Caccavella ten without a skip in the infield for the Saints, and Conroy Stewart and Hollingsworth in the outfield contributed fine running catches. Stewart had one of the feature plays of the day when he dashed in at top speed to catch a fly off balance and turn the grab into a double play. Art Heal made a jumping one-handed catch of a drive from the bat of Mike Conroy and saved the game in the tenth when he went over behind second to knock down Hollingsworth's roller and hold the winning run on third.

Saints got away to a great start. With one away Courneya beat out a trickler to Hawks, Conroy singled past Heal and Murphy walked to fill the bases. A wild pitch scored Courneya, Len Hollingsworth singled to right to send in Conroy and Stewart's fly to left allowed Murphy to register. The next two were easy.

Costly Error

Plazas got one back in the third when Heal singled to centre, Ellis walked and Wilson got an infield hit. Pryde's fly to right was dropped by Hollingsworth but Wilson was forced at second on the play, Heal scoring. Maloney popped up and Burton was tossed out by Courneya.

In the fifth the second-placers evened the count. Heal bunted safely and went to second when the throw got away from Condon. Ellis flied to Courneya, Wilson's sacrifice bunt resulted in the runner being safe when Carlson's throw hit him Pryde hit safely to short and went to second when Murphy threw high and Maloney's outfield fly sent Wilson in with the second run of the inning. Pryde reached third on the play but was called out when he tried to score on a short passed ball.

Wilson had the Saints under control after the second inning until the sixth when Moorhead beat out a bunt and Carlson walked. Wilson, however, struck out Caccavella and Condon hit into a double play.

Plazas wasted two hits in the sixth and again in the seventh. In the first of the tenth Pryde and Burton both hit safely but Blewett rolled to Caccavella for the third out. Saints had a good chance in their half. After Courneya struck out, Conroy doubled to left. Murphy fanned. Hollingsworth singled over second but Heal made a fast play to keep the ball from rolling to the outfield and Conroy was stopped at third.

JOE MAICH — The popular jumping-jack from Brantford, Ont. who meets the rugged Indian wrestler, Chief Thundercloud in the preliminary bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock St. Arena tonight. Maich, one of the most popular of the grapplers to show their wares here is a compact bundle of power and courage who moves around the ring at top speed and backs away from no one, no matter how big or how tough. The Chief he faces here tonight claims to be the best Indian wrestler in the game, but that kind of a reputation is not likely to cause Maich much concern. "I have met a lot of those tough babies" he said in signing for the match and I have found that when you move too fast for them they get bewildered. Then you can move and polish them off." And is exactly what Maich will try to do; he fights them all that way.

Reynolds batted for Stewart and made Wilson's third strikeout of the inning.

Speared Liner

Plazas lost another royal chance in the eleventh when Tucker and Ellis singled but Wilson was called out on a close play at first when Courneya knocked down his liner. Saints had the winning run on third in their half but Wilson struck out Condon.

The second-placers finally won out in the 12th. Pryde, first up, tripled over Reynolds' head when the fielder was slow in judging the drive. Maloney's fly to Conroy enabled Pryde to score after the catch. Burton singled to centre and Blewett walked. Both advanced on Tucker's long fly and scored on Hawks' single through short. Hawks was run down trying to advance on the play.

St. Peter's made it close. Courneya fanned and Conroy popped to Tucker. Murphy singled to right, Hollingsworth walked and Reynolds got a life when Tucker fumbled his roller, filling the bases. Moorhead raised an easy fly back of third and Hawks and Tucker got their signals crossed and allowed the popper to drop for a hit, Murphy and Hollingsworth scoring. With the tieing and winning runs on the bases Carlson rolled to Heal for the third out.

Joe Louis successfully defended his heavyweight championship four years ago tonight by knocking out Arturo Godoy, Chilean challenger, at New York. The end came in the eighth round of a scheduled 15-round bout. It was Louis' 11th successful defence of the title he won in 1937.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20—(AP)—Rain fell briskly during last night's opening concert of the Robin Hood Dell season but cries of "no" went up from the audience of 7,000 at the suggestion that Brahms' Third Symphony end after the third movement. So the orchestra, conducted by Dmitri Mitropoulos, played on and several thousand persons remained in the outdoor bowl despite the downpour.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

With both clubs badly needing a victory the Military Training Centre and the U.E.W. team will clash at Riverside Park tonight in a City League fixture that may have considerable bearing on the final lineups. The two outfits have been showing a marked improvement in their recent starts and both are playing good ball an making it close for all and sundry. The Union team, for example gave both the Plazas and Switchgear tough battles last week and if they can play back to the form shown in those two contests will prove decidedly tough opposition for the Soldiers in tonight's fixture. The pitching of Mac McPherson, Millbrook slowballer was a feature of both those games and his delivery bothered some of the league's hardest hitters. If he pitches for the Union tonight he is likely to have the same effect upon the Soldier batters. Just who the Military Training Centre will use is not certain but Doug Procyk, the Winnipeg right-hander may get the call. The game is set for 7 o'clock sharp. Tomorrow night the contesting teams in the City League will be Switchgear and Soldiers, another tidy argument that should provide its quota of excitement.

Westclox Seconds, otherwise the Baby Bens to distinguish them from their senior club the Big Bens, will be seen in action tonight at the Ashburnham Bowl when they clash with the Lock Works in what should prove to be a good battle all the way. Both outfits have a lot of talent new to the league this year and the players are benefitting by their experience and showing more class each time out. On paper the two are very evenly matched and the decision will go to the team getting the benefit of the breaks. Tomorrow night Aircraft and Brintons who met in a postponed game the other night with the former winning will come right back again for another contest and this time the intermediate champs say that there will be a different kind of game. They expect to have their strongest team out and hope to give the second-place Aircraft outfit a real argument for the honors. Norma Strickland will probably be named as Aircraft pitcher on this occasion with Bernice Stinson or Phyllis Corrigan getting the nod from Brintons.

Really A Ball Game

City Softball League teams are hitting their stride now and the last half dozen games have been good battles with last night's 12-innings game between Plazas and St. Peter's topping the season's offerings for excitement. There were half a dozen places when a hit would have meant the ball game but Wilson for the winners and Bill Moorhead for the Saints were very effective in the pinches and the million-dollar blow was long in coming. Wilson struck out fifteen men for a new mark for the 1944 campaign and Joe Blewett taking over behind the bat for Eddie Starr who was an absentee set a fresh record for catchers by having 19 putouts and an assist. Fielding of Courneya, Caccavella and Condon for St Peter's stood out all the way and the outfielders covered a lot of ground in gathering in a dozen flies. Turning point in the game came when Gene Reynolds, Saints' pitcher, was sent in to bat for Stewart in the tenth with two runners in scoring position with two out and Wilson struck out the pinch-hitter. Reynolds had to go to centre field and the result was that he was slow in going back for Pryde's drive in the 12th and it went over his head for a triple. Stewart who had been doing some brilliant fielding would probably have gathered that one in and averted a lot of trouble. Games like that will pack the stands for the remainder of the schedule.

We have never seen Emil Verban, the new Card second baseman, who figured in that record breaking double play mark at Cincinnati last Sunday, but after watching Marty Marion in both the International and National Leagues, it's hard to understand how any second sacker could miss starring beside such an accomplished player, says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review. Baseball has had a lot of great shortstops, but we wonder if another surpassed the defensive skill of the St. Louis tall man. Hans Wagner was reaching the trail's end when we saw him in a couple of games, but on the sayso of oldtime experts and the great mark he established, he must have been tops. It has been our good fortune to have watched the hey day performances of such beauties as Glenn Wright, Rabbit Maranville, Jack Barry, Roger Peckinpaugh, Deacon Scott, Dave Bancroft and Dick Bartell, but none of these boys impressed us as much as Marion, and some day we're going to seek the opinion of some expert for the real lowdown on the mound city thin fellow. He's the real picture worker and such a performer is capable of a lot of accomplishments around the difficult infield spot.

The Grand Old Man

They are getting ready to do honor to Connie Mack, Philadelphia's "Mr. Baseball," who is about to celebrate his 50th year as a manager, writes Bill Westwick in his Ottawa Journal sport column. Mack long since has become a national institution, and baseball has never produced anybody quite like him, and probably never will again. Mack has won five World Series with the Athletics, nine American League pennants, and has been runner-up a half dozen times. The remarkable Philadelphia leader a few years ago received an honorary degree from the Pennsylvania Military College, and so proud of him are they in Philadelphia that he also was awarded the Edward Bok Award, a rare honor paid to the "Philadelphian who had done most for the city." With the award went a cheque for $10,000. Throughout the years he has made a great contribution to baseball without noise or ostentation. He's regarded as something of a physical and mental marvel. He neither drinks nor smokes and no one has ever heard him use a stronger term than "My Gracious" or "By Jingo."

Few managers have made a greater success of managing tempermental players, continues the Westwick tribute. He had most success of any pilot in handling the legendary Rube Waddell, who was a pitching genius, but also a highly eccentric one. Waddell had a habit of disappearing regularly, but Mack is said to have welcomed him back with a smile and got more pitching from him than anyone else in the game. They tell a story of how Waddell was once advertised to pitch an important game in Detroit. They drew a great crowd to see the brilliant Waddell, but Rube had other ideas and left on one of his usual excursions. His failure to appear was a disappointment for the crowd and embarrassing for Mack, and Eddie Plank was forced to go in and replace him. Late that night Waddell drew up to the hotel in a tallyho. His face was cut and scratched. Mack is said to have greeted him with a smile and asked what happened. The Rube had spent the day on the Canadian side in Windsor playing lacrosse, with frequent interruptions for refreshments. Mack just led him away to get his wounds dressed. There was never a harsh word from Mack and Waddell promptly won four games in a row for him.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The draw has been made for the men's club singles and it is posted up in the club house. Groups No. 3 and 4 will play next Monday night so its up to the bowlers to see who's who.

The Friday night committee has asked us to announce that it will be men's rinks on Friday night.

And we have another announcement to make. The Lindsay Ladies' Club is holding its open tournament this Thursday, June 22, instead of Thursday, June 29, as first advertised.

The schedule games roll merrily along. A full house was again in operation Monday night. And as far as we could see there were very few subs. In another week or so we might be able to have a line on the teams that may be picked to win the group honors or at least come very close to it.

Additional Firemen

Alderman James Dutton suggested using temporary help, and Chief Gimblett remarked he didn't feel it was feasible. Alderman Dutton then suggested that when a man was hired, it be on the understanding that he be given 3 months notice. In that way, temporary employees had a feeling of security knowing that they would not be fired out in the cold, on short notice.

Mr. Scott favored the suggestion and avowed:

"I don't think men should be barred from temporary service just because they are around 46, over the age limit you are setting. Men that age may have many useful years ahead. If anyone had told you chief that you would be through work with the Department at 46, you'd have laughed at them. For the duration of the war you may have have to relax some of the desired higher standards.

Chief Gimblett remained obdurate that he would have none but men physically fit to man the Fire Department. He said with a reduced staff he could not afford to get men with serious ailments on the brigade.

Trained Expert.

A second clash occurred over who should decide on what a serious fire constituted. Chief Gimblett disagreed with Mr. Scott that the Council and the union should be the ones to choose it, saying that as Fire Chief it was his responsibility and his decision.

Alderman Dutton declared that he felt the Chief was right. He was the only man qualified when a building was burning to decide what a serious fire was.

In attempting to smooth out the difficulties, Mr. Scott provided a definition which read: "A serious fire is any fire call turned in from the main business section, from any major industry, or institution, or any fire which the Chief finds is getting away on the men while they fight it."

"What about a serious fire at a residence?" Alderman Herbert Bradburn asked. "The people are paying taxes to get protection and they should have it."

The Fire Marshal answered that a crew of six men from the Peterborough Brigade with the training they had received, were capable of handling any residence fire.

Will Work Till July.

Fireman Garnet Brown, speaking for the union, said the men were wholeheartedly behind the Chief, and appreciated the difficulty the Council were having in getting more men. They have promised to work until the end of June under the old system, but after that they are promising nothing.

The only grievance the firemen presented was that of being called in to the station when they were off duty every time a box alarm was turned in. Nine times out of ten it was only a grass or chimney fire or false alarm. Other than that the Department was satisfied with existing arrangements.

Chief Gimblett said that since the beginning of the year until June 15, 424 alarms had been turned in. Of these only 35 were fires causing damage. He said that this was a whole year's work done in less than six months. So far this year one shift has been called back when it was off duty 33 times and the other 32 times.

Alderman William Ovens and Mr. Scott felt that a new system could be worked out whereby all off-shift men did not report in to the station the minute a box alarm came in, but could wait more specific orders from the Chief.

It was suggested that his car be equipped with radio equipment similar to what the police use, and he could notify the Fire Hall from the scene of the fire, if extra help was really needed. The men could be called in five or ten minutes sooner and that might mean the difference between success and failure.

Petty Matters.

Fireman Virg Carr reiterated what Mr. Brown said. He said that the men were well satisfied with the deal they were getting from the Council and the Chief. But he recalled that for 20 years the men off shift had been called in for grass fires or ashes, and they wanted an improvement. He praised the assistance given the union by Alderman Sullivan, chairman of the Fire and Light Committee.

The Chief explained that there were 22 men, including himself in the Brigade. This meant 10 men on each shift. During a week there are usually two men off together, for half days. Then there may be one on holidays or off sick, and this cuts the staff down, and makes more work for men supposedly off duty.

After an hour's talking, Chief Gimblett said that he would meet the executive of the union this morning and discuss with them ways of having the men respond to calls for big fires and leaving them alone for minor things which could be handled by a small crew.

Grace Fields Entertains 70 Prisoners

SANTA MONICA, Calif., June 20—(AP)— Prisoners of war, far from their native land, still laugh when you give them the chance, says Comedienne Gracie Fields.

The Lancashire lass and her film-producer husband, Monty Banks, provided the opportunity in the form of a swimming, dining and dancing party for some 70 Italian war prisoners because, she explained with a chuckle today:

"If I can get people to laugh and smile, that's what I like to do."

The guests progressively smiled, laughed—then sang. They were from a labor battalion at Camp Haan. They've sworn allegiance to the United States and they aren't guarded or encircled by barbed wire, but for these veterans of Tunisia and Libya the party was their first in years.

They came in trucks to the Banks-Fields home, where parties have been given for American service men almost every Sunday since the war started. They played tennis, swam in the pool, danced with a score of girls from Los Angeles' Italian colony and talked with them in Italian.

Banks, born Mario Bianchi in Italy, donned an apron, prepared and served spaghetti, salami, smoked fish, turkey, salad and raviolis. He poured, too, the red and white wine.

Grace sang in Italian, "O Sole Mio," "Funiculi Funicula" and other airs that made a hit with the natives when she entertained American troops in Sicily last September.

Giants Move Nearer Top Position

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Mel Ott's New York Giants, whose earlier five and seven-game winning streaks startled baseball experts, still are the surprise of the National League.

The Polo Grounders climbed into a virtual tie for second place with Pittsburgh Pirates by walloping Brooklyn 10-2 last night in the day's only major league game.

The Giants now have won 30 and lost 25 games for .545 percentage. Pittsburgh officially is credited with 28 wins against 22 losses for .560. Counting another Pirate defeat, from their unfinished game of May 21 with the Phils, reduces the Pittsburgh edge to a mere four percentage points. The May 21 game was called after eight innings with the Phils ahead, 9-4.

A crowd of 25,140 paid at Ebbets Field to see the Giants wallop the Brooks for the seventh time in 11 tries. Hal Gregg, starting Brooklyn pitcher, was stung for six runs in a big second inning that made things easy for Harry Feldman, Giant right-hander.

Only one of the six runs was earned, Bobby Ragan and Dixie Walker contributing two costly errors.

Mimico Beats St. Kitts At Lacrosse

TORONTO, June 20 — Mimico Lakeshores started their senior Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association tilt hunt off on the right foot last night when they tipped the haughty St. Catharines Athletics by a 10-9 score.

It was a regular old-fashioned fixture, fast and furious checking plenty of good sniping, and some real goaltending, culminating in a Frank Merriwell finish that saw the homesters clinch the verdict with but 20 seconds to go.

A good crowd was on hand for the opener at Mimico, and a better one will likely attend Thursday night when the Mimico boys are hosts to the revamped Burlington team, which will play in the Hamilton suburb this evening.

Keen-eyed Bill Whittaker in the nets for the Garden City crew stood out, and only smart defensive work on the part of the homesters kept those clever marksmen, the "Three M's," Morden, Mackie and McDonald, from sweeping the visitors to an opening night triumph.

Mimico led 3-2 at the end of the first canto. It was 7-6 in their favor at the half. They were ahead 8-7 in the third. The visitors staged a heavy offensive in the last stanza, and went into the lead. McDonald drew a penalty for fouling Love, giving veteran Joe Murphy a chance to flip in the tying counter. It was then that Gord Gair broke the visitors' hearts—he sailed up with but 20 seconds to go and flipped in a backhander that copped the verdict. Morden with three and McDonald with two were high for the visitors. Love materially aided the homesters with a trio of counters.

Only other major penalties of the night were a five minute to Cole and a 10-minute to Lee for pugilistic proclivities.

Maurice Murphy, Mimico, and Claude Clarke, Hamilton, were the officials.

"JOVINE" IS FIRST IN FOURTH AT AQUEDUCT—Above is a view of the finish of the Norse King, 4th race at Aqueduct race track, New York, showing "Jovine," Jockey Atkinson in the saddle, winning from "Dustman" jockeyed by E. Arcaro, Dustman was a hot 3 to 5 favorite.

Red Wings Move Into Top Spot

By The Associated Press

Eddie Malone, Rochester catcher, batted the Red Wings into first place in the tight International League Baseball League race last night.

Coming up in the 15th inning with the bases loaded and one out Malone singled to beat Baltimore 5-4, not only ending the long contest, but also knocking the Orioles from the top rung.

The Wings, who were third before the game started, had to come from behind twice. Baltimore held a 3-1 edge until the seventh and went ahead again in the top of the 13th. Sturdy's scratch hit, Held's safe bunt, a sacrifice and a walk set the stage for Malone's winning smack in the 15th.

Toronto and Newark split a double-header. Newark took the opener, 11-10 on Kuk's single in the last inning. Alex Mustaikis pitched Toronto to a 5-1 victory in the afterpiece.

Other games were rained out.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

With Frank Zak, former Toronto shortstop, the only player hitting better than .300, the Pittsburgh Pirates are causing wonderment in ball circles generally over their ability to cling to second place in the standing of the National League. A showdown has been reached in the matter of keeping close to the first-place Cardinals with the opening tonight of a crucial 21-game stretch on the home diamond during which the Pirates will cross bats with other first-division contenders including St. Louis, Cincinnati and New York. Zak's batting average is .452 for his 22 games.

Promoter Jack Kearns of Chicago last night announced the matching of Willie Pep, New York's featherweight champion, and Willie Joyce of Gary, Ind., holder of the California lightweight title, for a 10-round bout July 7 at White Sox Park.

After a 10-day illness at Chicago, Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox rejoined the team at St. Louis, declaring he preferred to be with the squad than listen to the play-by-play description of their defeats over the radio.

Guy H. Long, 62, prominently identified with sport organizations for years, died at Hamilton last night after a lengthy illness. He was associated with the Hamilton Tigers, Hamilton Olympic Club, Hamilton Row Club, the Y.M.C.A. and the Hamilton Central Collegiate Athletic Association.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 20 —(CP)— A very intricate problem in sport parlance was unearthed in all innocence by Ken (Vancouver Daily Province) McConnell when he referred to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers as a "rugby football" team. That really annoyed followers of the original English Rugby, or rugger.

They contended the Bombers weren't playing rugby, but just plain football—and not the game known as association football or soccer, either. At this point things began to get a little confused, but Ken stuck to his guns, and triumphantly pulled his ace from his sleeve.

He hastened to point out that the body controlling soccer doings in Canada is known as the Dominion Football Association, while the solons of the Canadian football world that numbers Bombers among its ilk are graced by the name, Canadian Rugby Union.

There isn't much answer to that one, except to urge feebly that the name of the Union be changed. Apparently it was christened in the old days when the boys actually played rugby, and before the birth of the distinctive new game. Anyway, the whole thing caused a nice argument.

Hanover's Hammering Hannahs:

It was bargain basement day at a girls' softball game in Hanover, Ont., the other evening. Two teams tangled in a regular fixture, and when the smoke cleared 58 runs had been scored, 44 going to the winners. Seems that the losers hadn't played before in organized ball "before a crowd of critical fans," which made them no end shy.

Incidentally

Tossing the caber and heaving the stane will hold the attention of Pacific Coast Amazons Aug. 5 when the 58th annual Caledonian games are held in Vancouver. In line with the current trend toward things female, the girls are expected to turn out for the events in larger numbers than ever before. . . . Hoe Wright, 80-year-old staunch devotee of things scullwise is dubious of prospects of holding the annual Royal Henley this year. "Regatta! How can you hold one on 13 ounces?" he is reported to have snorted. Harold Jackson, bad man of the ice lanes with Detroit Red Wings, is versatile as all getout. He says he is a softball slugger of note, a baseball pitcher of renown, and now he is seriously thinking of entering politics to add to his laurels.

100 Horses Arrive For Hamilton Meet

HAMILTON, June 20.—With several stables checking in during the past few days, the equine colony at the Hamilton Jockey Club track has passed the 100 mark. That number will be augmented almost hourly from now until the bugle sounds for the opening day sport at the picturesque Hamilton track on Saturday.

According to the H.J.C. management a total of 511 thoroughbreds will be stabled on the grounds by opening day. All the 'top' stables which have been flying their silks on the Ontario circuit this season will be seen in action.

Among them will be the thoroughbreds of Fred Schelke, including the handicap star, Shepperton, and the Garden City Stable, Charles Hemstead, J. E. Frowde, Seagram, Three J's Stable, MacDonald Stable, Montana Stable Parkwood Stable, Chris Stable, Four Oaks Stable and Harry Giddings.

There is one thing certain, when the first summer meeting of the Hamilton club gets under way on Saturday, Racing Secretary A. (Tony) Simms will not want for the lack of racing material to fill the many handicaps, allowance, turf and overnight events during the seven-day session.

NEW YORK, Jnue 20 — (AP).— When lightweight Ike Williams first started boxing, even the dough he brought home failed to overcome his mother's objections..... Then one day in the corner grocery she overhead a couple of the neighbors discussing young Isaiah's fights....Said one: "He's winning a lot of fights.".....That was the clincher and Mrs. Williams told Ike: "As long as you're a winning fighter, I won't stand in your way. But you gotta promise me you'll stop this business soon as folks start saying you're a losing fighter."

Cleaning the cuff:

The boys along Jacob's Beach tab Laurient Bouchard, the Montreal heavyweight, as a "great prospect" although he took a licking the last time out...It took Charley Osgood, 17-year-old Somerville, Mass., High School pitcher just signed by the Dodgers, to teach Leo Durocher how to teach Hal Gregg to "cover up" his pitches....From that we should judge that Osgood is good....Cecil Tyson, the Phillies' sub first baseman, used to be a tobacco auctioneer....But it's only out in the left field stands that you'll hear: "It's the Phillies, two to one."

Just about the time Pte. Fritzie Zivic finished his basic training at Keesler Field, Miss., and moved on to a new assignment, the field dropped "Commandos" as nickname for its athletic teams. Suppose Fritzie had been demonstrating real Commando tactics in the ring?

Vegetable Crop Skyrockets In Australia

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, June 20—(CP)—Australian triumphs on the food production front are sketched in official figures prepared for members of the touring British and Canadian parliamentary delegations. These victories came despite a reduction of nearly 25 per cent in the number of men engaged in rural industry.

The Commonwealth's vegetable production this year will exceed 1,000,000 tons. This production will come from 500,000 acres compared with an average of 250,000 acres under cultivation before the war.

The statement said that last year Australia canned 50,000,000 pounds of vegetables, compared with 3,000,000 before the war and the target of 112,000,000 pounds this year probably will be exceeded.

Oppose Post-War Plan

The government's Aug. 19 referendum to decide whether it should be given additional powers for five years after the war to carry out post-war reconstruction plans is meeting opposition.

At an interstate conference of the United Australia organization in Melbourne participants agreed to do all in their power to defeat the referendum.

A statement issued by R. G. Menzies, leader of the organization and of one opposition group in the House of Representatives, said it considered that powers relating to employment and production would permit indefinite continuance of industrial conscription and socialization of industry and would perpetuate a system in which a centralization of power would make parliament subordinate to officialdom.

Before long there will be serving in the Australian legation in Ottawa and Washington some of the young people of Australia who now are being trained for the Australian diplomatic service.

Australia is later in the field than Canada in the establishment of legations abroad but looking to future developments steps have been taken for providing special training for diplomatic cadets who in two or three years will be serving in London, Ottawa, Washington, Chungking or Moscow.

5,278 Canadians In Prison Camps

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—Some 5,278 Canadians were held prisoners of war on May 31, scattered through enemy camps in Germany, Hungary and the Far East, it was disclosed today in the wartime information board's monthly publication "Canada at War."

A tabulation shows the Navy with eight, the Army 3,629, the Air Force 1,496 and the Merchant Marine with 145. Of the 5,278, total, 3,700 are held in the European theatre and 1,578 in the Far East.

"Canada at War" recalls that while Japan had signified her intention of abiding by the provisions of the international convention on treatment of prisoners, she has failed to do so "and very little detailed information is available concerning the men held in Japanese-held camps."

On the backs of their clothing the letters "P.W." were displayed prominently — for prisoner of war. A military police escort joined them as they walked away.*

Mackenzie Lauds Canadian Legion

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie told a closing session of the Canadian Legion educational services convention here today that their work was "the most constructive work done in Canada in this war."

He said education was the key to post-war re-establishment and he asked for suggestions as to how the Government could improve its program in that respect.

He added:

"That period after the cease fire and before our gallant fighting men are back in civil life is a period in which your efforts can be of great import. We have worked out plans for demobilization and in that, education must play a great part and whoever is entrusted to do this work must rely very much upon the work you have done."

Reporter Jarred On M.T.B. Ride

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

AN INVASION PORT IN ENGLAND, June 20—(CP Cable)—I'm going to spend next Saturday night in camp writing letters. Twelve hours aboard the M.T.B. 431 produced enough action to last this landlubber for some time to come though the crew really weren't kidding when they apologized because "we didn't run into any excitement."

For 12 hours last Saturday night and early Sunday the crew of the M.T.B. 431 and one anxious correspondent cruised the English Channel, running at one time within three miles of Cherbourg and drawing fire from shore batteries that fell uncomfortably close. Those "near misses" shook the craft from stem to stern.

The M.T.B. 431, Lieut. Pat Baldwin of Baddock, N.S., skipper, was one of a flotilla of motor torpedo boats that put out from this invasion port on the English Channel long before dark Saturday. We patrolled up and down the French coast off Cherbourg without seeing any enemy vessels. Two or three times we raced off in pursuit of E-boats reported in our area, but each time the enemy gave us the slip.

The men of the M.T.B.'s were disappointed when they had to start back to base without having encountered any R-boats. R-boats are easy meat for the M.T.B.'s as they mostly are used in escort work. The E-boat is an offensive weapon and is tough to handle, but the M.T.B.'s will race into them with everything they have—machine-guns and Oerlikons, two-pounders and torpedoes.

The first job of the M.T.B. is to seek out the enemy and it has been extremely successful. Officers of the coastal forces are confident the M.T.B.'s alone could break any attempt the Germans might make to break out and harry the invasion shipping filling the Channel.

Mystery Surrounds Death Of Child

KITCHENER, June 20 — (CP) — Coroner L. V. Lang is investigating the death of an 18-months-old child, found beside its unconscious mother in their home here.

The parents are Mr. and Mrs. William K. Smythe. The father was summoned from work to learn his child was dead and that his wife had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

An autopsy will be performed on the child later today. The mother is still unconscious and in a grave condition in hospital.

A bottle of baby's milk formula was found nearby and the coroner said he thought Mrs. Smythe had been feeding the child either shortly before or at the time death came.

TURNS THE TABLES—L.-Cpl. D. C. Keeton of Meath Park, Sask., shown here with some of his booty was taken prisoner with 12 other Canadians fighting in France but he escaped. He did not return alone, however—he brought back 125 German prisoners. The weapons he is holding were part of his booty, a German Mauser rifle and a Luger pistol.

Signal Corps Works Fast Sending News

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 20 — (CP Cable) — Four hard-working and ingenious members of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals began operating the first wireless sets for sending press copy to England two days after the landing and have been sending it day and night since then.

They were Cpl. Bill Brown and L. Cpl. Frank Stephenson, both of Winnipeg and Sigmn. C. T. H. Clifford, Toronto and George Lancaster, Montreal.

After getting established they have been helped by several British signalmen and thousands of words daily have been cleared from this communication centre.

They crossed the Channel D-Day but weren't able to get ashore with their equipment until the second day after the assault. Then they set up two light airborne wireless sets in trenches in Courseulles, one of the spots where the Canadians stormed ashore.

The signalmen sent brief "takes" of war correspondents' stories immediately despite bad atmospheric conditions and enemy jamming of their transmission. The stories went directly to the ministry of information in London, the supreme commands press headquarters.

This was the first press link from France to England . There is not a war correspondent in the beachhead who doesn't owe a debt of gratitude to these Canadian signalmen and their British colleagues. They went through a hectic sniper alarm and were under fire when the German dropped anti - personnel bombs around their trenches.

Now, they have moved from Courseulles to a spot where they have more solid protection than a trench.

When faster and larger wireless sets, with teletype keyboards, arrive this will allow almost unlimited wireless transmission. These four Canadians and British signalmen will operate the new equipment.

O'Connor, and the past president, Mrs. James Black. Special prayers were said for the safety of all in the services and for peace. # Honor Memory Of Omemee Boy

OMEMEE, June 20 — (ENS) — A great many friends and relatives of the late Sgt. Clifford Veals, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Veals, Omemee, who paid the supreme sacrifice in Italy on May 22, gathered in Reaboro Baptist church on Sunday afternoon to honor his memory.

Alvin Porteous, student pastor of the church conducted the service, assisted in the pulpit by Rev. P. C. Reed of Lindsay, a former pastor, and Rev. Howard J. Veals of Omemee, recently returned from China.

Lieutenant Albert Watkins, who has recently been invalided home from the war front in Italy, and who is at present undergoing a series of operations in Christie Street Military Hospital, Toronto, was present and addressed the congregation, telling in his quietly sincere manner, something of the work which the late Sgt. Veals had done in Sicily and Italy. Lieut. Watkins told of having conversation with officers in Sgt. Veals' regiment in Italy, both before and after his death, who paid high tribute to the courage and efficiency with which the young soldier carred out his duties, and to his popularity among his comrades. Lieut. Watkins also brought to the bereaved family a personal message from Major Stroud of Oshawa, who too is convalescing in Christie Street Hospital, and who was, before his injury, Sgt. Veals' commanding officer in Italy.

Rev. Howard Veals based his remarks mainly on portions of letters received from Sgt. Veals by different friends and members of the family. These quotations showed clearly the high courage, and the deep Christian faith which he carried with him into battle.

Rev. P. C. Reed, who was pastor of Reaboro church when Sgt. Veals attended as a young man, spoke of the wonderful work done by him in the church and the Young People's Union. He referred to Sgt. Veals as "the happy Christian warrior."

During the service Mrs. Albert Watkins sang a number which had at one time been especially enjoyed by Sgt. Veals when she sang it in his home some years ago—"His eye is on the Sparrow and I Know He Watches Me."

Sgt. Clifford Veals will long be remembered in this community for his ever ready smile and happy disposition, his primary consideration of others, and his firm faith.

THIS SIMPLE PLAN WILL HELP YOU

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Send for the Budget Calendar without obligation—Then join the Budgeteers!

HERE'S a new kind of budget book to help you do your part on the home front! It shows a simple way to plan your spending in wartime—a way to make your dollars do more for you and for your country.

Your job on the home front

Out of your pay cheques must now come larger contributions, war savings, higher taxes—money you gladly give or lend to help bring victory sooner. On what's left you have the job of keeping your family going—of paying all your regular expenses—of staying out of avoidable debt. That's a big job. But the better you do it the more you help to keep the home front strong.

You can make that job easier if you plan your spending. Know what you are going to do with each pay cheque before you spend it. To help you plan your spending we want to send you the Budget Calendar. This is a budget method first published by Household Finance as a service to customers. Now, when war makes budgeting so important for everyone, we are sending the Budget Calendar to all who request a copy.

A simple way to budget

You will find in the Calendar a new way to go about budgeting—a way that makes your planning easy and simple. The book doesn't attempt to tell you how much you should allow for this or for that. It doesn't ask you to try to fit your life into a fixed spending pattern. You merely start with the expenses you now have and then plan to pay those expenses with what you have to spend. It's this new approach to budgeting—this, looking squarely at what you yourself face—that makes this plan really work. At the same time it does away with endless bookkeeping!

Budgeteers get special help

Those who use the Budget Calendar seriously are invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. They are always welcome to ask for individual help with their problems. Special recognition is given to all Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting.

We here at Household Finance, Canada's oldest and largest Small Loans Company, have been dealing with money problems for many years. We have seen what the right kind of budgeting can do for families who must stretch their incomes as far as possible. The Budget Calendar comes out of our long experience. Don't you want a copy without obligation? We will not annoy you with loan advertising of any kind.

Second Offender Is Fined $50 And Costs

The possession of a badly swollen ankle did not save Lyal Brooks, Haliburton, from a second-offence conviction for drunkenness in police court this morning. Brooks had to be helped into court, was allowed to give his evidence from the prisoner's dock and after the proceedings were over was taken to hospital for an X-ray.

Constable Reg. McMillan testified that Brooks was intoxicated when the officer arrested him on George street and Sgt. John Naples swore that when he saw the accused at the police station later he was drunk.

Brooks blamed his injured ankle for the symptoms he had shown, stating that he had been wearing hob-nail boots, had slipped on a stairway and turned over on his ankle.

In cross-examination, however, he told Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. that he had four drinks of rubbing alcohol on the day he was arrested.

"After four drinks of that he is lucky to be alive," commented the Crown Attorney.

Magistrate Langley registered a conviction and fined Brooks $50 and $2.50 costs or a month in jail.

Council Seeks Improvement Of R.R. Crossings

The Mayor and council bristled with indignation at their meeting Monday night, when a letter from the C.P.R. superintendent dealing with railroad crossings was read.

In answer to a letter sent by the council requesting that some of the crossings be improved, the official wrote that the matter had been investigated and that "someone" had assured him they were now all right.

"They are not all right," Mayor James Hamilton, interrupted. "And I would like to know on whose authority he was assured they were. Our City Engineer should OK them before they are finally accepted as being satisfactory and they can still stand a lot of improvement. I don't think this council appreciates being given the brush-off in such a manner."

"While we're on the subject, something more should be done about the C.N.R. crossings. Some of them are terrible," Alderman Herbert Bradburn asserted.

It was decided to write both railway companies naming the points needed for repair and asking that a report of the completed work be made to Mr. Parsons to check before a final report was turned in to the company.

To Entertain Band

Major Claire Stuart of the Recruiting office appeared as a one-man deputation to suggest to the Council they might like to do something to entertain the members of the C.W.A.C. Pipe and Brass Bands numbering about 80. The group will arrive June 30 and will leave July 5, visiting other centres in the district, while they are here. Major Stuart's suggestion embodied a dinner to be held July 3.

The Aldermen approved the idea of doing something for the girls, but were at a loss as to how it could be done, since July 3 is a city holiday, and with labor problems, no hotel would be likely to take on the project. The matter was finally left with Alderman Sands committee with power to act, and if arrangements can be made the Bands will be dinner guests of the city.

Dominion Day Holiday

A resolution confirming July 3 as Dominion Day holiday here, slid through on the slim margin of a 5-4 vote. Alderman Bradburn said he didn't think there should be two holidays, and that the Government's law should be followed. He said if the holiday was observed on Saturday, it meant the loss of working time in industry was only half a day, but on Monday it meant an additional whole day.

Alderman James Dutton said the fault lay with the Government and they shouldn't play fast and loose. When they first set the holiday on a Monday, some of the industries here went ahead and made plans and they don't feel they can change them now.

It was moved by Aldermen Swanston and Glover that a resolution from the Council at Sault Ste. Marie requesting the Oil Controller to release extra gas for soldiers home on leave, was endorsed.

A by-law dealing with the changing of the election dates from January to the first Monday in December and the nomination dates to the Friday preceding the last Monday in November, was passed by the council. A second by-law naming the polling sub-divisions of which there are nine new ones, was also passed. A resolution requesting the permission of the Municipal Board to make these changes and give the people in the annexed area the right to vote in this election was made.

VARIETY OF MEANING

The word "snood" was pronounced "snowed" by the Saxons, "snate" by the ancient Irish, and is said to be strictly for unmarried women in Scotland.

Factories Need 243 Women For War Jobs

The largest number of vacancies for women workers in Peterborough plants in the history of the local Selective Service office exists at the present time, and the need for male employees is at a record high for recent months, it was stated this morning by W. H. L. Mellis, labor manager.

Mr. Mellis said that a compilation as of the end of last week indicated that Selective Service was in need of 243 women to fill positions in local factories, and that the vacancies for males had reached a total of 746, most of which were for jobs in the immediate area of the city. Only a demand for 1,000 workers a long time ago exceeded the current labor requirements, he added.

As an indication of the great need for women to help industry meet the wartime demand on its production, Mr. Mellis said that 60 part time workers, all married women who will put in three hours in the evenings after attending to their household duties during the day, were sent to one plant in the city Monday. He stressed the patriotic unselfishness of such people and urged that many more come forward and do their share in alleviating a very tight labor supply situation.

A new cause for concern will be coming to the fore before the month is out, Mr. Mellis pointed out, in view of the fact that the canning season is just around the corner. Some 90 workers for this employment are going to be needed at the Canada Packers and to meet the situation a larger turnout of willing war workers will have to be acquired than was the case last year, when Selective Service just managed to "get by," Mr. Mellis stated. "It appears that the crop is going to be much heavier this time," he said.

The labor requirements of the allied food industries, which were helped immeasureably by the farming element that came into the city to work during the winter, have practically remained at the point they assumed when the rural people returned to their farms. In all some 225 farm workers were employed in Peterborough in the off-season months, and most of these had gone back to the land by the end of April. "The Quaker Oats alone wants 75 men now," Mr. Mellis stated.

The tightening labor supply situation, deeply as it was striking the most fully effective utilization of Peterborough's industrial resources, was not peculiar to the city, the labor manager declared. It existed all over the province and the stepped up tempo of Army call-ups on men previously deferred was a large contributing factor.

Canning Factories Get "A" Priority

OTTAWA, June 20.—(CP).— Arthur MacNamara, selective service director, announced Monday that no assist food-producing factories, selective service has advanced to June 20 the date at which the labor priority of canning factories will be raised.'

Ordinarily, essential fruit and vegetable canneries are in labor priority "B," but the priority is raised to "A" for the summer, starting July 1. This year, the higher priority will become effective June 20.

Dr. L. E. Mylks Appointed School Doctor

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held on Monday evening, Dr. L. E. Mylks of Niagara Falls was appointed full time doctor for the city's public schools and Miss Mildred Drope, a graduate nurse with her public health certificate was named to the staff at a salary of $1,400 a year.

Dr. C. M. Scott, chairman of the Health Committee, in submitting his report said that his committee had come to the conclusion that the time had arrived when a full time doctor should be placed in charge in the city's schools. Two additional schools will come into the city on September 1.

Dr. Mylks had met the committee and the recommendationof his appointment was unanimous. Dr. Mylks for the past three years has been industrial doctor at Polymar, Sarnia, the new synthetic rubber plant, and prior to that was in general practise. Miss Drope has been school nurse in Port Colborne and comes highly recommended.

Service For Collegiate

C. S. Browne, principal of the Collegiate, asked if it were the intention of the Board to extend the medical services to that institution as there were pupils who were never medically examined, and it often had been found that students were placed in physical training courses far too strenuous for their physical condition. Dr. Scott said it was the intention to clean up the work in the public schools first and then include the Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School.

Dr. Mylks salary was fixed at $3,000 a year.

A request from the Collegiate teachers for an increase in salary was reviewed for nearly two hours in the committee on appointments prior to the board meeting. The various groups of teachers on the staff of the institution had submitted briefs requesting a revision of salary. The committee was unanimous that the teachers should be classed as heads of departments and assistants with only the heads of departments being required to be specialists. It also approved of continuing the plan of equal pay for men and women. The request of the heads of departments for consideration was refused and the maximum salary for the assistants was increased from $2,700 to $2,900.

Caretakers' Salaries

For some months a petition from the caretakers for an increase has been before the board. The board had the various caretaking jobs in the city schools valuated by men trained for the work and then the efficiency of the caretakers for those jobs was determined. The salaries of each man was proportionately adjusted by the Board to take effect September 1.

The board decided that henceforth yearly increases to the teaching staff may be withheld if the reports are unsatisfactory from the inspectors and principal and in the event of two increases being withheld the teacher will be asked for his or her resignation.

A bonus of $200 a year was voted Alex Shearer, who is acting head of the commercial department at the P.C.V.S. during the absence of H. Toole, who is on active service.

The maximum salary of Miss G. Fowler, librarian, was set at $1,300, with a yearly increase of $100 to that figure.

H. Cooper was engaged on caretaking staff at a salary of $1,150 plus cost of living bonus, and the property committee was instructed to interview other applicants and bring in a recommendation for an appointment to one other vacancy.

Parents Thank City For Entertaining Son

Members of the City Council were delighted over the receipt of a letter from J. A. Caw, Winnipeg, read at their meeting Monday night, thanking them and the city of Peterborough for the kindness shown his son, a member of the corvette Peterborough. The letter read:

"I shall be glad if you will kindly convey to Mayor Hamilton, the Council and the citizens of Peterborough the sincere appreciation of the mother and father of Seaman J. J Caw of H.M.C.S. Peterborough who was so royally entertained by the city recently.

"Our son has told us of all the wonderful things with which you have supplied their ship to add comfort in the tough times that lie ahead of them. We are grateful for the ditty bags which you have furnished for him and for the hospitality and good times he had as your guest. It is one of the highlights of our boy's naval career and I'm expressing our sincere appreciation."

In the morning the topic was "Behold I stand at the door and knock", There is a power stronger than heredity or environment which has more to do with the salvation of mankind—it is the response to the appeal of God calling people to make a decision for Christ. Dr. Cranston illustrated his sermon from his wide experience in dealing with men, he also quoted the statement of W. E. Gladstone "that the biggest problem in the world is giving the gospel of Christ to all the world. In the evening his sermon was based on the question of Pharaoh "Can we find a man in whom the Spirit of God is?

The music was in charge of Miss Margaret Bryce, the organist and leader of the choir. In the morning two anthems "Praise", and "Even me" were sung also a solo "O rest in the Lord" was sung by Sgt. The Canadian Legion monthly meeting was held in the hall Monday night with First Vice-president R. C. Hotrum in the chair in the absence of President George Gimblett.

Harold Yelland stated that eleven sick members had been visited and comforts extended to them during the month of May. Mr. Hotrum reporting on bingo activities showed that the Wednesday and Friday night bingos continued to be well patronized, and during the month of May 43,200 cigarettes were sent to the boys overseas.

A communication was received from Cobourg branch of the Legion thanking the local branch for their help in selling draw tickets on their recent draw in aid of the Cobourg building fund. Seven members were initiated at the meeting.

A fifteen minute address was given by Capt. E. Irwin, Salvation Army Auxiliary Services officer at C.A. ## North Monaghan School Makes $40 For War Victims

All well-minded people love to see children who improve their talents by real industry, and a very fine example of this is brought to notice through an effort held on June 16 by the pupils of school section No. 3 North Monaghan on behalf of the sufferers from enemy air raids over Britain, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

Presided over by Miss Clara Nesbitt as teacher, there seemed to be an all round participation by the boys and girls, each doing a full share towards this effort for a really good cause, the boys making lawn ornaments of birds and animals out of wood as well as door stops, while the girls made aprons, pin cushions, knitting bags, pillow cases and spool racks, while one girl made a lunchion cloth.

Then they held a bazaar to turn the fruits of their labor int cash, and this in itself netted the splendid sum of $27.00 for an effort of this kind, and under the teachers direction this was further enlarged on by the holding of a concert program, which inclueded two small plays and musical numbers by the school.

Further assists to the evening's enjoyment included crokinole and a lunch served by the children, all of which brought their total up to the splendid sum of $40.06 credited in their name to-day, and in view of the more frequent attacks on Britain by projectiles from the coasts of France in the past week or more, with its rise in destruction and loss of life, one cannot help but feel that their help besides being most timely, is also a splendid way for them to close this present school year, in doing such a good work on behalf of those thus afflicted.

Otonabee School Helps

To-day's report becomes particularly one that gives justly due credit to the school children, this being emphasised by another gift reported from school section No. 16 Otonabee where J. May is the teacher.

This group of children had been saving and collecting this for some time, and in putting it into service on behalf of the war effort, part of it in an amount of $6.17 was given to this fund, and will shortly be on its way to do its bit for the objects for which it was thus given.

Orange Corners School

Last year about this time, the Orange Corners School taught by Milburn V. Jones staged a splendid effort on behalf of the fund, and this is now being repeated for the same cause this Wednesday night, June 21 commencing at 8.30 p. m.

The entire proceeds are for the fund, and an evening of enjoyment is promised, to which everyone is invited, for it is their annual open night, supplemented by a musical program. Admission is 25 cents, and 15 cents for children.

Youth Is Sentenced To Two Months In Jail

Justin Carter, 20, Crescent street, was sentenced to two months in jail when he was convicted before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today on a charge of having stolen a bicycle in April last from Donald Ferguson.

Carter pleaded not guilty to the charge but after hearing the crown evidence did not put in any defence and a conviction was registered.

Ferguson testified to leaving his bicycle outside the Centre Smoke Shop where he was employed and of finding it gone when he came out and Ralph Mackie, usher at the Centre Theatre identified Carter as the man from whom he had bought a bicycle, which turned out to be the stolen machine, for $15.

The bicycle was entered as an exhibit and was identified by Ferguson as his property and by Mackie as the wheel he had bought from Carter.

The accused's record, produced by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, showed that Carter had served a year in the Ontario Reformatory for car theft and also had been convicted previously of stealing a bicycle.

Formerly employed at the C.G.E., the airman is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth McKinstry and the late Mr. McKinstry, the latter having been killed in the last war. His wife and son live in Montreal.

Flt. Sgt. Downing Peterboro Flier On Missing List

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Downing, 217 Brock street, have received word that their son, Flt. Sergt. Edmund James Downing, is missing following air operations overseas.

A popular young employee at the Western Clock company, Flt. Sgt. Downing worked in the toll room before he joined the R.C.A.F. in April 1942. He trained as a navigator and won his wings at London No. 4 A.O.S., in May, 1943. Since his arrival overseas, he has taken part in several raids on Europe.

Man Is Guilty On Four Counts

Felix Larose, formerly of Sudbury, who pleaded guilty in police court Monday to three charges of shoplifting faced another charge when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. today.

It was of having in his possession a loose gasoline coupon and after hearing the evidence, His Worship announced that there would be a conviction and Larose was remanded until next Monday for sentence on all four counts.

Constable Leo. Murphy testified that when Larose was being searched at the police station a loose gasoline coupon with a license number written on it had been found and also a completed AA gasoline ration book from which no coupons had been taken and with a different license number. The book was put in as an exhibit.

Larose said that he had had his car only about a month and that the man he had bought it from had put in six gallons of gasoline. He said that he had not been driving very much and therefore had not used the new gasoline book. As to the loose coupon he stated that he had found it on Brown street some time ago and had written a number on it just as an idle gesture.

"Don't you know that you should have the license number of your car on the coupons in this book?" asked Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., after the accused had admitted previously that he knew that a coupon had to have a license number on it before it could be used to secure gasoline.

Larose said that he didn't know that.

"The instructions are in English and French; why didn't you read them?"

"Are you going to lay a charge against him for not having the license numbers on the coupons in this ration book?" asked Magistrate Langley and the Crown Attorney replied that he intended to take the matter up with the Oil Controller.

Casualty Totals Being Held Up

OTTAWA, June 20—(CP)—Commons as told yesterday by Defence Minister Ralston that Canadian casualties in the Normandy invasion have been "moderate" and below the figure which had been estimated for the opening phase of the action.

In answer to a question, the minister said casualty reports were continuing to go forward to next-of-kin immediately they were received but so far he had been unable to get authority from the high command to release Canadian totals.

He said it was a matter of security and Canada had participated in an agreement which precluded announcemet of totals until field commanders were sure the announcement would not prejudice the military situation.

Mr. Ralston's question, Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C.—York Sudbury), said American casualty figures had been given by Lt.-Gen. Omar Bradley, a United States field commander, at a press conference Saturday.

Mr. Ralston said he was surprised when he heard the American figures had been announced. He added he had immediately tried to get a release for Canadian figures, but so far had been unable to do so. He was sure commanders in the field were best able to judge the situation and decide on the security involved.

MADE DIRECTOR—J. Jebson, manager of the E. F. Mason grocery chain of stores in Peterborough, has been named a director of the food division of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada at a meeting in Toronto this week.

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

Interesting expressions of Cairo are described in a letter written June 6, by F. O. Allen Marshall, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Marshall, 285 Reid street.

"On my way from Port Said to Cairo on the train we stopped at a station overrun with natives. I had a bag of rather untasty food and when I saw some large hawks hovering a few yards above the train, I tossed a piece of meat pie out on the ground to tempt him down. The hawk just tucked in his wings and came down like a dive bomber. But before he could pick up the morsel a ragged native child had beat him to it. I tried again, but the natives were too quick. I can't figure out how a dog can live in this country because the natives make such a clean sweep. You have to watch out for these birds when flying low over inhabited places. They can make a big dent in an aircraft going 300 miles an hour.

Camel In First Place

"As for animals, the camel seems to run first. They appear to be mostly under control, but I have run across a few wandering around by themselves in the desert. You see little old donkeys, loaded down with about three husky natives. Our Flight Commander saw a desert fox out on the sand one day and chased it for a bit. He was all for going out and bringing it back alive. We have a little lizard for a pet in the flight room. There are no snakes in these parts, but there are scorpions which will knock you for a loop if they sting you. If you get one in the sand, draw a little trench around it, fill it with petrol and light it, the scorpion will go from one side to the other find himself hemmed in and then roll his tail with the singer in it, over his back and sting himself to death."

This airman has found many beautiful flowers in Egypt. Outside the mess there are several locust trees with bright red flowers on them, he writes. Another tree bears a purple-red flower and there are huge cacti with yellow flowers on them. There are two trees, which are silver-grey barked gum trees such as the Australians talk about and the banyan tree which lives for years. Its branches grow downward and into the ground where they form new roots. Thus the tree spreads and one tree can cover acres."

Ancient Wooden Plows Used

"Farmers still use ancient wooden plows drawn by oven, mules, for men. Cultivation is intense and irrigation produces a network of canals large and small. Water is raised from the canals by oxen and water buffalo turning a crank handle which revolves a spiralled water lift. Wherever moisture stops vegetation also is halted and man faces a constant struggle there.

"The desert comes in many varieties, very fine sand which blows and forms dunes like huge snowdrifts and the heavier stuff, which just lies flat and looks almont earthy in appearance from the air. Small straggling bushes grow in it despite no water and provide food for animals and man in necessity. Some parts of the desert are stoney, the stones being worn smooth by the sand. In small oases where a pool of water manages to survive the heat, the water takes on some rather distasteful colors since evaporation is great and the residue from evaporation is left to color the water."

Utility Pools

F. O. Marshall writes that he has flown over pools where natives are bathing, camels drinking women washing and men drinking, all the same water, a horrible red-brown color, the evaporation leaving receding rings around the edge of the universal water hole. The natives will eat or drink anything and seem to survive all disease, he relates.

Another phase of Egyptian life which interested this Peterborough boy, was river travel. The barges sail up and down the larger canals, and when there is no wind, two natives on the bank have a long rope running around their shoulders to the mast. In this manner they pull the huge thing for miles. A classy old steam barge went up last week, puffing out perfect smoke rings at every breath.

Thousands Are Homeless

"In Cairo I noticed hundreds of young children with legs and arms cut off. It seems that they fall under the wheels of electric trains which I can understand, the way they try to jump on them. The things are always packed and they hang on all over, more on the outside than in. There are thousands of homeless children here. I was shocked to see them in streets and doorways and parks. These children that lose an arm or leg mostly legs or feet, are bandaged up after the bleeding stops and are set loose again. They generally wind up polishing shoes, selling junk in the streets, stealing or begging.

"Thieves are a big menace and many of the boys have had their wallets and valuables stolen. A fellow trying to sell post cards will flick them under your nose and flip a pen out of your pocket with the card or pick your pockets."

F.O. T. J. O'NEILL.

T. J. O'Neill, whose wife lives at 800 Chamberlain street, has been promoted to Flying Officer while serving overseas. He enlisted in July 1942 and was formerly employed at the C. G. E.

Better Late Than Never.

Mrs. W. Downer, 172 Lake street, received a bouquet of flowers Saturday from her son, Pte. Clarence Downer, serving in Italy. The flowers were intended for Mother's Day but orders sent from the Mediterranean were delayed. Each boy paid 400 lire ($4.47) and flowers were ordered for him. There has been a great deal of dissatisfaction because of the lateness and non delivery of their remembrances.

Pte. Downer who suffered shrapnel wounds in the arm and neck during the Sicily invasion is back in action. The 20-year-old soldier, formerly employed at the C. G. E. is still receiving boxes sent to him while he was in a military hospital in Africa. At the end of May, he got a box from his mother sent on June, 1943.

Mrs. Downer also has a letter from a Colborne soldier, to a member of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion which tells simply what soldiers overseas are thinking abotu post war readadjustments.

"We are all living in hopes of being home in Canada as soon as possible, but don't think any of us want to return until the job is complete. We all wonder sometimes, what then. Will we fit in some place or will it be like post war years in the last war?

"Seriously no soldier expects anything except an opportunity to give his family the necessities of life and a few of the luxuries. Just to be on equal footing with the fellow who has the warmth and comfort of his own fireside and home life these last few years. Nothing more."

Corvette Gift.

A tablet bearing the words of the hymn "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me" was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Havelock, to the corvette H. M. S. C. Whitby, on which their son, C. M. Kennedy is a Petty Officer E. R. A.

On Landing Flotilla.

Leading Seaman Jack McMahon, R. C. N., son of Harold McMahon, Crawford's Grove, and Leading Stocker Harold Doig, R. C. N. V. R., son of Herbert Doig, Cameron street, are both serving on motor torpedo boats helping with the invasion. The boys are neighbours and the craft on which they are serving have been a big threat against the Germans.

Tops In Kindness.

One of the soldiers at the Training Centre, Pte. Stewart Depencier, who is back in Canada after three years overseas paid tribute to the kindness of Peterborough people. He has been stationed in camps from Vancouver to Debert and overseas and in no place, has he ever found the citizens of a town or city, taking such pains to see that the soldiers had a good time.

Pte. Depencier's home is in North Bay and he enlisted with the Forestry Corps going overseas with the First Division. He was sent home last October and is now with the R. C. A. M. C. Four of his brothers are overseas, the two youngest presumeably in France.

The Canadian Legion received high praise from this soldier also. In the early months of the war, no other organization was functioning as a supplier of cigarettes. He said that those at home would never know what the smokes meant to the boys before others began coming.

Scotch Homes Open.

Scotland is a wonderful place in his opinion, and perhaps the fact that he married a Scotch girl may have something to do with it. Soldiers on leave there found it a "home away from home," Pte. Depencier declared. "Every city had a Church of Scotland canteen open, manned by the church women. They would come over and talk to us and ask us to their homes, or locate some other woman who had room. The home cooking was marvellous."

He commented upon the importance of Army discipline and how it enables a soldier to carry on under the most difficult circumstances. From the time a man enlists, he is trained to do a particular job under fire regardless of how many of his comrades fall. The discipline is so engrained that it becomes automatic and that is why men, seeing scenes of horror can carry on without losing their reason. It also helps them in many other ways, he said and a man who has been serving in the forces has learned something worth while.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

26—How to Finesse

IN THE overwhelming majority of all deals, a declarer is confronted with one or more cases of possible finesses, and a large percentage of all contracts depend upon them. Do you know what a finesse is? There have been many unsatisfactory definitions, and plenty of players who know what a finesse is would have difficulty defining it at all. So let us just dispense with any definition and get to examples.

If you have the ace-queen of a suit in your hand or the dummy, and one of the opponents has the king, you use a finesse to seek two tricks with your combination. You lead a smaller card from the other hand toward your ace-queen and, if the first opponent plays a small one, you put on the queen. That will assure you two tricks in the suit if the king is held by the opponent who played first, whereas the king will kill your queen if the last player has it. In trying thus for a trick with the queen, you have finessed.

When you hold the ace-king-jack of a suit, and the queen belongs to the opposition, you may get a trick with your jack by leading toward your combination and putting in the jack, hoping the first defender had the queen. It is the same if you have the ace-king-queen-ten and not the jack. Sometimes you will finesse against the jack by playing the ten.

Frequently you will be confronted with the question of whether to finesse or try to drop a missing honor by playing a higher card. The choice of method should depend on the number of cards held by the opponents in the suit. It is easy to illustrate why. Suppose you hold all the honors in a suit except the king. If your opponents have only that one card, and you have the other 12, between your hand and the dummy, it is obvious that the best play is the ace, for the king is certain to drop.

Now let's take the case of the opponents having the king and one other card. Suppose that other card is played by the first when you lead toward the ace-queen. Only the king now remains out. It can be, so far as you can tell, any one of the other cards whose backs you can see in the opponents' hands. If the first opponent has 10 cards left and his partner has 11, the odds are 11 to 10 that the second opponent has it, and it is therefore 11 to 10 in your favor that the preferred play of the ace will drop it, whereas it is 11 to 10 that the play of the queen will lose.

But if three cards are out against you, including the king, the finesse is better. The reason may be clearly shown. Suppose those cards are the king, 8 and 2. They may be divided in eight ways between the opponents. The first defender may have the K-8-2, the K-8, the K-2, the K, the 8-2, the 8, the 2 or none. But after you have led from the other hand and the first defender played, say, the 2, that eliminates all combinations except those whereby he has the 2, leaving possible only the K-8-2, K-2, 8-2 and 2. If he has either of the first two, the Q finesse will win and the play of the A will lose. If he has the third, the A play will win. That makes the odds in favor of the finesse almost 2 to 1 as against play of the ace, since neither play will work against the fourth combination.

So, when the opponents have only two cards, usually play to drop a king, and when they have three or more, generally finesse against it. If you carry out the same study of a finesse against a queen, you find that playing to drop it pays best when they have four cards or fewer, and the finesse when they have more than four. Also that trying to drop a jack pays when they have six or fewer, and the finesse when they have seven or more. Just remember these three figures—2, 4 and 6—as the ones for dropping a king, queen and jack respectively, and that the finesse is usually sounder when the opponents have even one card more than those numbers.

Pope Receives 50 Canadians

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 20 (CP) Cable)—The Pope received a group of officers and men of a Three Rivers, Que., armored regiment Saturday, in an audience following that granted General Alexander.

The group of more than 50 included a Vancouver brigadier commanding the brigade, and a colonel from Three Rivers.

Majors Walker H. Hurdle of Calgary and Edmonton and D. Davidson of Calgary and Vancouver received Rosaries and a handshake from the Pontiff. The brigadier had a private audience.

The Pope repeated several times he was most happy to greet the Canadians and asked several of the men about their home-towns.

Gen. Alexander also stopped and chatted with the men, who later were shown St. Peter's and other points of interest.

By coincidence, the Canadians were joined at the audience by Irving Berlin, whose "army show" is now playing in Rome.

The 2,000 now are in special Nazi concentration camps. They hold travel permits or other protective documents issued by various non-European governments, enabling them to claim the protection of some Allied or neutral government.

Mayor H. Gooding Heads Civil Group

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BAYEUX, France, June 20—(CP-Cable)—The first Civil Affairs detachment to establish itself in France in the wake of the Allied invasion was a British Unit set up here, headed by a Canadian Major, H. B. Gooding, former postmaster of Port Colborne, Ont.

He landed with a detachment of three British Civil Affairs officers and three American officers on the second day of the invasion. They rushed into Bayeux on motor bikes shortly after it fell to troops of the British 50th Division.

"For these few days the front line was right in our backyard," said Gooding as he talked about his detachment's work.

Major Gooding said the detachment's task in the early days was to ensure that life in the city and the surrounding area was not disrupted and the fundamental civil problems resulting from four years of German rule by force were tackled with an eye to remembering that situation as much as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Brown Of Apsley Wed 50 Years

APSLEY, June 20.—(ENS).—On Sunday, June 18, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Brown celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage. That morning in 1894, Louise Wilson and Duncan Brown started before daylight to drive with horse and buggy to Peterborough to be married. They had their dinner at "Biddy" McManus' boarding house, half mile south of Burleigh Falls, arriving in Peterborough about 2 p.m., where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Butcher, a Methodist minister in the parsonage of the church then known as the Charlotte St. Methodist church.

The bride was attired in a salmon pink dress heavily embroidered with gold thread and had as her bridesmaid Mary Staples, now Mrs. Parcells of Victoria, B.C., and the groomsman was the bride's brother, Edward Wilson.

They have three children, Roy of Lakefield, a former Warden of Peterborough county, Ella (Mrs. W. Church) of Mt. Julian, and Stewart, who with his wife and two small children lives with his parents and manages the general store. There are six grandchildren, Keith, Lionel, Morley and Ruth of Lakefield and Elaine and Arnold of Apsley.

The family paid a surprise visit and a sumptuous wedding supper was served and the bride of 50 years ago was presented with a gold ring set with zircon and the groom presented with a gold ring set with a tiny diamond by the family.

The table was centred by a wedding cake decorated with white and pink and topped by a miniature bride and groom.

Those were the days when honeymoons and bridal trips were rare so the bride and groom spent some time in Peterborough and at the bride's home, Eastland House, Apsley, after which they went to their farm in Burleigh, where they lived until 1900 when they moved to Port Arthur. After a two year stay there they returned to their farm and in June 1903 they started a general store in Apsley which has been carried on continuously ever since. Mr. Brown was elected Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther in 1921, a position he held for seven years. He was postmaster for a time and county constable for about 40 years.

Mr. Brown was born March 10, 1867 on Lot 17, Con. 12, Burleigh township. Mrs. Brown was born July 22, 1873 in Ennismore. A number of friends called to extend good wishes and were served pieces of wedding cake and ice cream. The community extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

Liberals Gain Seat In Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 20—(CP)—The first C.C.F. government in history elected in Saskatchewan last Thursday, will have a majority of at least 31 in the next legislature of 55 members.

The C.C.F. led by T. C. Douglas, former member of Parliament, elected 43 members so far against an opposition of five Liberals. Three seats of the 51 to be decided in last Thursday's voting remain in doubt with the C.C.F. leading in Gavelbourt and Turtleford constituencies and the Liberal nominee in front in Meadow Lake riding.

Election of L. M. Marion, Liberal in the far-north constituency of Athabaska, Saturday brought the Liberal strength to five compared with 33 seats held at dissolution of the last legislature.

Result of the service vote in the province is expected to be available tomorrow.

CARE SAVES WEAR—
but tire conservation doesn't stop there!

The mechanical condition of the chassis parts of your car or truck is most important.
—Wheels which are a ½" out of line cause the tires to "scuff" sideways approximately 87' in a mile.
—A few ounces out of balance multiply into many pounds of damaging force, even at normal driving speeds.

These elements actually tear the rubber off your tires.
You can safeguard against such damage by having:—
—The mechanical parts of your vehicle inspected and adjusted periodically.
—Your tires and wheels checked regularly, particularly after the tires have been removed from the wheels for repairs.

Tire conservation service from a General Motors dealer will:—
—Stretch your tire mileage.
—Assure your safety.
—Improve the steering, riding and braking qualities.

This information is made available to you, the owners of Canada's cars and trucks, to assist you to conserve your tires and vehicles, and so safeguard against a breakdown of the country's automotive transportation up to and even beyond the day of Victory!

Our CONSERVATION SERVICE will help you to:
Stretch your Tire Mileage by:
—Maintaining proper tire pressure.
—Tire rotation every 3,000 to 5,000 miles (Pass. cars and light trucks.)
—Regular inspection of wheel alignment and balance—brakes and shock absorbers.
Avoid Engine Failure by:
—Testing compression and checking oil consumption.
—Having sludge removed.
—Cleaning and refacing "sludge-coated" valves.
—Replacing "sludge-packed" piston rings.
—Adjusting crankshaft bearings.
Save Gasoline and Oil by:
—Engine tune-up including carburetor, battery and electrical system.
Prevent Deterioration of Body and Fenders by:
—Repairing and refinishing damaged or chipped surfaces.
—Washing body as required to preserve the finish and to keep drain holes open as a protection against costly rust damage.
Extend the Life of your Car or Truck by:
—Regular lubrication (at least every 60 days).
—Minor inspection and adjustment (every 1,000 miles).

Naval Battle Raging Japs Report

U.S.-Japanese Fleets Drawn Up West Of Marianas

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP).—A Japanese broadcast said to-day that a "fierce naval battle" is raging in the Central Pacific off the Marianas.

The BBC said "a Japanese spokesman was quoted as saying that this battle would have far-reaching effects on the Pacific war situation."

The Tokyo radio asserted that an American battleship listed in a Japanese communique yesterday as sunk by Japanese planes off the Marianas June 15 was of the 45,000-ton Iowa class.

The enemy broadcast, entirely without confirmation, said another battleship claimed to have been heavily damaged was of the 35,000-ton North Carolina class" and went down to a watery grave the night of June 15 off the Marianas."

"Two out of four United States' aircraft carriers which were heavily damaged and set ablaze or left heavily listing the night of June 17," the broadcast went on, "were of the 27,000-ton Essex type, while another was of 10,000-ton Independence type which had been converted from a cruiser. A fourth appeared to be also of the Essex type."

(A Japanese broadcast recorded at London said today that a "fierce Naval battle" is raging off the Marianas).

Forrestal said that Japanese planes attacked American naval units near Saipan Sunday and indicated that the planes apparently came from carriers which at that time were some 500 miles to the westward.

The Japanese plan, he continued, seems to have been to launch the aircraft with the idea that after attacking they would be able to land for refueling on Guam and Rota, Japanese-held bases in the Marianas.

"We have no other details of the resulting air battle," he continued, "other than the fact that our forces were ready for the attack.

"Our carrier aircraft and ships' anti-aircraft guns wiped out most of the Japanese planes."

At Pearl Harbor Admiral Nimitz has reported that the Japanese have lost a total of 600 planes since action began in the Marianas.

Admiral King also disclosed that plans long under consideration had

Capture a Matter of Hours Garrison Resisting Fiercely

British Engaged In Battle With Nazi Armour

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 21 — (CP) — American troops smashed within 1,500 yards—less than a mile—of Cherbourg's waterfront today, driving between two fortress bastions under cover of air and artillery bombardment.

The fall of the great supply port seemed only a matter of hours tonight.

The piledriver offensive crashed through the suburbs along the inland road between Fort Du Roule and Fort Octeville, Nazi strongpoints shuddering under bombs as well as leaflets calling on the trapped Nazis to surrender.

Nazi demolition squads worked feverishly to cripple the port—through which the Allies could pour a flood of men and supplies into Normandy.

Only other heavy fighting on the long beachhead front was in the Tilly Sur Seulles area toward the eastern end where British and German forces were engaged in an armoured battle. However, the general position in the area around Tilly and Caen to the east was unchanged.

A radio broadcast from Normandy said "our ground forces are moving into Cherbourg" but there was no confirmation here.

Another force rolling the trapped Germans back on the left flank seized Acqueville, at the base of Cape De La Hague, the land finger jutting northwest of Cherbourg and possibly offering a chance of escape by sea.

Troops on the right flank advanced beyond Valognes, and Supreme Headquarters declared "good progress" was made toward the prize harbor today.

Barrages Heavy

Supported by powerful artillery and air bombardment, veteran American troops assaulted Fort du Roule, within a mile of Cherbourg's docks, and Fort Octeville, bastion two miles in front of the military harbor area, blasted by Nazi demolitions.

The Germans staged a last ditch defence in these strongpoints.

Eighty Nazi tanks have been destroyed by the Allied liberating armies to date, Supreme Headquarters said.

British troops, fanning out from Tilly Sur Seulles captured Onchy, three miles to the southwest and an American spearhead west of Tilly had pushed with two miles of St. Lo, communications hub of Normandy.

Only patrol activity was reported elsewhere on the Normandy beachhead except in the Tilly area. The Germans launched three heavy counter-attacks on the newly-taken British strongpoint of Hottot, two miles south Tilly. The attacks were reported held but the situation in the village itself was obscure.

The Caen area, held by British

Allied Armies Capture Two Robot Sites

By MELVIN APPEL
Reuter War Correspondent

AT AN R. A. F. BASE SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 21.—(CP-Reuter).—Invading Allied armies have captured two of the sites in France from which the Germans had been projecting their pilotless aircraft across the channel to Britain.

The sites were captured intact, according to Wing Commander R. P. Beamont, in charge of this station composed of two "Tempest" squadrons responsible for bringing down many of these flying bombs since Adolf Hitler first brought them into play.

A good percentage of the flying bombs sighted crossing the channel are shot down. Of the total catapulted against the British Isles a large number are destroyed in the air by planes or anti-aircraft fire.

While pilots of Tempests, who call their planes "the best and most manoeuvrable fighters in the world" get quite a thrill out of destroying the robots. They admit there is not the same kick as in downing aircraft.

While a number of Tempests have been scorched, not a single plane has been lost and none of them has been damaged beyond immediate repair. It was also revealed here that Mosquitos have accounted for a num-

1,000 Huge Bombers Smash Berlin No Fighters Seen

LONDON, June 21 — (AP) — More than 1,000 American heavy bombers blasted Berlin and the capital's otuskirts today and the German radio indicated that at least some of the planes flew eastward—possibly in the first shuttle raid from Britain to new American bases in Russia.

The bomber fleet had an escort of around 1,000 fighters, making a total force of some 2,000 planes which crried the aerial war once more to the heart of the German homeland.

Basdorf, on Berlin's outskirts, also was blasted.

German broadcasts admitted damage and casualties and threatened to retaliate with "bigger and more powerful explosives" than those used in the current rocket bomb offensive.

First bomber pilots back at British bases said there was plenty of flak over the targets but they did not see a single German fighter—a rare occurence in raids on the hub of Germany.

Berlin broadcasts said the Hanover and Brunswick areas also had been attacked by the daylight raiders, but there was no immediate Allied confirmation of these reports.

At the same time big fleets of Allied planes were observed streaking out across Dover Strait in the direction of the German rocket bomb bases which now have been pounded continuously for five days.

During the night R.A.F. Mosquitos thundered out in relays for four hours to harass German lines of reinforcement by blasting the Mezidon railroad yards near Caen in the Normandy battle area. Rail yards at Chartres also were hit.

Few Over Scotland

Meantime the Germans intensified their rocket bomb attacks on southern England during the night after a day of comparative inactivity and a few Nazi planes also were reported over Scotland.

Some casualties and damage were inflicted in southern England by the flying bombs.

The Germans asserted that Berlin had been the target of a "heavy terror raid" and said Germany would retaliate in due time "with bigger and more powerful explosives than the present new weapon, which already has caused havoc beyond de-

Helsinki City Next Target For Russians

Civilians Ordered To Evacuate Finland's Capital

LONDON, June 21 (CP)—Victorious Russian troops who occupied Finland's fortress seaport of Viipuri yesterday drove on today toward the capital city of Helsinki, where the Germans were reported exerting pressure to keep their ally from suing for peace with Premier Stalin.

The Finnish radio, which told of the Russian advance, urged all persons whose presence was not essential to evacuate Helsinki—approximately 135 airline miles west of Viipuri.

Twenty salvos from 224 guns boomed in Moscow last night following Stalin's order of the day announcing the fall of that city to Marshal Leonid Govorov's Leningrad army after a smashing 11-day offensive.

The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said the Germans were endeavoring to block formation of a Finnish "peace cabinet" which Finns asserted would be formed "very soon" as a result of the Russian successes.

A Finnish informant in Stockholm said loss of the key Karelian fortifications "left us helpless because our whole scheme of defence was built on the expectation we would be able to hold there."

"Our over-extended armies in eastern Karelia now are endangered," he added. "To carry on would mean falling back into the lake and forest region and fighting guerilla warfare."

The Moscow radio said Finland was on "the brink of defeat."

What steps the Germans would take to try to keep Finland in the war were uncertain. A Stockholm report said the Germans were threatening occupation of three Finnish ports along a 70-mile stretch at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia—Tornio, Kemi and Oulou—and the Aland Islands in the gulf between Sweden and Finland.

China Welcomes Foreign Capital

CHUNGKING, June 21—(AP).—A general sytem of collective security, backed if necessary by an adequate international force, was urged by President Chiang Kai-Shek tonight at a state banquet given by him and Mme. Chiang in honor of Vice-President Wallace of the United States.

The General said: "We respect the integrity and independence of every nation. We dream no dreams of domination. We have no territorial ambitions."

The Chinese believe, he said, in an ever-increasing co-operation with other countries in matters economic, financial, cultural and political, "and in the development of our industry and our immense natural resources we will welcome foreign investment and foreign technicians."

Pending the inauguration of collective security, which he said could not be achieved unless the military might of the common enemies is annihilated, Chiang said the United States, the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union and China "must shoulder the responsibility of maintaining international peace."

CHINA CUT IN HALF

CHUNGKING—Japanese forces have driven across the La River and are within 65 miles of strategic Hengyang, approximately 160 airline miles southwest of the fallen Hunan province capital of Changsha, the Chinese high command announced today.

Fuel Shortage May Hit Civilian Driving

OTTAWA, June 21—(CP)— Every possible gallon of gasoline must be conserved if Canada's position with respect to gasoline and fuel oil is not to deteriorate to the point of further curtailment of civilian consumption. Munitions Minister Howe said in the House of Commons yesterday.

In an interview of the fuel situation he said that despite the best efforts made toward conservation Canada's position concerning petroleum fuels was "not improving," and warned that it was unlikely that further curtailment of these supplies could be avoided "should war consumption continue at its present level for any considerable period."

The Minister appealed for public support in preventing the misuse of petroleum products. Given this support, he was hopeful that Canada's supply position could be maintained at its present level.

Further curtailment of gasoline and fuel oil supplies to the public probably would be unnecessary, if the Allies were able to win a "reasonably quick overpowering victory,"

8th Advances 4 Miles North

ROME, June 21.—(AP).—British 8th Army veterans have hurled the last stubborn Nazi defenders out of Perugia, communications hub 85 miles north of Rome, and advanced some four miles north of the city, Allied Headquarters said to-day.

The Allied drive still was in steady motion although the Germans had thrown elements of seven divisions against the right flank of the 5th Army in an effort to slow its pace. But the 5th fought through four villages, making what Headquarters termed "minor tactical gains."

It was disclosed that the 5th Army has taken prisoners from the 19th

Anti-Tank Unit Knocks Out 9 Hun Tanks

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 21—(CP Cable)—An anti-tank unit of the Royal Canadian Artillery has been battling in the front line with the Canadian 3rd Division ever since the beach assault, and in two weeks has knocked out nine German tanks and possibly destroyed five more.

In addition gunners of this unit have supported many infantry attacks by shelling pill-boxes and concrete emplacements, and fortified houses in town through which the Canadians fought in their push from the coast.

A battery commanded by Maj. E. J. Scott of Lindsay, Ont., has seen more action than the others and its guns have accounted for all the tanks in the unit's score. One lone troop of four guns, commanded by Lieut. Parlane Christie of Kingston, Ont., has eight tanks to its credit.

In this sharpshooting troop is Sgt. Herman Dumas of Quebec City who is No. 1 man on a gun which alone destroyed five of these eight tanks.

This troop has seen some hot action. Once things got so warm that Dumas decided he wouldn't have his crew so exposed to tank and machine-gun fire. So he put a shell "up the spout," put one man by the gun, and the rest of the crew slid into slit trenches nearby.

A German tank rolled right up towards it, the tank crew probably thinking it had been abandoned. But the lone gunner crouching beside it got a bead on the tank, fired the gun, and plunged into his own slit trench.

Buck Says Quebec Youths Show Fascist Tendencies

MONTREAL, June 21—(CP).—Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, said here today after a group of youths prevented him addressing a political meeting last night at Quebec, "The whole thing was highly organized and was a striking commentary on the situation there nowadays ... however we will hold other meetings there."

Mr. Buck said in an interview that the hall last night was "filled with children under 15 and youths under 20. They all repeatedly gave the Fascist salute and, from time to time, went to the windows to salute from there, in the true Nazi way, a man sitting in a parked automobile across the street from the hall."

Mr. Buck added:

"Soldiers, mostly French-Canadians, came to me and the other speakers and offered to clear the hall for us so that the meeting could go on and our party members and others, prevented by the youths from entering, could come in. We declined their offer and I told them it was up to the police.

"The police, I must say, were quite courteous with every one of us; however, a police inspector told me he was sorry but could not do anything. Finally, we were advised to retire from the hall as, to use the police inspector's words, the situation might become dangerous.

Shower Of Stones

"When we stepped out, stones and bricks were thrown at us. Stanley Ryerson, who came with me from Montreal, was seized for a short time by a group of youths who manhandled him.

"A police constable, who was accompanying me, was hit in the leg by a brick which, apparently, was meant for me."

Mr. Buck, scheduled to leave later today for Ottawa, added that the Three Rivers rally scheduled for today was cancelled after the city council refused permission to hold it. It was first said that the cancellation had been ordered following advice from party followers there.

Mr. Ryerson earlier, upon his return here, said that he and Mr. Buck "were attacked by a gang of toughs, and only the intervention of the police saved us from serious injury."

Howe Considers Whisky Set-up

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP).—Munitions Minister Howe to-day received official advice that Washington was permitting United States' distilleries to resume manufacture of whiskies during August and the Minister said he would study the Canadian situation and decide whether similar action should be taken by Canada.

Canadian distilleries at present are engaged exclusively in producing industrial alcohol, filling orders from the Munitions Department. Last fall the distilleries produced potable alcohol for about two weeks during the period after the 1943 contracts had been filled and the 1944 contracts had not yet been placed. That was the only lapse there had been.

"We shall study the Canadian situation at once," the Minister said, "and will announce our decision later on. Of course, you know that with the exception of gin any production of spirits now would not affect the supplies at present available for consumption because of the time required for ageing."

Family Allowances To Range From $5to $8 For Each Child

OTTAWA, June 21—(CP).—Family allowances proposed by the Federal Government would become effective July 1, 1945, and would range from $5 to $8 a month depending on the age of children, Prime Minister Mackenzie King revealed today in a resolution to the bill placed on the Commons' voting and proceedings.

The resolution proposed that allowances be paid from that date for each child in Canada under 16 years of age on the following scale:

$5 a month for each child less than six years old;

$6 a month for each child of six or more but less than 10;

$7 a month for each child of 10 or more but less than 13;

$8 a month for each child of 13 years but less than 16 years old.

The resolution provides that the rates should be reduced by $1 a month in respect of the fifth child, by $2 in respect of the sixth and seventh and by $3 in respect of the eighth and additional children.

It also provides that the income tax reduction allowable for children should be reduced "by an appropriate amount based upon the family allowance payable under said measure."

Germans Seize Loyal French

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Staff Writer.

IRUN, Spain, June 21—(AP). — Five Britons, seven Americans, and 15 Latin-Americans entering Spain in exchange for German civilian prisoners told yesterday how their train was halted throughout France due to sabotage, and of seeing a trainload of Frenchmen who said they were underground members being taken to Germany for questioning and execution.

Miss Fanny Flinder, born in Baltimore, Md., who is en route home from the Libenau Concentration Camp in Poland, said the height of the four-day railroad trip through France was reached at Nancy.

"On the other track were two third-class railroad cars packed with about 25 men in each compartment—perhaps 400 in all. They saw the sign saying 'American Exchange Party.' on the side of our train and immediately made the V sign with their fingers.

"Somebody asked them who they were.

"'We are real Frenchmen,' one replied. 'We are saboteurs, members of the underground and plain innocent suspects. We are on our way to Germany where the Germans will try to find out what we know and then'....He placed his forefinger at his head like a pistol."

Canadians Bagged 15 Planes

Anti-Aircraft Unit Protects Beachhead

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 21.—(CP Cable.— A Canadian light anti-aircraft unit, helping protect the Normandy beachhead from enemy raiders, has a confirmed score of 15 enemy planes destroyed since D-day.

Most of the firing has been at dawn and dusk.

Anti-aircraft guns are literally packed into the area and there is no barrage in the world like this one in which the Canadians are doing their full share of shooting.

A battery from Guelph and Listowel, Ont., commanded by Maj. B. M. Osler of Toronto, set a record by knocking down five planes in one night Other batteries have scored five-plane kills, but only in several days.

Sharing in the destruction have been batteries from Brantford and Kingston. Maj. B. F. Gossage commanded the Brantford Battery and Maj. J. M. Cousins of Belleville, commands the Kingston Battery.

Second-in-command at Regimental Headquarters is Maj. F. A. L. Charlesworth of Brantford and Listowel. The paymaster is Capt. O. L. Colley, Kingston.

TORONTO, June 21 — (CP) — Creamery butter production in Ontario in May totalled 8,311,000 pounds, 2.9 per cent less than the 8,559,000 pounds produced in May, 1943, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said today in its monthly dairy report. Cumulative production for the first five months of 1944 was 25,330,000 pounds, 13.9 per cent less than the 29,419,600 pounds in the corresponding period of last year.

Dairy factories in the province had stocks of 1,120,200 pounds June 1, 1,318,000 May 1 and 1,882,200 a year ago.

Cheddar cheese production in May was 13124,800 pounds compared with 11,191,900 in May, 1943. Production for the first five months of 1944 was 22,005,200 pounds against 20,637,800 last year.

Canadian Tanks Big Factor In Recent Gains

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN TANKS IN FRANCE, June 21—(CP Cable)—Some of the most bitter tank actions in the Canadian sector of the Normandy battlefront have been fought by a unit which operated with the crack western infantry brigade of the Canadian 3rd Division in a dramatic thrust from the beaches of Courseulles to the Bayeux-Caen highway.

This unit supported the infantry all the way, fought German guns, panzers and snipers, and was a big factor in the firm stand the Canadians made on the rolling slopes near Bretteville on the main highway where the Germans threw in some of their strongest counter-attacks.

Two squadrons of tanks went in on the initial D-day assault at Courseulles and tanks from each squadron engaged beach defences at extremely close range as soon as they landed.

Hit Gun Slits

Second in command of a squadron which landed west of the inlet at Courseulles, Capt. Jake Powell of London, Ont., shot up one huge concrete emplacement by waddling his tank up close over the sands and banging 75-mm. shells through the gun slits. His tank received four hits but the western infantry had [illegible] chance by then to break [illegible] the wire and trench sys[illegible] and encircle the casement. Seventeen Germans surrendered and the rest of the garrison was dead inside.

Powell and his crew got into another tank after their was disabled and kept going.

This assault squadron was commanded by Maj. W. D. Brooks, Brantford. Another squadron commanded by Maj. D'Arcy Marks, Toronto, also came in on this beach after the first wave touched down.

Exit through the dunes was cleared despite enemy shell and mortar fire for the two squadrons and Headquarters held up on the beach. So Lieut. G. W. (Rep) Gordon of Orillia, Ont., was ordered to blow the armored cars out of the way. In his tank he charged at full speed across the minefield and cleared an exit. He didn't get a scratch.

The tanks then roared from the beaches through the sand dunes and into open country with the infantry.

Through Grain Fields.

German infantry were in the grain fields among standing crops and the tanks rolled through the fields spraying them with machine-gun bullets. More than 150 Germans were taken prisoner on those wheat-field forays.

Another squadron of this regiment landed on the beach just east of Courseulles Inlet. It was commanded by Maj. W. J. Duncan of London, Ont.

His tanks cleaned up Courseulles with the infantry and then advanced straight south through the fields just west of the River Mue.

North of Thaon, the squadron ran into concealed 88s and suffered some losses. However, they closed with the guns and knocked out eight.

Meanwhile, regimental headquarters and reconnaissance troops of light tanks commanded by Lt. W. A. A. Smith of Toronto followed up the advance. At Headquarters were Capt. Robert Rogers, Toronto, and two other officers, Lieut. Don Mills and Lieut. Grant Davy, both of London, Ont.

On the first night in France, headquarters even got its first prisoners. One was a German officer who was picked up riding a bicycle on the road and who feigned he was drunk when captured. Evidently he had been trying to flee south.

For a while Brooks' squadron held a section of the Canadian front all on its own and cooks, drivers and rear echelon soldiers were brought up to fight as infantry.

The heaviest fighting the unit saw came on Sunday, June 11, when this regiment and two companies of a Central Ontario infantry unit were ordered to attack south of Bretteville. Duncan's squadron and Marks' squadron did a flanking manoeuvre with Brooks' squadron and headquarters in reserve.

It had been learned that the Germans were preparing a heavy attack in that sector and the Canadians took the initiative to break up the attack before it got rolling. Canadian armor and infantry swept to the Caen-Bayeux highway, cut across the railway line paralleling the road and bumped right into the Germans as they were forming up for their attack.

Through orchards and over the fields there was bitter hand-to-hand fighting. It was a bloody action and the battle finally was broken off by both sides simultaneously.

The German losses were very heavy and the Canadian losses were considerable, too. But the 3rd Division's commander, Maj-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, assured the tanks and infantry that their gallant effort and sacrifice killed a strong German counter-blow which might have endangered the whole Canadian position.

The Better Plan

ALTON, Ill., June 21 (AP).—Bob McDaniels was having a bad day on the municipal golf course. "I could do better than this by throwing the ball around the course," he said. A golfing partner made a bet McDaniels couldn't do it in less than 72, twice par. McDaniels covered the 3,219-yard layout in 52 throws, putting on the greens as though he were shooting marbles.

and Canadian troops farther to the east, was quiet.

In the Cherbourg sector, the power drive from the south hammered against Four du Roule, on a hill at Cherbourg's outskirts and within a mile of the docks, and Fort Octeville, a little more than a mile to the west.

Cherbourg's great military port area, now exploding under German demolitions lies only two miles behind Fort Octeville.

The Germans were making a last ditch stand in these inner ring fortresses.

Heavy fighting was reported in the built-up suburban section of France's third greatest port.

The assault upon the forts raced forward from St. Martin le Greard, four miles south of Cherbourg, and advance units on the western flank drove to Acqueville, three to four miles west and slightly south of Cherbourg's city limits.

Fort du Roule, a major key to control of the besieged German stronghold, stands atop a 450-foot hill.

Smoke hung over the city as the trapped German defenders carried out hurried demolitions in the strategic harbor, now in plain view of the attacking American troops coming out of the hills surrounding their objective.

No Navy Action

Today's communique announced that the towns of Valognes, Les Pieux, Couville and Rauville la Bigot were in Allied hands, but the advance American line runs some distance beyond these points.

Despite German reports, the Supreme Allied Command said it has no knowledge that Allied warships were shelling Cherbourg from the sea and declared such an attack was unlikely.

The port is protected by seven heavy coastal forts which should be much simpler to take by land assault than from the sea.

A gale continues to blow in the Channel. Six-foot waves whipped over the invasion beaches, making unloading of supplies impossible for the time being.

Bad weather hampered aircraft over the battle area, but fighter-bombers blasted Cherbourg guns and forts. Many of the missions took to the air from landing grounds in Normandy.

In the Acqueville area the Americans stood less than two miles from the main highway leading out of Cherbourg to the tip of the peninsula to the northwest.

(A few hours later an NBC broadcast from London reported the Americans had plunged to a point within two miles of Cherbourg's city limits. The broadcast declared the fall of the port seemed imminent.)

Noose Closing.

As some American units battered against the city in a frontal assault from the south, others to the west and east drove up both coasts of the peninsula, closing a noose around from 25,000 to 50,000 Germans now left with virtually no chance of escape.

The Allied Command in a broadcast urged the trapped enemy to surrender. The alternative, the spokesman warned, was death.

On the British-Canadian sector, William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported yesterday's main activity was made up of patrolling and minor local actions, after British units took long-contested Tilly Sur Seulles late Monday and drove southward a short distance.

Two avenues were available to the enemy garrison to withdraw from Cherbourg itself. One lay north-eastward to Cap Levy, the other northwestward to the peninsula's tip at Cap de la Hague. American long-range artillery was hurling shells into both roads.

News Lagging

Information given at headquarters lagged far behind the progress in the field. Headquarters communique No. 30, issued last night, reported Allied troops "attacking the outer defences" of Cherbourg and fighting on three sides of Valognes, 10 miles southeast of the port.

Field dispatches already had told of the capture of Valognes and penetration of the first of three rings of defences around Cherbourg, with the 9th Division plunging beyond St. Martin Le-Greard, four miles south of the port.

American columns made steady gains up both coasts of the peninsula in an effort to outflank the port. On the west advanced elements had reached Vasteville, only six miles southwest of Cherbourg. On the east other troops had pushed as far as Eglise de Grenneville, 13 miles to the southeast.

French Patriot scouts, attired in oddly-assorted uniforms, guided the Americans on the bloody path to Cherbourg. The Patriots drifted into the American lines, begging to assist in the city's capture.

"They know the country well and we see no reason why they couldn't help," an officer said.

Other Allied elements strung along the Normandy front of more than 100 miles were engaged chiefly with holding actions.

Americans south of Carentan pushed to within two miles of St. Lo, crossroad key to the whole of the Normandy peninsula.

MISS HENRIETTA NEEDLER

MILLBROOK, June 21 (ENS) — The death of Miss Henrietta Needler, life-long resident of Millbrook, took place at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Monday, following an extended period of ill health. Deceased was in her 75th year, and was the younger daughter of the late George Needler, and his wife, Ellen Stewart, highly respected residents of this community and its vicinity from pioneer days.

Miss Needler was educated in the local schools and also attended DeMille Ladies' College, at Oshawa; she was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican church, faithful in attendance and support, and active in the Women's Missionary Auxiliary, the Red Cross, and other organizations, as long as her health permitted. Possessed of a strong personality, and of a sterling Christian character, her cheerfulness during a trying illness, attended by much suffering, endeared her still further to a wide circle of friends, and while in good health, she carried on graciously with the generous hospitality which has always been a feature of the Needler homestead.

Deceased was one of a family of seven children, five sons and two daughters, of which but two members, Dr. G. H. Needler, retired professor of the University of Toronto, Toronto, and Alfred Allen, at home, still survive.

The funeral takes place from the family homestead, Anne street, today, the Rev. A. E. Chevis, rector of Cavan parish, having charge of the service. The pall-bearers include: Frank and Gordon Savigny, William Stewart, of Peterborough, George E. Burnham, Harold Tate and J. E. Allen, Millbrook. Interment will be in the family burial plot at St. Paul's cemetery, 4th Line, Cavan.

MRS. ELIZABETH DEYELL.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Deyell, 265 Park Street, was held today from the Nesbitt Funeral Home, Charlotte Street, with Rev. H. J. Mahoney of Knox Church officiating. Interment was in Little Lake Cemetery.

A member of many years standing in the Women's Liberal Association, she had been honorary vice-president during the past eight years, and vice-president for quite a few years before that, taking an active interest in the association's affairs.

Mrs. Deyell, whose husband, the late Dr. James D. Deyell, V.S., predeceased her 10 years ago, was born in Toronto the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rogers, and moved to Millbrook about 1894, after her marriage. She had been a resident of Peterborough since 1918 and was a member of Knox United Church.

She leaves a son, Dr. J. S. Deyell, of Ravenna, Ohio; while a daughter, Mrs. Ray Brown of this city, passed away in October, 1942. There are two grandchildren, Miss Mabel Maureen Brown and Stewart Andrew Brown, both of the city.

been reviewed again for close co-operation of the British with American forces in the war against Japan when it is possible to swing strength to the Pacific and away from Europe.

A Japanese naval spokesman was quoted in a Berlin broadcast today as saying Japan's air and naval forces "have successfully engaged an American fleet" but Tokyo radio in another broadcast to the homeland quoted an Imperial Headquarters communique as acknowledging "we have suffered considerable losses of ships and planes."

On embattled Saipan, in the Marianas, 1,500 miles southeast of Tokyo, the going still is tough. The American forces called on planes, artillery and guns of warships to help crack bitter resistance of an estimated 20,000 Japanese, a communique last night reported.

What may prove to have been the first preliminary blow of a showdown naval fight was struck Sunday from enemy aircraft carriers. Their planes, flying from the direction of the Philippines by way of Guam and Rota in the Marianas, lost 300 aircraft in trying to sink U.S. carriers and battleships of the invasion fleet. Last night, Admiral Nimitz told a press conference that not one combat ship was sunk.

He assured a press conference the United States 5th Fleet packs sufficient "power to be favorable to us in a decisive engagement," even if it is massed more than 1,000 miles beyond the U.S. advance naval base in the Marshalls and 3,800 miles from Pearl Harbor.

"We hope the Jap fleet will stay in that (Philippines) area," he said. "As long as they stay, we have a chance to get at them."

due entirely to the introduction and enforcement of conservation measures.

The voluntary support of restrictions has resulted in essential needs being met. Gasoline consumption in Canada for all purposes in the year ended March 31, 1944, amounted to 814,246,820 gallons, against 624,997,390 gallons in 1939.

"Careful planning has provided gasoline available to the public in quantities sufficient to honor gasoline and fuel oil coupons which had been issued" the Minister said. "In that respect we are more fortunate than any other country."

Referring to the quantities of gasoline required by the armed forces, Mr. Howe said he had been advised that a pre-invasion estimate had indicated that Canada would have to move offshore this year four times as much aviation gasoline as she did in 1943.

This was the second German division to be diverted from the western front since the Allies' spectacular advance in Italy began, the 20th Luftwaffe division having arrived here previously from Denmark. Prisoners also have been taken in the same general area from the 16th S.S. division which was brought here from the Balkans.

On the east coast Allied troops reached the River Menocchia, about four miles north of the River Tesino, where they were the day before.

Hit Aircraft Carrier

Heavy rains limited military movements. The situation was unchanged on the 5th Army front, "except for minor tactical gains," said the Allied communique.

Medium bombers of the 1st Tactical Air Force severely damaged a 20,000-ton enemy aircraft carrier in the harbor of Genoa yesterday, it was announced today.

The ship was believed to be the previously damaged Italian carrier Regola, which was being refitted in the harbor.

The formation scored five direct hits on the vessel, which had not been in service since it was hit previously.

Tactical aircraft flew 750 sorties yesterday over the battle area and all returned.

The occupation of Perugia was carried out by a column led by 16th and 5th lancers, famous British cavalry regiments now armored.

Take Many Towns

Farther west, 8th Army trops were astride highway 71 northeast of Lake Chiusi and the towns or Chiusi and Cetona were cleared of the enemy.

Motorized forces were greatly handicapped by three days of heavy rains which made some roads impassable.

French forces on the right flank of the 5th Army ran into bitter resistance in some villages. Nevertheless the villages of Monticello, Seggiano, Vivvo d'Orcia, Bagni, San Felippo, Paucia, Palozzetta, Poggio Manje, Pantano and Campiglia d'Orcia were occupied.

The occupation of Grottommare, population 5,800, represented an advance of some 50 airline miles north-west along the coastal highway from the Ortona sector where the Canadian Crops spent the winter before being transferred westward to play an important part in the new offensive. The Canadians were taken out of the line for a rest after aiding in the breaching of the Gustav and Hitler lines and taking part in the fighting that preceded the fall of Rome.

Parties Approve Department On Post-War Plans

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP).—All parties in the House of Commons went on record yesterday in favor of a department of government to handle post-war reconstruction.

As Canadian soldiers battled in the first phases of the invasion of Europe Prime Minister Mackenzie King put forward a bill to set up the new agency and pictured it as another step in a program of post-war planning which has been proceeding since war started.

While all groups in the House endorsed the idea of having a department spokesmen for the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups were sceptical about whether the government program would meet the needs. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, complained the department would be merely a co-ordinate agency and would not take control of Canadian resources and plan their development.

Walter Kuhl (SC-Wetaskiwin) objected to post-war emphasis on employment and thought with modern machinery there should be more unemployment or leisure. Fewer people working a four-hour day could provide all with incomes equivalent to $4,000 a year if appropriate financial steps were taken.

G. Wood (L-Brant) said that as a farmer he could not understand the Social Credit party's claim that the post-war problem would not be one of providing employment, but one of distributing goods and leisure.

He said Mr. Kuhl had stated that by working four hours a day four days a week enough goods could be produced to supply all the needs of the Canadian people.

Despite differing approaches by individual speakers the general theme was that after the war the same degree of full employment and income should be maintained as in war. For the accomplishment of this purpose Mr. King relied on a greater degree of economic collaboration between nations and greater co-operation between governments in Canada.

There were two reasons, he said, why it had been possible to accomplish things in war that hadn't been accomplished in peace. All the United Nations worked to a common objective in wartime and within Canada the Federal government under emergency powers was able to carry out its policies whereas in peacetime it frequently had to obtain consent of the provincial governments.

A Broad View

In peacetime instead of working for the expansion of trade countries too often tried to provide prosperity for their own people by taking away employment from peoples in other countries.

"If as a group of nations interested in having world peace," he said, "we can help to develop trade throughout all parts of the world we shall perhaps be taking the most effective of all steps in the direction of bringing about those conditions which for Canada particularly it will be necessary to establish if we are to have the development of our great primary industries carried on to the extent it should be."

Mr. King said he contemplated no difficulty in obtaining the money which will be needed to carry out post-war reconstruction programs, and he expressed the hope the money could be obtained without increasing taxation or the public debt.

Expects Boom

Mr. King said during the war the country has raised money through loans and taxation mainly for purposes of destruction of property, of community and national life, and of human lives.

"When the whole picture is reversed, and it comes to a matter of carrying out constructive work, work for the rebuilding of communities, the necessities and conveniences and luxuries of life, there is going to be a demand for employment the like of which could Mr. King.

"And where you get demands of not arise at any other time," said this kind for labor, I do not think one need fear about the increase of the public debt or taxation to accomplish these things. If we can get a demand for labor and goods and commodities and things which are constructive, I believe the nation can go ahead with the great work of construction and reconstruction and at the same time reduce its taxation and reduce its debt."

Prosperity was not something which one nation could enjoy by itself. It had to be shared. As the nations got this larger conception they came closer to ensuring the fullest possible employment of their people.

Wants Conference

During the war the Federal government had been able to act for the whole of Canada in war measures.

"I hope and believe," he said "that as a result of what has happened during the war, the co-operation which the Federal government has had in very large measure from the Provincial governments, and in consequence of the conferences still to be held between the Provinces and ourselves, we shall work out some means whereby we can, in the period after the war, secure still greater effort."

Mr. King said he hoped the Dominion-Provincial conference would be held soon and would squarely face some of the post-war problems. If the session continued until December, he told Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, he thought the conference should not wait for the end of the session. He was not able to give a date but wanted it at a time when all Provinces could attend.

Budget Ready Monday.

Before the House turned to discussion of the proposed Department of Reconstruction, Finance Minister Ilsley announced that the budget would be brought down Monday at 8 p.m., E.D.T., and third reading was given to a bill setting up a Veterans' Affairs Department to petroleum supply position '; hm handle all matters concerning ex-service personnel.

Munitions Minister Howe, reviewing the petroleum supply position, said that unless the Allies win a quick and overpowering victory further curtailment of gasoline and other petroleum fuel supplies for the public was probable.

Several members of the Commons Reconstruction Committee which worked on post-war problems for two sessions and recommended creation of the Department spoke after Mr. King moved the second reading.

Gray Turgeon (L-Cariboo), the chairman of the committee, warned that the people are not in a mood to permit their representatives to waste time reaching decisions either on financial liabilities or constitutional rights. They wanted action in time to meet the situation.

Clarence Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) said he was afraid of those who talked much of international measures which would assure more trade and employment. It was up to Canada to regulate its internal affairs.

This view was challenged by Paul Martin (L-Essex East) who said it was not in harmony with previous speeches by Mr. Gillis or Mr. Coldwell. The greatest possible hope for satisfactory conditions after the war lay in the closest collaboration between nations.

Along with the Pas de Calais bomb launching platforms German gun casements defending the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula and a stubborn coastal battery at Houlgate, near the Allies' east flank, were bombed both yesterday and last night.

Flames mounted high after the attack on the railroad junction of Chartres, 80 miles southwest of Paris, and trains on the Chartres-Lemans line were strafed.

Capping five months of hammering at the Pas de Calais area by the Allied Expeditionary Air Force alone—not counting the heavy bomber attacks — in which 10,000 tons of bombs were dropped in the course of 420 attacks by a total of 23,500 planes, R.A.F. planes of various types blasted 10 separate rocket bomb bases yesterday.

Flier Survives Crash Landing

LAKEFIELD, June 21.—(ENS).—A/LA. William R. Kempte, student flier from Bermuda stationed at the R.A.F. Fleet Air Arm Naval Station, Norman Rogers Airdrome, Kingston, brought his plane down on the farm of Elmer Northey just south of the Lakefield Fair Grounds after a near brush with death Tuesday afternoon.

Flying a Harvard Trainer on a cross-country solo flight from this base the airman got into difficulties in low-lying rain clouds shortly after 3.30 p.m. His plane went into a spin and was brought out of it a bare ten feet above the ground. Expert manoeuvring enabled A/LA. Kempte to hedgehop several trees, and after circling the village, to bring his ship down in Mr. Northey's wheat field.

In taxing across the field, the Trainer sustained its only damage. The wheels struck a soft spot, making the nose dip and bending the tip of one propellor blade, the airman was unhurt.

On telephoning his base, A/LA. Kempte was given orders to stay with the plane, and early in the evening his instructor flew over and dropped a message telling him to stand by until mechanics arrived. It is expected that the plane will be flown off the field sometime during the day.

A LAKE COUNTRY

Lakes and rivers are more numerous in Finland than in any other European country.

Let us select at random the names of a thousand men from the records of the Great-West Life. Suppose that all of them in 1909, at age 25, purchased a $5,000 Twenty Payment Life policy, kept it in force and allowed the dividends to accumulate. Now here is what would have happened to these men between 1909 and today.

In 1914
22 have died before reaching age 30. Each of their families received $5,000 from the Great-West Life, plus accumulated dividends, although premiums paid averaged only $434.

In 1924
Another 46 have died, their dependents receiving $5,000 plus the profits that had accumulated. These men had paid into the Company an average of only $1,524.

In 1934
Another ten years have passed and another 71 men have died. The Company paid out $5,000 in each case, plus accumulated dividends, although the premiums received averaged only $3,734.

138 men, between the ages of 50 and 60 years, died in the past ten years. Their dependents also received $5,000 plus dividends. Premiums paid amounted to $2,850 in each case.

723 are still living—age 60. They still have $5,000 insurance protection, as they have had over the entire 35 year period. Each has paid into the Company $2,850 and yet the cash value of each policy has grown to $5,165, plus substantial accumulated dividends.

That is the way life insurance works. Many persons pay into a common fund. The dependents of those who die are protected. The policyholders who live receive benefits later on. Insurance is "all for each and each for all". No man can afford to be without life insurance.

Cobourg's Clerk Is Asked For Resignation

COBOURG, June 21—Town Clerk Alex W. Young, who for many years has been municipal clerk and treasurer, and who has been ailing for almost a year, was asked to resign by the town council at its meeting Monday night and was placed on three-quarter pay until September 1st. The finance committee was delegated to bring in a report on the qualifications necessary for a successor to Mr. Young.

Mr. Young, who has been in the service of the town for 22 years, said that the action of the council in asking for his resignation was the first intimation he had had that the council wanted his services terminated.

Introduced Resolution

A motion of Councillor Reuben Jackson, seconded by Councillor Clara Delany, introduced the matter of the resignation. It read as follows:

"That owing to the prolonged illness of A. W. Young, it is the desire of this council that Mr. Young send in his resignation on or before July 30 as this council feels Mr. Young incapable of fulfilling his work as town clerk any longer. We feel very deeply for Mr. Young and appreciate his past services and it is not our desire to be harsh with him, but we have a duty to perform to the ratepayers of the town of Cobourg. Therefore it is our duty to protect the best interests of the town."

Mayor Jack Burnet said that he did not like to see the resolution voted upon as all the council were not present and Councillor Delany in reply said that the council should all be present. She said that she had understood that the matter was to be cleared up by June 30. Mayor Burnet commented that Selective Service entered into the picture as the position was in B category.

"I feel very kindly to Mr. Young but I also have a duty to the town", observed Councillor Jackson.

Mayor Burnet suggested that Mr. Young served through July and August at a reduction of 50% in pay. Reeve Robert Love moved that the salary be cut to that extent but his motion was not seconded.

Hattie Hawkey, acting clerk, told the council at this point that she would rather see her salary cut than Mr. Young's.

"It is June 19 now, I doubt if Mr. Young could be replaced by June 30" said the mayor.

"I don't think Mr. Young should go, but should be kept on until a new man has been obtained," commented Reeve Love.

On motion of Councillor Alan Field, second by Reeye Love, a resolution carried which would reduce Mr. Young's salary by 25%.

Another resolution carried, moved by Reeve Love and seconded by Councillor James Rollings, that the Finance Committee be asked to bring in a report setting forth the qualifications of a successor to Mr. Young.

Council also passed a resolution instructing the tax collector to list tax arrears with the view of a tax sale.

Campbellford To Have Holiday On July 3

CAMPBELLFORD, June 21 (ENS) — At a special meeting of the Council, Monday, July 3 was declared a civic holiday, following the receipt of a widely signed petition from the merchants and business men. They also decided that in the future street dances will be held on Bridge Street and not on Front street as formerly.

FIRST CANADIAN NURSES IN FRANCE!—The first Canadian women to arrive in France since D-Day were two R.C.A.F. nursing sisters, Winnifred Pitkethly of Ottawa, Left, and Molly Mulholland of Georgetown, Ontario. They landed with the main party of an R.C.A.F. mobile hospital supervised by Wing Commander J. M. Growse of London, Ontario. The above picture, taken just before the field hospital unit crossed to the invasion coast, shows the two Ontario girls with the hospital mascot. After a "wonderful" crossing of the Channel the girls pitched in with the rest of the unit to put up tents and unload vehicles.

Lyttleton Gives House Apology

LONDON, June 21 (AP) — In a personal apology to the House of Commons, Capt, Oliver Lyttleton, Minister of Supply, disclaimed today any intention of saying in a speech yesterday that United States lend-lease aid to Britain had forced Japan into attacking Pearl Harbor because, he declared, such a statement was "manifestly untrue."

Capt. Lyttleton explained that in an interpolation in a speech which he delivered before the American Chamber of Commerce he had merely tried to make clear Britain's gratitude for aid given her by the United States before the Japanese attack upon Pearl Harbor.

He concluded:

"I want to make it quite clear that I do not complain of being misreported and that any misunderstanding is entirely my own fault.

"I ask the House to believe that the fault was one of expression and not of intention, and I hope that this apology will undo any harm the original words may have caused here or in the United States."

Air Ace Killed

Cobourg Padre Hailed As Hero

CAPT. R. L. SEABORN

COBOUNRG, June 20.—(ENS).—Capt. Robert L. Seaborn, M.A., B.D., chaplain of a Canadian unit that stormed and captured an important bridge from the Germans on the Caen-Bayeux railroad in the Tilly-Sur-Seulles district of France, is being hailed as a hero by his men. During the terrific fighting necessary to take the bridge Capt. Seaborn, although wounded himself, worked with first aid parties in carrying out and attending to more seriously wounded cases.

Born in Toronto, a son of the late Rev. Richard Seaborn, for many years rjector of St. Cyprian's church. Capt. Seaborn was at one time assistant at St. James' Cathedral and was appointed rector of St. Peter's church. Cobourg, in 1941. He was one of the most popular of the younger clergy of the Anglican Diocese of Toronto and before going overseas as a chaplain was offered a chaplaincy in the R.C.A.F.

Northumberland Crops Looking Good

COBOURG, June 21.—(ENS). —"In general, farm crops have seldom looked better," declared Ralph C. Banbury, agricultural representative for Northeumberland county in a recent comment on county crops. He stated there is some concern in wet areas owing to the frequent showers and it is possible that crops on poorly-drained land may suffer. On the other hand, up until a week ago, the hay crop on old meadows did not look very promising and this moisture is just what is needed to bring along good supplies of roughage. Supplemented by supplies of milk from shippers to Toronto, most cheese factories are handling much more milk than last year. In spite of the poor grain crop surprisingly little lack of feed is evidenced in hogs and poultry, with more than normal numbers going to market. Transplanting of tomatoes has been very satisfactory with losses from frost lighter than was feared. The set of apples is good and with most orchards having received better attention than ual a fair crop of clean fruit could be expected. Strawberries are ripening generally throughout the county and are selling up to 40 cents per quart box to the consumer. Weather conditions have been ideal and this crop may be sufficient to give housekeepers a chance to build up their preserves Mr. Banbury said.

Quebec Youths Stampede Buck Meeting

QUEBEC, June 21 (CP)—Sgt. Auguste Rochette of the Quebec city police said last night that Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, had left the city after being followed for some distance through the streets by crowds who had been present at a political meeting called by the party.

Buck, along with other speakers scheduled to be heard, was escorted from a hall on downtown St. Vallier St. by police, after a group of youths had prevented the meeting from starting.

Youths who followed along the street threatened to give Buck "a beating he will remember for a long time."

Several Buck supporters dashed into the Cloutier undertaking parlor and constables blocked the door. During the excitement the leader was placed in a police auto and whisked away.

"Crowds followed Buck through the street and we picked him up in a radio car," Rochette said. "He has left town by now."

He denied reports that Buck had been molested by the crowd.

Praised by Alderman

After the Labor-Progressive leaders left the hall the youths remained for a few minutes and then adjourned to a near-by hall, where they heard speeches from their own leaders.

Alderman Alphonse Boutet, in an address to the youths, congratulated them for "chasing out the Communists." He added that if any of the youths had been arrested for their action he would have "used my influence with Judge Morin (City Recorder Emile Morin.)"

An unidentified soldier shouted "You're a Fascist" when Leo Paul Savard addressed the youths, and when he was surrounded by a belligerent crowd, he took refuge in a near-by police station. Later he was escorted from the scene by military police who arrived in a truck.

The meeting had been called to nominate a Labor-Progressive candidate for Quebec East constituency to run in the next Federal general election.

The youths interrupted the meeting at the start by singing O Canada, Alouette, Vive la Canadienne and other French-Canadian songs.

Mr. Buck was scheduled to be the principal speaker at the meeting, but when Paul Moisan of Quebec, chairman, called the meeting

Use CERTO and get ONE-HALF MORE JAM or JELLY from the Fruit you buy

MAKE your jams and jellies with Certo this season and you'll put 50% more jam or jelly on your pantry shelf than you will if you use the old-fashioned, long boil method.

And with Certo you'll not only get extra quantity but extra quality, too. For Certo jams and jellies taste far better—look more appetizing. You make them in about one-third the time and you get sure results.

A pound of jam or jelly made the Certo way contains no more sugar than a pound made the old, long boil way.

Why Certo is Such a Help in Wartime

CUTS DOWN BOILING TIME
Making jam and jelly with Certo is quick and easy. For jam you need only a one to two-minute full rolling boil . . . for jelly only a half-minute to a minute. This saving of your time, energy and fuel is important in wartime.

MORE JAM OR JELLY
The Certo boil is so short that practically no fruit juice can go off in steam as it does during the old-fashioned long boil. The saving is so great that you get about one-half more jam or jelly without any increase in the amount of fruit you use.

NATURAL TASTE AND COLOUR
The short Certo boil does not affect natural fruit taste and colour as long boiling does. Jams and jellies made with Certo retain all the luscious taste and colour of the fresh fruit.

SURE RESULTS—NO GUESSWORK
With Certo you get a book of tested recipes—a different recipe for each fruit. Follow exactly the recipe for the particular fruit you are using and you can't go wrong. You'll make delicious jam or jelly with the greatest of ease.

WHAT CERTO IS
Certo is fruit pectin—the natural jellying substance in fruit—extracted from fruit in which it is most plentiful. It allows you to make jam or jelly from fully ripe fruit instead of the under-ripe fruit called for in old-fashioned recipes.

Look for Book of 72 Tested Recipes under the label of every Certo bottle.

The Seige Of Cherbourg

American forces in the Normandy peninsula have now cut off Cherbourg and are laying seige to it. The prize is a great one, for Cherbourg is a magnificent harbour and could be of the utmost value to the Allies. It is known that a considerable German force is in possession of the city, and estimates of its numbers range between 25,000 and 50,000 men. It will not be easy to take Cherbourg, but it will be ours eventually.

The American forces have a stranglehold on Cherbourg, and the first attempt of the enemy forces to break the hold resulted in very heavy German losses. The Germans will make the best stand they can, but it is most unlikely that they will receive any reinforcements. The trap is so complete that no relieving force could hope to break it.

Allied troops will clean out the Cherbourg trap as quickly as they can, but we need not expect them to do so with lightning speed. We want Cherbourg for our own use, and therefore we must take care not to blast it to pieces; when the city is ours we shall want to make use of the port with as few repairs as possible. Consequently the attack on the Germans will not be as violent as if we had no interest in the country taken.

A reliable report says that Allied forces have already taken 15,000 German prisoners in Normandy. When Cherbourg falls at least another 25,000 men will be either dead or in our hands. These figures are desperately important to the Germans, for their manpower is now very thinly spread. In the present campaign in Italy our forces took 22,000 prisoners in three weeks, and this great loss accounted to some extent for the subsequent German demoralization and flight. The loss of forty or fifty thousand men in Normandy will count heavily against them.

It is clear that the manpower problem is grave with the Germans. There are many foreigners in their Atlantic Wall defences, which may mean that German troops are being saved for the final fight nearer home. The Germans claim to have 8,000,000 men under arms. Of these perhaps half are in the supply service or doing duty as occupation troops. Two or three million are on the Russian front. And on the Western Front our men have encountered Japanese troops and women snipers. And not only is Germany short of men; she appears to be short of transport as well, for horses are being used extensively in the supply service in Normandy.

The fall of Cherbourg will be a great day for the United Nations' cause, and the noose draws tighter every hour. The Germans are now experiencing those bitter, losing battles of which we had so many in the early period of the war.

A Surprise For Japan

The industrial centres of Japan have been bombed by what is described as "a sizeable task force" of American planes, the new B29 Super Fortresses; this is the beginning of a very serious phase of the war for Japan. It has been a long time in coming, but in this war we have learned to wait. In 1940 Britain had to 'take it' because she was not in a position to 'dish it out', and that continued to be the state of the United Nations for two full years; then, after great industrial and military efforts we had the men and the equipment to begin giving the enemy a little of his own back. The preparations for the present assault on Occupied Europe are the result, literally, of years of planning and working. Similarly the United States entered the war at a time when she was not ready to fight, and in the Pacific her soldiers and sailors have been making shift with inadequate weapons for some time. The B29, with which American airmen have just struck at Japan, was ordered into production in 1941, and it did not begin to be produced in quantity until this year. It takes a long time to get ready to fight a great war, and meanwhile someone has to hang on, and bear great hardship; the Americans and we as [illegible] must honour the men of Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Kwajalein and the heroic Australian forces, who did the fighting while the B29 Super Fortresses were being built.

We do not know much about the B29, and we shall not be told much for a while. It is better that the Japs should make their own discoveries about it. But we do know that it has the longest range of any plane made, that it cruises at a speed comparable with that of a fighter plane, and that it carries the heaviest guns ever mounted on a plane; it has four 2,200 horse-power engines, and it carries more bombs than any other bomber. On the basis of what we know about other planes, this means that the B29 flies at more than 300 miles an hour, can travel more than 3,000 miles on a round trip, and carries more than eight tons of bombs. Quite a gadget!

The Japs are reported to have moved some of their vital war industries to Occupied China. But the bulk of Japanese shipyards, steel works, and plane factories are still on the two southern islands of Honshu and Kyushu. The first raid of the B29s is reported to have put the biggest steel works in Japan out of commission for at least a month.

It has been said many times that the end of the war in Europe will merely mean an intensification of the war in the East. We do not think that Japan will be able to hold out long against the forces which the United Nations have built up during their years of laborious planning and waiting.

But Why Worry?

In a recent issue of The Saturday Review of Literature Mr. Waldemar Kaempffert writes about the faking of antiques, by manufacturers whom he calls "the world's most cultured crooks". Furniture faking, says Mr. Kaempffert, is a large and profitable business, and he quotes an English furniture expert as saying that fully 80 per cent. of the furniture sold as 'antique' is no such thing.

Of course these fake antiques are not all of entirely modern manufacture. In an 'antique' chair, for instance, the back and arms may be genuinely old, and the legs and seat may be clever fakes. By the time the antique manufacturer has treated them with substitutes which stain and age the wood, and has made a few realistic cracks and wormholes in them they look old enough to deceive all but the most expert eye.

But the question which occurs to us is, why worry? If an antique piece which you have bought is handsome, beautifully proportioned and satisfactory to you, what does it matter whether it was made in 1730 or 1930? If you want a chair to sit in you will probably find that a new one is stronger than an old one, and if it has the grace of the old combined with the strength of the new you have the best of both worlds. No room is so uncomfortable, so uneasy for both host and guest, as that which is furnished with guaranteed, but rickety, antiques; the host fears that his treasures may come to grief, and the guest hardly dares stir in his chair for fear of breaking something which is irreplaceable.

We have an heretical fondness for good fake antiques. They look old enough to be interesting; they are made on the best and most beautiful models; they are new enough to be strong and capable of easy handling. Being possessed of a strong imagination and a love of comfort, we can be completely happy in a room full of fake antiques which have good sturdy legs.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Most of the things you fear never happen, says an optimist. Yes, but a lot of things you never dreamed of do.

If you can make a better mousetrap the world will beat a path to your door, says a sage. And if you can bait the trap with a piece of prime old cheese, so much the better.

A popular paper, we read, will carry an "autobiography" of President Roosevelt's dog, Falla. We don't know the title, but we think that Diplomatic Pooch might fill the bill.

Someone has estimated that the cost of killing a single German in this war is about $60,000. A terrible price for something which cannot be regarded as either a pleasure or a luxury.

Hitler has personally given an order that the word 'catastrophe' may not be used in German communiques. Still, a few Nazis may remember the word for the unmentionable thing when it happens.

"Iceland Is Free", says a headline. Well, that is as it may be. Iceland no longer owes allegiance to the King of Denmark, and is a republic. But as the events of the past twenty years have shown us, monarchy or republicanism as a label has nothing whatever to do with the amount of freedom which a country may enjoy.

Good Words For the Clerisy

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

NO, the heading of this article is not a misprint for "Good Words For The Clergy," although the clergy are heartily recommended to read the book which I propose to review; that book is "Just Another Word" by Ivor Brown, the British critic and essayist, who collects words as other men collect butterflies or postage stamps. The words which Mr. Brown writes about so pleasantly in his book will be of interest to all the clerisy—that is, the whole body of educated and cultivated people. 'Clerisy' is a good English word for the clumsy and discredited "intelligentsia," which the Leftists have chosen to describe anyone who agrees with their views. Anybody who likes to choose and assay the words which he includes in his vocabulary, and is not content with a garboil of journalese, slang and the false gold of Hollywood and the radio will find "Just Another Word" a delightful and profitable book. It is the sequel to "A Word In Your Ear," which I have not been able to get hold of; if it is as good as its successor they are a precious pair indeed.

THERE are people who care little for words, and to them one word is as good as another; they are comparable to people who are tone-deaf, or who cannot distinguish among colours. There are people who have no taste in words, and who snatch at the longest and gaudiest because they hope to give an educated air to their speech or writing in that way. They are the people who like to say "rehabilititate" instead of "renew"; they "contact" their furnace man and "locate" their tooth brushes; they "finalize a commitment" where better men finish a job; they rarely have any complete understanding of the words they use so freely, and with them language ceases to be a means of exchanging thoughts, and becomes a kind of smoke-screen which frequently conceals shoddiness, poverty, or complete lack of thought. And finally there are the people who like words for their sounds and their shades of meaning, and who try to write and speak as accurately as they can; they know the value of simplicity, and they know the value of a rich, juicy word introduced into a sentence of common words, like a golden coin in a handful of pennies. Sometimes these word-fanciers are painful, affected writers, but very often their fondness for language gives them true eloquence.

ANYONE who hopes to impress the public by the use of words ought to take pains to learn something about them. Referring to the people who like any old word, so long as it is fashionable, Mr. Brown has this to say: "This brings me back to my original point, the curious carelessness of our time about what was once called rhetoric, the art of stating your case. How often do our propagandists—a class continually increasing in numbers and activity—stop to consider the values of words? It is astonishing to me that people whose profession is to persuade, or whose passion is to win converts to a cause should be so careles of their tools and so well content to employ long, tired terms and cliches instead of seeking fresh, brief and apt ones, terms whose value in sound is so easily discoverable. Public men, with policies to urge, continue to drool and drone on platforms and in print with no discoverable awareness that they are killing their own case by the dull and ponderous language they employ." Too true, and we need not look far in our intensely political Dominion to find confirmation of it. "Bright is the ring of words when the right man rings them," said Stevenson; men who can make words ring are as scarce as hen's teeth in these days, though the flood of undistinguished verbiage rises higher and higher.

THE history of words is an endless study, full of surprises and delights. Take the word "behaviour," for instance; nowadays we qualify it with 'good' and 'bad,' for we do not permit the word to have any character of its own; but it used to mean good manners, and to say of a man that "he knew behaviour" was to imply that he was familiar with all the niceties of courteous deportment. An interesting change has come over the word "busy"; before the Reformation it was used contemptuously of people who bustled and fussed about their work, and this usage still persists among artists, who often say of a fussy or over-elaborate design that it is "busy"; but nowadays it is a sign of grace to be busy, and we announce that we are busy with pride, as thought we laid claim to a virtue. In the Middle Ages work was considered, very properly, as the curse which God laid upon Adam for his sin; nowadays we like to pretend that there is some special grace in work itself, and the words "busy" and "good" are almost interchangeable in our morality. "Person" has fallen in the world; three hundred years ago a "person" meant someone of importance—a personage, in fact; now we use it mainly when referring to someone of no importance. And the word "precious" has been restricted in its use and humbled in its meaning. Consider this letter which Oliver Cromwell wrote to Colonel Walton on the death of his son...."Sir, God hath taken away your eldest son by a cannon-shot. It brake his leg. We were necessitated to have it cut off, whereof he died....True, he was exceedingly beloved in the Army of all that knew him. But few knew him, for he was a precious young man, fit for God...."

THE duty of the writer who is a good friend of his trade is to handle words gently, as a gardener handles flowers, to root out of his vocabulary words which are weeds, and to make judicious use of uncommon words. Of late years the advice has been very freely offered to people who want to write, that they should use simple words only, so that they may be understood by all their readers. This is good advice for the beginner, but it is not a rule to be observed by the writer who has learned the elements of his trade, and wants to work out a style of his own. Simple words do not fit every subject, and not every writer writes for simple readers. There is more in good writing than mere intelligibility. The man who seeks, for whatever reason, to enrich his vocabulary should not neglect "Just Another Word."

PLAIN-SPEAKING BLOKE

A clergyman in a railway compartment had for company a group of workmen whose language was hardly of the kind that a reverend gentleman is supposed to hear. One of them must have realized this, for, turning to the clergyman, he said, "You must excuse us, guv'nor, but yer knows we're just plain speakin' blokes as always calls a spade a spade."

"Is that so?" said the clergyman. "I should have thought that would have been the last thing you would have called it."

END OVER END

Let's Not Become As Nazis

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

IN the soldiers' votes bill which has just passed through the House of Commons, and which incidentally amends certain sections of the Dominion Elections Act, there is a clause which we think this country should not want. It is a clause providing that if a province should disbar from voting in a provincial election any person whose racial origin is that of a country at war with Canada at the present time, that person will also be deprived of his or her vote in a Dominion election.

If this clause were for the war's duration only, there might be some excuse for it. But it is made a permanent provision of the Dominion Elections Act.

In British Columbia people of Japanese racial origin are debarred by a provincial election law from voting in a provincial election. Under this amendment to the Dominion Elections Act, these same people in British Columbia will be debarred from voting in a Dominion election. Disfranchised.

Consider the implications. If at any future time any Government in any of our provinces should decide to debar from the vote people of German racial origin, or Finnish origin, or Italian origin, or Romanian origin, then the Dominion, automatically, would debar them (in that particular province) from the Dominion vote as well.

People of German origin are the third largest racial strain in this country. If, tomorrow, the Government of the Province of Ontario should decide to do to its citizens of German origin what the Government of the Province of British Columbia has done to its people of Japanese origin, then scores of some of our best Canadian citizens would be debarred from voting, not merely in an Ontario election but in a Dominion election. The disbarment would include such a men as Senator Euler, a former member of the Dominion Cabinet.

In British Columbia there are citizens of Japanese racial origin who were born in Canada; who have gone to Canadian schools; who pay taxes and perform all the obligations of Canadian citizenship. If the Province of British Columbia, in its wisdom or lack of it, wants to bar such people from voting in a British Columbia election, well and good. We can't help it. But British Columbia should not want to say, and should not have the right to say, that such people should be barred also from voting in a Dominion election. That is something the Dominion alone should decide.

This country, in the treatment of its citizens, can't afford to be pulled down to the Nazi level of barbaric notions about race; can't afford to have shot into its political ideas mad doctrines about "race and blood."

The British people, with their fairness and political wisdom, would never commit themselves to anything remotely resembling what this law proposes. We should not either. Perhaps the Senate, which was set up for the protection of minorities, and which is not concerned with votes for certain people in a certain part of Canada, will strike this clause from the Dominion Elections Act.

Philosopher In Rome

(NEW YORK TIMES)

OUR correspondent, Herbert Matthews, long inured to war, was interviewing Croce the other day. Croce is an ardent anti-Fascist and liberal. Now Mr. Matthews has interviewed George Santayana, another famous philosopher, who doesn't bother his head about Fascism or Communism and seems to be as remote from contemporary events as if he were a monk of the Thebaid. He showed a spark of interest in Spain, however, his native country. That, he has written, "was, after all, my real country," though he lived there only some nine years.

Though he lived long in Massachusetts and at least enjoyed himself as an undergraduate of Harvard, his observations in his latest book about Cambridge and Boston are touched with an asperity that would hardly be expected from so cultivated a source. He has been living in Rome since 1923. It was the natural place for him to go to. Aside from its historical and classical associations, it is a great religious capital. Though no longer a believer, Mr. Santayana has always set himself "down officially as a Catholic" by sympathy and tradition.

He has always been a thinker and spectator. Plato and Aristotle live without quarreling in his tranquil bosom. The humanist is doubled with the mystic. Like the East of Matthew Arnold, one of his favorites, he has "let the legions thunder by and plunged in thought again." Save for a sentimental allegiance to Spain, he is really a citizen of no country. But whatever his loss of interest in the later struggles of the world, twenty-eight years ago his "Egotism in German Philosophy" foretold the Nazi theories and practice. If he is no ardent patriot, he wrote of America in 1920 that "there is a fund of vigor, goodness and hope such as no nation ever possessed before."

Japan's Shrinking Frontier

American air and sea attacks on a vast arc from the Marianas to the Kuriles have shrunk the Japanese frontier once again. To the north they have carried war to within 600 miles of the home island of Hokkaido.

Our second sustained attack on the Marianas was even more successful than the damaging blow delivered last February. This time the Japanese did not detect the approach of the American task force in time to permit the escape of their shipping.

The Marianas group, under its fourth day of attack by fleet units, lies on the last line of Japan's central Pacific defense. From them a 1,300-mile expanse of ocean leads to Tokyo, with only the Bonin Islands intervening off the Japanese coast. One would think the Marianas, all natural volcanic strongholds, would have been made almost impregnable to assaults from the sea. Let the enemy seems powerless to prevent or oppose our powerful air and sea attacks. The latest are evidently for the purpose of neutralizing any defenses built up since our previous attack.

Sooner or later we shall doubtless attempt to occupy the Marianas. Guam must certainly be recovered, for it belongs to us as the last outpost on our direct line to Luzon. In taking it we could not afford to by-pass its neighbouring fortified islands. Indeed all these Pacific strongholds, from the Marianas to Truk and Palau, are stepping-stones in any advance to the Philippines and the China coast. All are under heavy bombardment. Their usefulness to Japan is being steadily reduced. Palau especially has lately been brought within range of General MacArthur's fliers. It was bombed continuously before the Marianas attack to block the dispatch of any aid from that quarter. Japan's strategic network in the Pacific is being broken up, her fleet has been driven to safer waters and new targets loom as landmarks on our widening horizon.

Letter To The Editor

GREASE FOR GUIDES

Sir,—"Old Timer" writes deploring the manners of our young folks; maybe he is right. But regarding the buckets of grease, he claims to have given out without thanks, I'm afraid he has been giving them to the wrong people. Many children are collecting fats and keeping the money they receive from the sale of it. The Girl Guides or Brownies are the only organization authorized by the government to collect grease (they carry identification). If "Old Timer" will make sure he is giving the grease to the Guides I'm sure he will be rewarded with a thank you, and a smile for good measure.

"GUIDER."

A Bible Message

Open to me the gates of righteousness: I [will] go into them, and I will praise the Lord.. [I] will praise thee: for thou hast heard me, and [art] become my salvation.

The stone which the builders refused is [be]come the head stone of the corner. This is [the] Lord's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes. [(Psalm] 118: 19, 21-23.)

And he entered into a ship, and passed [over,] and came into his own city. And, behold, [they] brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lyin[g on] a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith, said unt[o the] sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy [sins] be forgiven thee.

And, behold, certain of the scribes [said ...] Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? [For] whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forg[iven] thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But tha[t ye] may know that the Son of man hath power [on] earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the [sick] of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go [un]to thine house. And he arose, and departe[d to] his house.

But when the multitudes saw it, they [mar]velled, and glorified God, which had given [such] power unto men. (Matt. 9: 1-8.)

Unconsidered Trifles

MacTavish was very shy. When he we[nt to] his first dinner party he made frantic effor[ts at] being a conversation with the lady at his e[lbow.]

"Does your brother like cheese?"

She turned with a smile and replied: "I ha[ven't] a brother."

Dead silence for another spell.

Then he said: "If you had a brother, d[o you] think he'd—he'd like cheese?"

Hunger In France

American soldiers entering little towns in [Nor]mandy have been surprised by finding, in deserted houses, the evidences of comfor[table] living. They had heard that the F[rench] were starving, but the French seemed to [have] had meat, cream, butter and wine in abund[ance.] One soldier quoted in a Reuter dispatch pub[lish]ed in this newspaper thought it "a da[mned] shame" that we are "already beginning to [ship] in food for the French." The soldier was [...] by his honest impressions, but his comme[nts,] not corrected by other observations, may d[o in]finite harm. Normandy is a land of fo[od,] farmlands and orchards. Food could be, [and] doubtless was, hidden from the Nazis. In h[omes] where soldiers were billeted or where colla[bora]tionists lived it did not even have to be hi[dden.] This fact does not mean that there was p[lenty] throughout Normandy for everybody, an[d it] certainly does not mean that there is plen[ty in] France.

For France as a whole we have many ey[e-wit]ness accounts and some statistics. A yea[r ago] deaths from tuberculosis were up 60 per [cent] over pre-war levels. Doctors recorded that [man]ual workers were below pre-war weight[s by] twenty to thirty pounds. One-third of [the] school children made no gain in weight [last] year. New-born babies weighed an avera[ge of] less than six pounds. Since 1940 deaths [have] exceeded births by three or four times the [pre-]war rate of 35,000. Relief workers, notably [those] of the Society of Friends in Vichy, France, [have] given heart-rending accounts of chronic m[alnu]trition. The wartime diet for the vast bu[lk of] the population simply has not been sufficie[nt to] maintain energy and health at the normal [pre-]war level.

Like every Nazi-occupied country, F[rance] needs vast supplies of food. Food is one o[f the] weapons that will help us win the war, her[e and] elsewhere, saving not only French lives bu[t the] lives of our own soldiers. A few jugs of No[rman] cream don't offset that stern fact.

Huns Neglect Italian Refugees

ROME, June 21 (AP)—Allied control commission officers who visited a camp established by the Germans for Italian refugees from the Anzio and Cassino areas reported to day they found practically all its 6,740 residents suffering from malnutrition and scabies.

More than 500 of the Italians, mostly children, were afflicted with other ailments.

The camp had no latrines, no cooking facilities, inadequate water and the refugees were living in filth, the officers reported.

It had one Italian doctor, but the officers found him, at 4 p.m., in bed smoking and reading a newspaper.

Fourteen truckloads of food have been delivered to the camp and the refugees are being returned to their homes as soon as they are screened for infectious diseases.

"Canadian credit and business methods were never more esteemed in South America than they are today. I maintain that Canada and Brazil are economic neighbors, inasmuch as what we lack you can supply and what you require—rubber, coffee, cocoa and so on—we have in abundance."

Shell Output Speeded Up For 25 Pounders

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 21 (CP)—Canadian 25-pounder batteries are pumping out ammunition in France and Italy at a rate that makes artillery duels of the First Great War comparable to pyrotechnic displays—and that, the Munitions Department said today, is the reason Canada's ammunition program has been pushed to new heights.

W. L. Tregoning, Director of Ammunition production for the British Ministry of Supply, has recently completed a series of off-the-record talks to Canadian workers engaged in ammunition production. Today information he gave workers was made public.

"The truth is the Allies are far from running short of ammunition, but from battle experience the United Nations have found that devastating effects can be achieved by an increasing use of artillery fire," he said.

"Accordingly, on all front the Allies are stepping up their expenditure of ammunition. Their reserves have not been tapped. The revision in the production program result simply from the need of assuring that months hence ammunition stockpiles will be adequate."

Great Fire-power

The fire-power of 25-pounders, as well as other guns, has far exceeded expectations, Mr. Tregoning said.

At Passchendale in the First Great War the Canadian Corps averaged 1,370 tons of ammunition per 24 hours. Today a single 25-pounder gun can fire 1½ tons of ammunition an hour.

A call has gone out for 10,000 workers to help speed up Canadian ammunition production. Engineers estimate it takes 3¾ man-hours to produce a complete round of 25-pounder ammunition. In that time a 25-pounder gun can fire more than 1,000 rounds.

In addition to 25-pounder ammunition Canada has new orders for 4.5-inch field gun ammunition, 5.5-inch howitzer shells and projectiles for is listed as the main limiting for is listed as the main liniting factor in attaining the new peak output quickly.

Canada's production of gun ammunition has been no mean achievement in the past. Last year it was at the rate of about 30,000,000 rounds a year and production to date is in excess of 70,000,000 rounds—but to meet the speed at which these shells are being fired over the rugged Italian terrain and the rolling Normandy hills new targets now have been established for Canadian workers.

Nazi Panzers On Defensive

By SIDNEY MASON
(Reuters War Correspondent)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 21 —(CP-Reuter)—Marshal Rommel's four panzer division along the British-Canadian front in Normandy are being forced into the defensive, a role which the Germans never envisaged when they threw them in.

Gen. Montgomery is, in fact, dictating the way in which the German armor, which includes the crack 2nd and 21st Division, is being used.

Armor is an offensive weapon. Its employment defensively is unnatural but it is a line of tactics made inevitable by the continual thrusting by Montgomery's tank formations along the whole length of the eastern sector from around Caumont to Troarn.

Montgomery's tactics in imposing the nature of the fighting upon his opponent also has an effect on operations on other parts of the front. They may mean that Rommel is in no position to weaken his tank forces on the eastern sector and this may be to the advantage of Allied troops operating on the western flank.

24th Sub Lost

WASHINGTON, June 21—(AP)—Loss of the submarine Grayback, presumably in operations against the Japanese in the Far Pacific, was announced by the United States Navy to-day.

The 1,475-ton submersible carried an estimated personnel of 65 officers and men. She was commanded by Cmdr. John Anderson Moore, who is listed as missing in action. The loss brings to 24 the number of American submarines missing since December 7, 1941.

Claim Germans Ready To Use Poison Gas

NEW YORK, June 21 — (AP) — Radio France at Algiers said today in a broadcast to French areas the Germans had transported "large quantities" of poison gas from Germany into Hungary "with a view to using it against the Soviet Army, from whom they dread a new and powerful offensive."

The broadcast, reported by United States government monitors, said thes information had been received from the Balkans via Ankara. It added that a "German official paper" June 2 had published "detailed instructions concerning the transport and handling of poison gases."

Woman Slashes Wrestler Dunlop During Battle

Virtue and villainy broke even at the Tunney wrestling rodeo at the Brock St. Arena Tuesday night for out of the mad mixup of team wrestling came a verdict of a draw.

The villains, well represented by the rowdy team of John Katan and Bunny Dunlop took the first fall by the simple expedient of trussing up Frank Sexton and ganging up on Toar Morgan and the people's candidates, Sexton and Morgan, squared the match by crushing Dunlop under the combined weight of the entire cast. The third round came to an official end when Sexton and Dunlop were knocked out of the ring, continued their battle on the floor of the arena and were both counted out by Referee Bert Maxwell. The decision of a draw didn't please either team or the crowd.

"What else could I do" asked Maxwell after the battle. "One man from each team was out of the ring and I simply had to count them out. As they had each taken a fall previously that made the whole thing a draw." Anyway it was a memorable melange with four of the biggest men in the wrestling game milling around in the ring at once and getting into so many mixups that they couldn't even keep track of themselves.

Dunlop The Target

Bunny Dunlop was the target for the night. He not only got crushed beneath the combined bulk of Sexton, Morgan and Katan to lose the second round but later he was tied up in a Cantonwine knot on the ropes while the other three wrestlers and a couple of excited women fans all pulled the ropes at once in an effort to hang the Toronto strongman. A little later he was knocked off the top strand when Morgan and Sexton used Katan as a battering-ram to ram Dunlop in the stomach. And then to cap it all while he was battling with Sexton on the floor of the arena some woman enthusiasts slashed his back with a pin or a pen-knife.

When the battle opened the four wrestlers did some canny manouevring before they finally swung into action and after that anything could and did happen. Sexton and Morgan got Dunlop out of the ring early in the round but they could not dispose of Katan before his partner was inside again. Then the villains had an inning when Morgan was temporarily absent but nothing came of it. Finally however the badmen got their chance when Katan succeeded in trussing Sexton in the ropes and left him hanging there half-strangled while the two ganged up on Toar Morgan and Katan pinned him for the fall. Sexton got loose just a split second too late.

All In A Heap

The second fall went to the forces of virtue and it was the result of a four-man pileup that found Dunlop on the bottom with his shoulders on the mat. The end came rather unexpectedly for the villains had tossed Morgan out through the ropes and had joined forces to subdue Sexton. However the Columbus powerhouse put up a stout resistance and when he went down with Katan on his back Dunlop was underneath. Morgan climbed back into the ring, piled on top of Katan and there was the strongman helpless beneath 700 pounds of wrestling brawn. Bunny looked as if he had been hit by a tank when he was finally uncovered.

When the third round was resumed he was coy about getting into the battling and Katan had to wave to him several times to do his share of the work. When he did get started he probably wished he had remained coy because he soon found himself with the ropes twisted around his neck and all hands, including his own partner pulling hard on the strands to increase the presure.

The trouble started when Dunlop tried to truss Sexton up and instead was left hanging himself. Katan had rushed over to the other side of the ring to pull the ropes and tighten the pressure, believing that Sexton was the victim. Morgan and Sexton also tugged lustily at the strands and two excited women ran to the ringside and also took hold of the ropes with the result that Dunlop was almost strangled before he could be released.

Soon after came the unexpected windup. Toar Morgan went to crash into Dunlop just as Sexton grappled with the strongman with the result that both Sexton and Bunny went sailing out of the ring and began all over again outside. Meanwhile Katan pounced on Morgan and was doing his best to flatten the former Marine. However Referee Maxwell counted ten before the absentees could get back and declared the match a draw.

For a while it looked as if all hands and some of the crowd would stage a battle royal but peace was finally restored.

A Bearded Indian

There was a novelty in the preliminary bout when Chief Thundercloud the Indian grappler, who was matched with Jumping Joe Maich of Brantford, displayed a luxuriant beard. Bewhiskered Indians are a rare specimen. However the Chief proved to be quite a wrestler at that with a repertoire of most of the badmen tricks used by the ring's most hated rowdies. By and large he gave the popular Maich a going over, gouging, hair-pulling, rabbit punching and all the rest of the back alley stuff favored by the mat villains. Maich who knows his way about didn't take it without handing out a receipt and he came back at the Indian with some of his own tactics and introduced a beard-pulling specialty that was entirely his own idea. The two fought thirty minutes to a draw and there was no argument over that decision.

Referee Bert Maxwell handled both the bouts and Fred C. Scates was master of ceremonies and official clocker as well.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Switchgear with eight straight wins under their belts tie into the Soldiers in a City League game at Riverside Park tonight at 7 o'clock and a lot of excitement should be packed into that contest before the winner is decided. Manager Murph Chambers' league leaders will be gunning for a victory because they want to keep their winning streak alive and on the other hand the Soldiers require a win to keep them in the running for a playoff berth so that both clubs are taking tonight's tilt very seriously. Ronnie Akers is about due to pitch for Switchgear with Holly Mowry working behind the bat while the most probable choice for the Military Training Centre is Pete Procyk, the Winnipeg boy who has been throwing nice ball for the lads in khaki It should be one of the best tussles of the season. That goes too for tomorrow night's battle when St. Peter's who chased the Plazas into a 12-inning argument the other night before losing by 6 to 5 will clash with U.E.W. featuring the league's leading slowball pitcher, Rosy McPherson of Millbrook. McPherson's brand of stuff bothered both Plazas and Switchgear last week and the Saints batters will probably find him every bit as tough in tomorrow night's argument.

The Brinton girls who had dropped a couple of contests in a row last week came back against Quakers the other night to prove that they had not lost their winning habits completely. That snap back to form should encourage the intermediate champs mightily and fill them full of fight for their return engagement with Aircraft at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight. The second-placers gave Brintons a lacing last Saturday but the defeat did not get the carpet-weavers down and they say that tonight's game will be a different kind of an argument all the way. Norma Strickland will do the firing for Aircraft while the Brinton gunner has not been announced. Tomorrow night the attraction in the Girls' loop will be a clash between Quakers and Johnson Motors and that should be an entertaining tussle between two clubs that look to be very evenly matched. It looks like Helen Mark to do the throwing for the Outboard Marines with Gertie Masters the likely mound artist for the Quaker girls.

Teams Are Perking Now

The quality of ball being shown in the City Softball League at the present time has shown so much improvement in recent games that it has the fans talking. Much of the betterment has been caused of course by the fact that the players are now in shape and that the teams have been filling some of their weak spots. In any event the Soldiers, St. Peter's and U.E.W. teams, one of whom will have to be eliminated from the playoffs are making every game a battle as they realize that the third and last round of the regular schedule will get under way next week. There are no more pushovers and the two leading clubs, Switchgear and Plazas have found the opposition decidedly tougher in recent games. St. Peter's gave Switchgear a good argument a short time ago and then came back the other night to force Plazas to play three extra frames before squeezing out a one-run win. As for U.E.W. and Soldiers, both outfits are making every game a battle. That all adds to the excitement and color and the result is a series of hard-fought games that has been steadily drawing larger crowds as the fans begin to realize that they cannot afford to overlook any one of the scheduled games from now on. There should be a lot of fun before the league title is decided.

Larry McPhail, former president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is to be commended on being instrumental in having nearly 280 former big league ball players, now in the uniform of Uncle Sam, distributed among combat units instead of being located at permanent stations, says Chick Appel in the Stratford Beacon-Herald sport column. The United States military authorities believe that the former professional diamond stars build up morale among the troops and where morale is most needed is among the boys doing the fighting. The same plan might well be adopted for Canada's fighting forces, and it would eliminate the general dissatisfaction that is being voiced about athletes being assembled at certain Army, Navy and Air Force training stations principally for the purpose of winning a title in sport. It was done in hockey, baseball and rugby in the past, so it is claimed, and the majority of the citizens, especially those with relatives on active service, were quite outspoken in their condemnation of the system.

Nears Another Mark

If Uncle Sam's army leaves Mel Ott alone for a little while longer the mighty atom who pilots the New York Giants will have smashed a number of records this season. He tied a long-standing mark yesterday when he scored the 740th run of his National League career in a game against the Dodgers and thus equalled the former record set years ago by the famous John Honus Wagner. That fact rather overshadowed the 7 to 6 defeat the Giants were handed by their neighbors, the Bums. In the other National League game of the afternoon the St. Louis Cards who show no inclination to allow anybody to come near sharing the top shelf with them nosed out the Chicago Cubs in a game in which Al Jurisich did a neat pitching job for the champs. In the American loop Hank Borowy of the Yanks hung up his ninth win of the season as against three defeats when he held the Washington Senators to four hits and the Yanks took the decision 3 to 1. Johnny Niggeling absorbed the loss, his second of the year. Niggeling has come down in front five times during the campaign and is having a good year, in spite of yesterday's loss.

Some of the folk take their wrestling rather seriously. Two women fans during the course of the team battle at the Brock Street Arena last night rushed to the ringside and helped to man the ropes when there was a mass attempt to strangle the unpopular Bunny Dunlop. A little later when the same Dunlop was battling on the floor of the Arena with Frank Sexton, one of the two feminine enthusiasts undertook to demonstrate that Kipling was right when he said that the female of the species was deadlier than the male. She produced a pin or a pen-knife and ripped a long gash in Dunlop's back. And even after the battle was over and the grapplers had retired to the dressing-room the firing kept up for some one hurled a stone through a window and pieces of glass landed in the hair of John Katan and Chief Thundercloud who happened to be standing close together. Incidentally John Katan indicated during the bout that he is getting tougher than ever, as he did a big share of the fighting for his team and handed out plenty of unorthodox stuff. Peterborough fans would like to see the Palermo Panther given a large dose of his own medicine. Some expert badman like the Hindoo Horror Nanjo Singh who has been causing a sensation in Toronto would seem to be the cure that Mister Katan needs.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Men's City League game between U.E.W. and the Soldiers was called off because of wet grounds but the girls' loop managed to get a fixture run off with a Lock Works win over the Westclox Baby Bens....Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox went gunning for his tenth victory of the season yesterday but after pitching eleven innings had to accept a 5 to 4 defeat at the hands of the Athletics. ....The A's also beat the Sox 2 to 0 in the second game with old Bobo Newsom holding them to two hits....Bucky Walters, grand old man of the Cincinnati Reds artillery department won his 11th victory of the 1944 campaign last night in blanking the Pittsburg Pirates on two hits ....Walters is unbeatable at night and not much softer in the day time. ....Leo Durocher has been taken off Brooklyn's active list but that of course does not apply to his tongue....Toronto Leafs ran into a four-hit pitching exhibition by Frank Hiller last night and the Bears beat them 7 to 2....Incidentally the Leafs are billed to play an all-star team from the T.A.B.A. on August 23....Reports from the Training Centre say that the Soldiers have a new pitcher with plenty of class.

Boston Pitcher Hughson Sparking Team To Victory

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian

Upward surge of the Boston Red Sox to a formidable spot in the American league pennant free-for-all has been accelerated by the fine pitching of Cecil (Tex) Hughson, handsome right-hander and first citizen of Kyle, Tex.

Hughson, generally regarded as the ace of the Boston staff despite a not-too-spectacular .444 pitching average last season, already has won nine games with the season only a third over. At this rate, the big Boston fellow will easily assemble 20 wins and may surpass his 22-game total which placed him first among American league flingers in 1942.

Included among Hughson's victories in his current streak are two wins over the once-mighty New York Yankees, now thrust into the second division of the terrific junior league race.

His latest effort was a six-hitter over the Philadelphia Athletics which pushed the Red Sox near the top of the heap.

The big right-hander began his career while still a student at the University of Texas. He was a pitcher on the college team and a good one. In 1937 he embarked on a professional career with Moultrie in the Georgia-Florida league. He won eight and lost six that season.

The next season he pitched for Canton in the Middle Atlantic league and turned in 22 victories to rate another boost in minor league class.

With Scranton in the Eastern league in 1939 Hughson won 12 games. His next step up the ladder of major league success was Louisville.

While he did not set the pitching mound on fire during his career with Louisville, Hughson was good enough a prospect for the Boston Red Sox to purchase him. He hurled five wins against three losses in 12 appearances for the Sox at the end of the 1941 season.

In his first full year with the Sox, 1942, he turned in 22 wins to top the league. Last year he could only win 12 against 15 losses, but he didn't have the benefit of a hitting club behind him. His earned-run average last year was only slightly over the season before but his win mark was 10 games under.

With the continued help of other Red Sox flingers, including the veteran Mike Ryba, who has been sensational, and the continued timely hitting of the Red Sox team as a whole, the Cronin-men may go on to win the flag, their first since 1918.

Cricketer Rejects First Class Offer

LONDON, June 21 — (CP). — Herbert Sutcliffe, internationally-known England and Yorkshire cricketer, has rejected offers to participate in first-class league cricket—so that he can be near his son and give him advice.

The Sutcliffes, senior and junior, play together as an opening pair in the less distinguished circle of the Leeds League, and young Herbert has inherited much of his father's talent He already has appeared at Lord's in a public schools match.

TORONTO, June 21 (CP)—Apparently there was no thought of a Lacrosse Hall of Fame in Vancouver when Sid McLennan offered part of the Forum as a boxla trophy room, but the idea is growing now, says Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell. Before long the fame hall may be a reality, since there seems to be a notable lack of interest in other centres.

No one has arisen to dispute Vancouver's claim to fame fallishness, and in fact Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara says in effect wottheheck. Opines Baz: "Vancouver wants to have the Lacrosse Hall of Fame—we guess that's the only place left with real old-time interest in the game, so let them have it."

Surely other centres of one-time boxla interest aren't going to give in without a fight?

Wheels to heels:

Ned Northwood used to run a filling station in Stavely, Alta., before gasoline was rationed and he went into the race horse game. Now Northwood has closed up his business and is devoting himself to racing, a far more profitable pastime. Northwood invested $50 in a nag, by name Kaliko, seven years ago. From that modest beginning he has developed into one of the Canadian West's leading horse citizens, and owner of Teeworth, the big mare that has brought home $14,800 worth of bacon the past two years.

Incidentally:

The Ottawa Tennis Club is in the race for the title of Canada's oldest. Records show the club was organized in 1880, which gives it the edge on Winnipeg and Victoria.... Art Gill, prominent Calgary athlete, has been killed overseas with the R.C.A.F. In 1941 he won the National Rifle Association pistol expert competition, sharpshooter's and marksman crests as a member of the Calgary Revolver Club....Hal (Edmonton Bulletin) Dean attributes increasing interest in soccer to the large number of Britishers and Empire youths who came to Canada to train under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. He predicts a good future for the game.

Athletics May Be Dangerous In Pennant Race

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sport Writer

Connie Mack's Athletics haven't won a pennant since away back when, and they aren't hot choices this year, but they might have quite a bit to say about who emerges on top in the American loop's free-for-all.

Connie's conglomeration of kids, castoffs and Cubans were residing placidly in last place when Joe Cronin's spurting, second-place Red Sox came to town and 18,500 fans turned out to see the fun.

When the smoke from the doubleheader cleared away, the Mackmen had jumped to a sixth-place tie, and had spoiled Boston's chance of slipping into first place over St. Louis Browns, who split a twin bill with Chicago's White Sox.

Needed 11 Innings

The A's needed 11 innings to beat Boston in the opener 5-4 but the second was easy, veteran Bobo Newsom allowing two hits for a 2-0 shutout.

The Browns stretched their lead to 1½ games by salvaging the second from Chicago 5-0, after losing the 10-frame opener 4-3. Al Hollingsworth won his first of the season in the nightcap.

Hank Borowy came up with another good mound chore, a four-hitter, and the Yanks loosed a 10-blow barrage behind him, as they defeated Washington 3-1 with Bud Metheny's homer deciding it.

Cleveland beat Detroit 3-1 but skidded into the cellar. Ray Mack, war worker, flew to Detroit for the twilight tilt and his ninth-inning fly sent the winning run home as hard-working Paul Trout weakened.

Bucky Walters copped his 11th win with a neat two-hitter against Pittsburgh Pirates. The Reds eased into third place, .001 ahead of the Giants.

The New Yorkers had a chance to stay up there, splurging for four runs in the first frame against Brooklyn, but Les Webber relieved Rube Melton with two out and held the Ottmen the rest of the way as the Dodgers won out 7-6.

Al Jurisich pitched five-hit ball for the loop-leading St. Louis Cardinals, but was in hot water all the way because of five walks and three hit batsmen. Pepper Martin and Stan Musial roamed far afield for sensational catches, however, and gave him a 2-1 victory over the last-place Chicago Cubs. The Phillies-Braves game was postponed.

Orioles Sweep Doubleheader

By The Associated Press

The Rochester Red Wings and the Baltimore Orioles are having their ups and downs in the torrid International League flag race. Today the Orioles are back on top, and the Red Wings are third, while Buffalo's Bisons stuck in second place.

Baltimore climbed over both Buffalo and Rochester last night by taking a twin bill from the Red Wings 4-0 and 10-6, although outhit 13-10 in the closing slugfest. Buffalo clung to the runner-up spot with a 1-0 victory over Syracuse in the first half of what was booked as a double-header, but rain washed out the last half.

Jersey City and Montreal, fighting for fourth place, traded a pair of tight ones, the Giants taking the opener 1-0 although the Royals outhit them 5-3. Montreal came back to take the second tilt 2-1 in 10 innings to hold fourth place by .001 of a percentage point.

Sixth-place Toronto used three pitchers in a vain attempt to halt seventh-place Newark, but the Bears emerged with a 7-2 decision in a contest marred by a half-dozen errors, three by each team.

He Returned

HAMILTON, June 21 (CP)—Maj. Raymond J. Downey of the United States Army Air Corps, reported missing seven months in the Mediterranean area where he was shot down last December, arrived at his home here yesterday. His wife said she received first word of his safety when he telephoned her from New York on his arrival there.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Les Webber, Dodgers— Checked Giants with fine relief mound job after Rube Melton had surrendered four runs in first inning. Brooklyn winning 7-6.

Stan Musial and Pepper Martin, Cardinals— Their spectacular outfield catches saved game for Al Jurisich, as Cubs were beaten 2-1.

Buck Walters, Reds—Held Pirates to two hits to win 11th victory 3-0.

Ray Mack, Indians— Flew from Cleveland war job to Detroit for twilight game, and batted in winning run in ninth as Tigers fell 3-1.

Bud Metheny and Hank Borowy, Yankees—Metheny's home run was deciding blow, backing up Hank's four-hit hurling, as world champs beat Washington 3-1.

NO GLAMOUR IN SPORTS? HM-M-M!—Who said there wasn't any glamor in sports? Well, how about these two golfing gals? They are Kay Byrne, Left, of Rye, N.Y., and Katharine Fox of Glen Ridge, N.J., and both are topnotch golfers. The two were snapped at Pinehurst, N.C., where they played in the North and South women's tourney.

Omemee Scores Another Victory

OMEMEE, June 21 (ENS)—Omemee Creamery won their second straight game in Lindsay Monday night by defeating Lindsay Arsenal 11-9 in a Town League game.

Hunter pitched for the Arsenal and had seven strikeouts, allowing 14 hits and yielding 3 walks. Johnson pitched a nice game for Omemee allowing 13 hits, 6 walks and striking out two. Both pitchers showed poor control at times and the fielding was very loose by both teams.

For a while it looked like a walkover for Omemee with the Arsenal held to the runs gained in the first inning, and at the end of the fifth the score was 7-2 for the O's. In the sixth, with two men out, the Lindsay team started hitting heavy and the Omemee fielders fell down badly, allowing 3 runs in that inning and 4 more in the seventh. John Deyell with two doubles and a single was Omemee's best hitter and Pedley for the Arsenal was best with 3 doubles and 2 singles. Lineups:

Omemee Creamery—Crawford 2b, Williamson 1b, Parsons 3b, Brooks c, Weir lf, McQuade cf, J. Deyell rf, Bradley ss, Johnson p.

Lindsay Arsenal—Hughes c, Pogue lf, Simpson cf, Hunter p, Telford 1b, Dobie 3b, Brigden rf, Pedley ss, Kelly 2b.

Score by innings:

Buck Lashes Out At C.C.F. Party

MONTREAL, June 21 — (CP) — —Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, to-day said in a statement that condemnation of the British Labor Party policy at a Quebec convention of the C.C.F. Party here last Sunday "illustrates at once both the inconsistency and the irresponsibility of the C.C.F. leadership."

A resolution adopted at the provincial convention said "the official policy of the British Labor Party of coalition with the Conservative Party compromised the working struggle against capitalism in Great Britain."

Mr. Buck in his statement added the resolution was "a glaring example of the irresponsible attitude toward the war and the future of Canada which characterizes the policy of subordinating every other consideration in the effort to attract votes."

Sells Prize Calf

BRANTFORD, June 21 (CP)—Officials of the Holstein-Friesian Association here said last night that the calf Glenafton Laurel Blossom, which raised $13,100 for the Canadian Red Cross Society at Brampton, Ont. in a draw recently, has been sold for $1,600 by the winner, James Sharpe of Moose Jaw, Sask., to H. L. Guilbert of Vercheres, Que. Mr. Sharpe turned over $800 to the Red Cross.

SEVEN CHILDREN OF OLD LINDSAY SOLDIER SERVING IN FORCES—QMS. Joseph Green of Lindsay, veteran of the Boer War and Great War, has reason to be proud of his fighting family. He has seven children serving in the forces, six of whom are overseas. Flt.-Sgt. William Green (Outside Left) enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in the spring of 1940 and is now stationed in the Western Air Command. Sgt. Albert Green (Second from Left) enlisted with the R.C.O.C. in December, 1939, and is now in Italy. Gnr. Kitchener Green (Third from Left) enlisted September 10, 1939, and is with the R.C.A. overseas. Sgt. Lois A. Green (Centre) who joined the C.W.A.C. in January, 1941, is one of a small group trained to serve headquarters staff during the invasion. Pte. Clifford Green (Third from Right) enlisted with an infantry unit in 1942 and is now serving overseas. Gnr. Henry Green (Second from Right) who enlisted with the R.C.A. in 1942, is also serving overseas. Enlisting September 10, 1939, Sgt. Richard Green (Outside Right) is with the R.C.A. in Italy. The father of these soldiers has served in military units practically all his life and was well known as 'The King's Good Penny.' He saw action in the South African War, and when he later came to Canada, enlisted at once with a Canadian unit. During the World War he served in England and France, and has tried repeatedly to join the Veterans' Guard in this conflict.

Archbishop Gives Communion

MILLBROOK, June 21 — (ENS) —His Grace, Right Reverend Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of all Canada, was the guest speaker at St. Thomas' church on Sunday morning. The whole parish was invited to come to Millbrook for the Primate's visit, and over forty communicants were out for the early service. Afterward breakfast was served in the parish hall in order that those coming from a distance might remain for the 11 o'clock service.

Bishop Owen chose his text from Genesis 13:14 and following verses where the Lord told Abraham to look over the land in all directions, "for I will give it unto thee." Applying this survey the Primate urged a careful looking over of all things to-day, in connection with Canada, with the church and with individual lives, having in mind present, and post war, problems.

Taking God's will into all the planning of community, church, national and individual life, and making it supreme will mean all the difference between success and failure in the war, and, afterward, as the Archbishop showed from the teaching of God's Word.

The rector, Rev. A. E. Chevis, was in charge of the service, and among the flowers on the altar were red roses, a gift to Mrs. H. M. Trick from her eldest son, Mervan, who cabled the order from Italy where he is on active service.

Guest Speaker.

Included in the special services in the village on Sunday was the visit of Rev. F. B. Allnutt, B.A., B.D., representing the British and Foreign Bible Society, who was the guest speaker at morning worship in St. Andrew's United church. During the offertory a duet, "Is He Your Next Door Neighbor?" was sung by Mrs. J. L. Larmer, of Peterborough, and C.S.M. Henry Gray, at present on furlough from Western Canada.

Mr. Allnutt was introduced by the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, who had charge of the service, the sermon being based on Romans 12:12, and the speaker showing that the good news from the invasion front is but one of the many reasons we have for rejoicing, in spite of world conditions to-day.

"Before the end of this year the bells may ring, and the whistles blow, and our boys be returning home, and 1944 become the most wonderful year in history. But let us remember that there is no other help except in God, and in His Word we find faith, courage, and the patience necessary to hold on, and to have our hearts unfold in the glory of His service."

The fact that every soldier leaving Canada is given a copy of the New Testament, was stressed as also that local subscriptions aid in this important work, the speaker commending the local community for its generous support of the Bible Society year by year.

"Faith, courage and strength come from studying and honoring God's Word, and while we follow with eager anxiety the fortunes of this war, our future will be determined not by the issue of this or that campaign, but by our fidelity to the eternal laws of Heaven."

FLORAL CENTRE

The village of Boskoop, Holland, was the largest centre in the world for flowers and ornamental plants before the war.

Hot-Air Furnace Sales Suspended

OTTAWA, June 21 — (CP) — Temporary suspension of sales and deliveries of all hot-air furnaces in Canada and a subsequent limiting of sales to persons holding essentiality certificates was announced by the Prices Board.

The announcement said certificates, which are to be available after July 1 will be issued "only in essential cases."

"The supply of hot air furnaces will not meet by a wide margin our overall requirements for replacements and new buildings," Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman, said in an explanatory statement.

Efforts to increase production will continue but are limited by shortages of steel sheet and labor.

While the freezing order became effective at noon today and prohibits the sale and delivery to builders, building owners and the general public, there is no prohibition on sales and deliveries within the trade—from manufacturer to wholesaler or retailer.

Foster Homes Needed For Children

An account of the bi-annual national conference of Children's Aid Societies in Winnipeg, as well as a report showing a vast amount of work and problems to be met, in Peterborough, was given by Miss Rachel Young, superintendent, at the final meeting for the season of the Children's Aid Society, Tuesday, in the Shelter. Copies of a report Miss Young made of the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, in Toronto, was distributed to Board members. Both accounts of meetings were complete, discussing the important problems dealt with at the conferences, and stressing the need for national planning to overcome difficulties occurring when differences of regulations between provinces arose.

In her superintendent's report, Miss Young said that May had been one of the busiest months on record, with 75 cases referred to the Society; 458 visits made; and 170 office interviews. She said that several serious emergency situations had arisen, involving illness, poor housing, incorrigibility, insufficient food, mental illness in the home, to the point where the child was in danger, non-support, and personality.

One factor stressed in the report was the acute need for foster homes. Miss Young said that a few homes were available, but were either interested in a certain sex or age, or were in an area where certain children could not be placed. Older children are very much in demand she went on, probably because people are busy and do not want responsibility for children who cannot help, but foster home care is a real and growing need.

Miss Young's report also praised the efforts of the Lions Club, in providing playground facilities for children of the city, but said that it could not be assumed that juvenile delinquency would suddenly cease. Younger children will benefit by learning good play habits, but the need for a family or juvenile court, is still very great, she continued.

Members discussed the problem of the establishment of the juvenile court, and it was felt that an arrangement might be made whereby the surrounding communities, Cobourg, Port Hope, and Lindsay would join with Peterborough. The court could travel from one place to another. James Dutton, chairman, said that he felt that the need for a court of this kind was never greater, since there were so many phases of the problem which needed consideration and the advice of a competent trained individual.

The report of the sewing committee, given by Mrs. G. R. Marshall, showed that several splendid donations of clothing and toys had been made. Mrs. E. F. Lawrence, Mrs. Robertson Davies, Mrs. H. Martin, Mrs. F. Hills, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. J. E. Keyes, Mrs. C B Muir, Mrs G. Hamm, Mrs. W. Thompson, and Mrs. P. Rowell, sent substantial donations of clothing, and Mrs. J. Comstock Mrs. W. G. Ovens and Mrs. J. Heffernan promised donations in the fall

Mrs. I. H. Vernor gave the Shelter report, in the absence through illness of Mrs. J. S. Fanning. There were nine children in the shelter on June 1. More splendid donations of food, vegetables, and toys were acknowledged. A motion was made to send flowers to Mrs. Fanning, with wishes for a speedy recovery, and the secretary was instructed to make arrangements. Suitable office accommodation has not been secured for the Society, but E. B. Fowler, reporting for the committee, said that the search was being continued.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the ladies of the Board, and Mrs. G. MacMillan conducted a tour of the spacious Shelter explaining accommodation and recreational facilities.

Million New Jobs

His wife, formerly Mary Vasey, is living at 533 Patterson Street, and Pte. Kinch worked here in 1942 and 1943 at the Johnson Motors and Genelco as an inspector.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Sgt. Bruce Forsythe, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Forsythe, 649 Downie Street, is serving overseas. Formerly employed in the C.G.E. he enlisted three years ago and is now an air gunner.

Firemen Reach Agreement On Fire Alarms

Following the Council meeting on Monday night, Fire Chief George Gimblett conferred with members of the local Firemen's Union, and an agreement was reached about the fires, the men off shift were to return and fight. In the past, they have been called in on every general alarm, which in many cases was nothing more serious than a chimney or grass fire.

The agreement which has been turned over to Alderman J. E. Sullivan of the Fire and Light Committee reads as follows:

"The members of the Peterborough Fire Department volunteer to return when they are off shift to (1) to fire alarms in hospitals, homes for the aged, churches and schools in session; and (2) for serious fires as designated in the past by the Chief's general alarm.

"Off shift firemen are not required to remain in the city, but will notify the watchman on duty if leaving and will respond to alarms as above if they learn of the fire. Off shift firemen are not required to remain at home or on call."

This agreement is to remain in force until three months after the end of the war in Europe, after which time, members of the Fire Department will return only for the Chief's general alarm.

Although the new legislation limits a fireman's day to an 8-hour shift, the local Union 519 has gone out of its way to co-operate with Chief Gimblet and the City Council. The Provincial ruling calls for an increase in staff so that men off shift need not be called for service, but the scarcity of men who can qualify makes this task difficult. Ten men are needed for the local brigade, and Fire Marshal W. R. Scott said Monday night that he would be satisfied, if at the end of the year, they had five more on the staff.

The union said they would not see the city stuck and would help with serious fires if one obstacle were removed, that of having to report to the station every time a box alarm was turned in.

Alderman Sullivan indicated his appeal of the agreement and members of the fire department expressed their satisfaction at the new regulation.

Two Lindsay Men Missing In Action

Two Lindsay boys have been reported missing according to word received by their families. Rfmn. Art Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Williams, 78 Queen street. He enlisted in 1939 and had earned the reputation among his comrades of being an excellent marksman.

Donald McEvoy of the R.C.A.F. is reported missing following air operations overseas. He attended Lindsay Collegiate and at the time he enlisted in May 1942, he was working at General Motors, Oshawa. He went overseas in August 1943.

Kangaroo Found Dead

PHILADELPHIA, June 21 — (AP). — Nonesuch, the Philadelphia zoo's baby twin kangaroo who defied nature for 80 days by living outside his mother's pouch, was found dead Monday. Nonesuch was driven out of the pouch last March 30 by his twin brother, Sitting Pretty, who emerged only last Saturday. Nonesuch since had lived on a bottle formula.

Crop Outlook In Peterboro Is Said Good

With the exception of the hay crop, which waits upon a very necessary two weeks' spell of "good, crisp drying weather," the crop prospect for Peterborough County is exceptionally satisfactory, according to a review of the current outlook made by F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, this morning.

The promise of the hay crop was not up to last year's and every day that passed with damp conditions preventing farmers cutting it was contributing to the deterioration of the acreage under hay, Mr. Paterson declared. "Haying should be started now, but conditions have not been right," he said.

In other respects, local indications tie in well with the general report for Ontario coming from Agricultural Minister Col. T. L. Kennedy, who has just concluded a three-week fact-finding tour of the province, and on his observations has based an optimistic forecast of the most bountiful crops in many years. Col. Kennedy, however, warned that expected heavy crops will pose a tremendous manpower problem in harvesting, and that 15,000 boys and girls will be needed to help on farms instead of the 5,200 who have already volunteered for this work.

With regard to spring grain, Mr. Paterson stated that the outlook was pretty good, and that several times as much feed might be expected as from last year's crop, which was the poorest on record. A little better than normal acreage prevailed in the case of fall wheat, he said, it was out in full head and the prospect was for a good heavy yield, just possibly in excess of that last year.

As for ensilage corn, it was too early to predict, although a slightly larger acreage had been planted, Mr. Paterson said. He added that the land had been in good shape to take the seeding. There was a pretty good bloom on red clover fields across the county and a few good fields of alsike.

Poultry Increase

An impressive picture of the comparison between poultry production this year and last was painted by the agricultural representative, who described it as being "way up, and probably a 30 per cent. increase over 1943. And the increase in eggs is very, very considerable."

"I have an idea that the over-all increase in milk production will amount to something like 5 per cent," Mr. Paterson predicted. "Pastures have been in really fine shape, due to plenty of rain and early spells of warm weather. This applies to the whole area. Cattle are doing fine, they are thriving."

Noting an increase in the population of beef cattle of between 10 and 15 per cent., but making the reservation that many were not of a particularly good type, Mr. Paterson pointed out that quite little demand had arisen for dairy cattle in the United States, and that carloads were moving out from Canada down across the border each week. The production of hogs locally would be in line with the general average throughout the Dominion, which, it had been thought, might have up to 150,000,000 more pounds of bacon to ship to Britain than last year. Feeding mostly on Western grain, since their own was very poor, Peterborough farmers would be able to contribute their share, Mr. Paterson indicated.

Prospects were also good for an excellent vegetable crop, with cabbage and corn taking the lead. Meanwhile acreage in potatoes had been reduced.

C.W.A.C. Bands To Be Given Picnic

The famous Canadian Women's Army Corps' twenty-six piece Pipes and Drums, and the large military band made up of both brass and wood instruments, will give a concert on the Armouries lawn on Saturday, July 1, at 7:30 p.m., and will take part in a gala parade on Monday, July 3. Only all-women military bands in the British Commonwealth outside of the United Kingdom, they are at present on their second coast-to-coast tour in the interests of C.W.A.C. recruiting.

On Monday, July 3, the bands, with C.W.A.C. personnel serving in Peterborough district, will assemble at the Market Square at 7:30 p.m., and parade south on Water street to King, west on King to George and north on George to Confederation Park. The salute will be taken on George street between Charlotte and Simcoe.

Mrs Norman D. Seaton will give an address of welcome to the bands before their concert on Saturday evening, and a picnic supper will be provided at Chemong Lake, on Sunday, by the Women's Voluntary Services.

Greatest ambition of auburn-haired Pipe Major Lillian Grant, of Victoria, B.C., leader of the Pipe and Drums, is to parade her girls down London's Piccadilly on the day of victory Playing the bagpipes since the age of 12, she was director of the Highland Lassies of Victoria until her enlistment with the C.W.A.C. in September, 1942.

Bandmaster Nadia Svarich, of Vegreville, Alberta, leader of the Brass and Wood band, also had extensive musical experience before enlisting. Holder of two musical degrees, the A.T.C.M. and the L.R.S.M., she studied conducting and bands organization at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and taught for a number of years in Alberta.

Seen in the parade will be "Susie" the leopard skin worn by Drum-Major Joan Turner, of Vancouver, B.C. A gift of the city of Lethbridge, Alberta, "Susie" has become such a favorite with the band that it was made official mascot.

Park St. Girls Raise $46 For War Victims

Through working on behalf of the war effort, some young folk have come to display an initiative talent far beyond what might ordinarily be expected of them, an instance of which is fully shown in this day's report on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, through the organizing and staging of a bingo and draw held in the Parkhill Community House on June 14 by four young girls of public school age living in the vicinity of Park and Bonaccord streets.

Most people who get a taste of something they like, usually want more, and since Barbara Luther, Helen and Doreen Goodfellow and Barbara Hall had all done good work on previous occasions for the fund, it follows that they must have had quite some satisfaction in thus working to help relieve others in distress, for their latest effort was well planned, and resulted in bigger than ever results on behalf of the fund.

Systematicaly they sought prizes for the bingo, and at this time desire to express thanks to all the merchants who helped them in this particular as well as the C. G. E. Ltd. who loaned them the bingo cards, and Mr. Saunders of Donegal street who did the calling off for them.

Prior to the event itself, the girls sold tickets for a draw on a child's sweater which had been knitted and donated by Miss Ethel Dobson, and this was made at the event itself by Alfred Lefebre who drew the ticket which gave the prize to Mrs. Alexander of Park street.

To Mrs. C. S. Thompson can be ascribed an interest which has for a long time been manifest in all the doings around the Parkhill Community House, and through whom the fund has on previous occasions benefitted from this same group of people.

In all, the splendid sum of $46.00 was realized which speaks highly of the co-operation of all concerned, as well as the unusual organizing ability that these four young girls displayed in setting about the task of raising money to give the fund a boost.

Summer Recess Activities.

In a few short days all schools will be closing their doors for the summer recess and young folk not sufficiently old enough to take up other duties might well consider ways and means of raising money to help in the work of the fund, and in the year to come will feel that they did something well worthwhile in the present struggle for liberty and freedom.

It is also suggested that schools and classes may still also be able to assist before they actually close the school year, an instance of which is to be found in an annual open night, and comfort to be given by the teacher and pupils in the school at Orange Corners to-night.

The fund now requires the sum of $226.00 to complete the next donation of five hundred pounds, and in view of the more heavy bombings through the latest attacks by projectiles from the coast of France, it will stand all the more to the credit of the whole city and district if this could be speedily completed and cabled over to assist them.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Oranges, I think, are one fruit that almost everyone likes, so today I am going to give recipes made with oranges, from the salad course to dessert. Oranges are not only delicious because of their delightful flavor, but are also so good for the health. Eat oranges morning, noon and night if you will, and it will be a long time before you have to start to repeat the recipes for there are dozens of them, but my space will not permit more than two or three today, but at some other time I will give you more.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, June 22

A RATHER mediocre state of affairs is the interpretation of the predominant lunar aspects. There is fair promise of sustained success through routine attention to affairs in hand, whether this be in relation to business, writings, finance, travel, advertising or other usual activities, in social good times. Shun extravagance or any form of over-indulgence. With prudence and well planned propositions there might be a public association.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a rather routine year, in which the customary trend of events may prove constructive, if not lively and pleasant. There may be a tendency to center on the social or domestic enjoyments which should be happy and fairly profitable, provided there is no extravagance or over-indulgence. With serious ideas in mind there might be some sort of public or community emoluments. Refrain from unconventionality or over-bold adventure.

A child born on this day may have fair abilities for success and happiness and with ambition might reach some degree of public or community recognition.

Reporter Hit By Shell On Elba Isle

Stephen Barber, Associated Press war correspondent, went in with the French assault troops when they landed on the Island of Elba in the Mediterranean and suffered painful but not serious wounds which necessitated his removal to a hospital, where he dictated the following story on the attack.

By STEPHEN BARBER
Associated Press War Correspondent.

BASTIA, Corsica, June 21—(AP) — Commandant Maurice got his wish—there were Germans on Elba and moreover they were well armed, well positioned, and ready to fight

As an impressive Allied armada assembled in the fading light on Friday night within sight of Elba's peaks, Maurice—a French battalion commander—said:

"I hope there are some Germans there, for if there are not we shall not be able to kill any."

I was riding aboard a craft packed tight with French Senegalese troops.

As we pulled in we could distinguish under flares sent up from the shore a pale strip of beach and the white cottages of a fishing village.

There was still 20 minutes to go and no opposition.

Then it came. From either side of a mile-wide inlet the Jerries opened up. We were caught in a murderous cross-fire. Red, yellow and green tracers and mortar shells whipped overhead.

It seemed only seconds before we found ourselves in the water, then on sands lying flat while the Senegalese touched off Bangalore torpedoes to detonate a path through the minefields and barbed wire.

We began crawling along the guide tape with the mortar shells bursting all about us. The Senegalese never faltered, even though many fell.

There was a blinding flash just in front of me. I was tossed into a clump of weeds.

I got up and tried to walk a few yards and found my left leg would not work, and I was hit on the right side.

Hauling my typewriter I crawled inland. I hadn't gone many yards when I fell into a mine crater here a Senegalese was crouching. He also was wounded in his right arm, but otherwise okay, so—like a six-legged beetle— we linked arms and crawled to a stone wall for cover.

There an impromptu first-aid station was set up in the shelter of a splintered handcart.

Capture Village

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The Brazzaville radio reported last night that French Patriots had captured the Alpine village of St. Gervais, west of Grenoble, after fierce fighting. The broadcast, recorded by the Blue Network, said the French Maquis lost 200 men in the battle and described German losses as "heavy."

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

MARRIAGE FOR REVENGE FUTILE

Sacrifices Innocent Third Party, Creates Dream That May Last a Lifetime.

DEAR MISS DIX—For years before I knew my husband he was deeply in love with another woman, and he still is. This other woman is a beautiful and brilliant professional woman who is more interested in her work than she ever would be in any man. She is not in love with my husband and has never been and she refused to marry him many times. It was during a fit of despondency after one of her refusals that he married me, but I didn't know that at the time.

He has honestly tried to forget her, but she has become an obsession with him. The situation does not seem to be anybody's fault, but it makes it pretty miserable for me. Is there any solution for such a problem?

MISERABLE.

Revenge Marriage Never Cures

ANSWER—It is a very common thing for both men and women. who have been disappointed in love, to marry on the rebound someone for whom they have no affection whatever. Sometimes in rushing into these marriages without love they are actuated with a spirit of revenge. Sometimes it is hurt pride that motivates them. Sometimes they are lonely and crave companionship. Sometimes they have the foolish idea that the cure for their own wounded hearts is the love of some other woman or man.

But always it is a selfish and a dastardly thing to do, for it sacrifices an innocent person to their own ego. For marrying one person when you love another does not automatically work a cure in the victims of hopeless passions. It does not make them forget. It does not kill their longing for the unattainable he or she. On the contrary, just by reason of the natural human impulse that makes us long most for the things we can't have, it increases the desire for them, and makes even an ordinary and commonplace man or woman become a romantic dream that exists for a lifetime.

There is no solution for the problem of the merely tolerated husbands and wives who have been ruthlessly offered up on the altar of their mates' blighted love affairs, unless they are great lovers themselves who can find happiness in establishing a friendship with their wives and husbands, and who can feed their hungry hearts on the few crumbs of affection that are thrown to them. Sometimes a half loaf is better tha no bread at all.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a man of 45 and have a problem that I do not know how to solve. For the first time in my life I am in love with the most lovely and charming woman the heart of man could desire. We have the same interests and tastes and a seasonable amount of wealth, all that would make a marriage happy, for she is as attracted to me as I am to her. except that I am blind. Have been since the last war. No doctor will attempt to operate on my eyes because an operation of this type so often results in death.

My question is: Should I ask a woman as lovely and sweet as she is to spend the rest of her life with me? I am sure that she will say "yes" if I ask her, but I want the advice of one who will consider both sides of the problem. Please help me.

ANTHONY.

Blind Should Propose

ANSWER — Ask her. It is not fair not to trust her love and not to give her, at least, a choice in deciding her fate. If she says "no," that is that, and neither of you are any worse off than you are now. But if she loves you and wants you, you have no right to deny her wifehood and motherhood and make the world as dark for her spiritually as your blindness makes it for you physically.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl of 16, living on a large farm about 30 miles from the city. I am very anxious to get a job this summer, as I want many things that I cannot get unless I earn the money myself. I had planned to work in the city, staying with two of my cousins, but my parents oppose it because there is an army camp nearby and they are afraid that I will fall for any uniform that comes along. But I am not that kind of a girl. What shall I do?

CONNIE.

ANSWER—If you are not that kind of a girl, you are certainly different from the balance of the teen-agers who seem to be hypnotized by brass buttons. I think you had better listen to your mother and father and stay at home this summer.

Investigate Jails

OTTAWA, June 21 — (CP) — Justice Minister St. Laurent said in the Commons yesterday that men sentenced to penitentiary were only kept in local jails during the period in which they are entitled to appeal the sentence. Answering Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, Mr. St. Laurent said his department would investigate whether it would be advisable not to keep in local jails even for short periods men sentenced to penitentiary.

Many People Embrace Religion From East

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 21—(CP)— It's confusing, to say the least, when you ask a pretty red-head for a date and are told to meet her on Azamat Four, in the year 101. And after thanking her to get "Allah'U'-Abha" tossed at you.

All this, however, was merely caused by a meeting the Baha'i's were holding, or, to be more explicit, that the girl wanted you to giwht her to the Baha'i centenary exhibition.

No, the meeting was not a get-together of black magic fanatics, or lovers of the occult—merely a religious gathering of English people who had embraced Baha'ism and were decorously celebrating the fact.

Their religion was founded in Persia in 1844 by Baba'U-Llah who was beter known by his followers as "The Bab" or "The Gate." He preached of the inevitable victory of Islam on earth, and when he died his son, also known as the Bab, carried the faith into Britain shortly before the First Great War.

According to their beliefs this is the year 101, their calendar being made up of 19 months with each month or azamat containing 19 days. The greeting "Allah'U-Ahba" means "God is most glorious."

Mostly Women.

Chief converts to this religion, which was first expounded in 1844, are women, apparently. Of the 200-odd people gathered in Westminster here for the celebration, some 173 of them were women, drawn, no doubt, by the religion's prime concept which is the absolute equality of the sexes.

Other tenets are the need for a world commonwealth and a universal language, the breaking down of the color bar and the refusal of all divorces until the parties concerned have suffered life with one another for at least a year.

The faith also proclaims the oneness of mankind and religion, with the result that at this centenary celebration those attending were treated to selections of readings picked from the Bible, the Koran,

Have a Coca-Cola = Come on over

. . . or keeping youth happy at home

Keeping young folks happy at home is mostly a matter of having a house in which they and their friends feel welcome. A radio, or a phonograph and some records; a place to dance, a little food and they're happy. And don't forget Coca-Cola . . . it's always a big attraction for the young crowd. It says better than words, Come on over . . . we're glad to see you. Be sure there's "Coke" in your icebox. In all the world there's no more cordial invitation, nor one more refreshing, than the three simple words : : : Have a "Coke."

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

Youth Pleads Guilty To Theft Of Bicycle

Gordon Scriver, 16, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to charges of bicycle theft and pointing a revolver and was remanded for a week for sentence.

He was defended by J. F. Strickland, K.C. while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

In giving evidence in the first case Detective Sgt. Meagher said that Scriver had admitted stealing the bicycle, owned by Robert Gardiner, form the rear of the police station and taking to the property of the Peterborough Canoe Company and dismantling it. The frame was thrown into the river and Scriver had sold the generator of the bicycle for $2.75. The parts had been recovered.

Detective Sgt. Meagher testified in the other case that while Scriver and another boy were walking along Aylmer street they were accosted by another boy Lawrence Falls who was old and bigger.

Falls had complained of being overcharged for a generator he had bought from Scriver and according to their story had threatened the boys, with the result that Scriver pulled out a revolver. Remarking "If you want to monkey around the bull you'll get caught in the horns." Falls departed as soon as the revolver was produced, the officer stated.

To Mr. Strickland Detective Sgt. Meagher said that the revolver would not fire.

"It looked more dangerous than it was," queried the defence counsel and witness said that that was correct.

Mr. Strickland suggested suspended sentence, stating that Scriver had enlisted in the merchant marine and was expecting his call at any moment, possibly tomorrow.

Magistrate Langley remanded the accused for a week with the understanding that if the merchant marine call did come through in the meantime the cases could be disposed of sooner.

Thirteen other persons—including one woman—have died after drinking the alcohol, taken from a shipment bound overseas for the Canadian Red Cross. The deaths occurred late last week and during the week-end.

A coroner's jury inquest into the 13 deaths was adjourned last night until victims now in hospital will be able to appear as witnesses. No arrests have been made.

Court Refuses Plea Of Guilty

That the car driven by the accused had gone by a stop sign at George and Lansdowne streets, shot across the latter street at 35 miles an hour and come to rest against the fence around the Exhibition Grounds after barking one tree and hitting another was the evidence given in police court this morning by Constable Bruce Menzizes, when Harry Dunford, 17, of Ford avenue, North Monaghan, was charged with careless driving.

Dunford did not call any witnesses or give any evidence himself but told the court that a pin had dropped out of his brakes and as a result he had not been able to stop his car.

"You haven't given any evidence," said Magistrate Langley "and yet if that were true it would be an adequate defence against this charge."

Dunford said that two other boys who were with him could testify to the pin dropping.

Magistrate Langley, accordingly, adjourned the case until next week, informing Dunford that he could have his witnesses on hand and the matter could be re-opened then.

Dunford returned to the court later and wanted to enter a plea of guilty but His Worship declined to accept it. "You have told me something that indicates that you were not guilty," he told the youth, in declaring that the case would have to be dealt with next Wednesday.

498 Employees At Chest Clinic

During the first day that the Chest Clinic was operating at the Canadian General Electric Company, 498 employees appeared at the Surgery to have X-ray examinations of their chests. Authorities reported that they considered this a grand response and it exceeded by 100 the number which were expected.

This is a voluntary chest examination which is offered by the Ontario Department of Health. All examinations are strictly confidential and no one sees the reports except the patient, the family doctor and the provincial doctor. The Clinic opened Tuesday and will continue for two weeks.

Miss Mary Greer, surgery nurse, declared that the employees were enthusiastic about the benefits they would be getting from the examination, and early this morning there was a big line-up waiting for admittance.

Before leaving the city, the Chest Clinic will be visiting several other plants. All employees are given the tests free of charge and all costs are borne by the company and the province. Ordinarily, the cost of such a visit would run between $5 and $10.

Accident Victim Still In Hospital

When a dangerous driving charge against Donald Wood was called in police court this morning it was stated that Wood was still in hospital and the case was adjourned for a week.

The charge arose out if a recent motorcycle-automobile accident at Lock and Lansdowne street in which Wood who was riding the motorcycle was injured.

Harold Davis, driver of the automobile involved in the collision entered pleas of guilty this morning to driving with inadequate brakes and also without a license. He was fined $10 and $1.50 on the first count and $10 and $2.50 on the second.

Clarence Seabrook, on a written plea of guilty was fined $2 and $2.50 costs for not bringing his car to a full stop before entering a through street and Fred Rose a similar levy for driving without a proper mirror in his motor vehicle.

New Furnace Restriction Not Disturbing

Peterborough's hot air furnace vendors aren't very perturbed by the new W.P.T.B. ruling, temporarily suspending all sales and delivery of hot air furnaces in Canada. The ban, which became effective on Tuesday noon, prohibits a dealer from accepting an order in the future unless the prospective buyer is provided with an essentiality certificate, to be issued by the local or regional Wartime Prices Office. The applications, which will be ready by July 1, must be secured by the owner of the building in which the furnace is to be installed.

Typical comments such as, "It doesn't bother me one bit," and "It is nothing to be excited about," seemed to express quite briefly the view taken by most furnace men.

Fred Goodfellow, Water Street, who has been in the business since 1924, says that even though he has been on a strict quota since 1939 the demand has always been filled. Mr. Goodfellow feels that despite the shortage of materials and labor, enough furnaces and replacements will be released to keep the people supplied.

W. R. Turner, Simcoe Street, declared past experience has shown that people who really need scarce articles, get them. He pointed out that many other articles had been curtailed, such as bathtubs, electric water pumps, etc., and if business could carry on with restrictions on those things, it would work out fine with regard to the furnaces.

"Doesnt bother me a bit,'" beamed W. A. Graham, Hunter Street. "All we've got to do is conofrm to regulations, and business will look out for itself." Most people have taken a sensible view toward scarce articles, and furnaces are just one more to the list.

Most men in the business are worried more by the shortage of trained help... and as one angry plumber bellowed..."It's not the shortage of materials that's turning me grey, but the scarcity of experienced men to keep my business going. I don't mind this new order banning sales, but I do get extremely vicious when I think of the help situation."

(The general view taken was that the ban was nothing to become unduly annoyed about, and since it's only temporary, many dealers advanced the thought that it probably won't exist long.)

Army Has Issued Field Service Card

When men are fighting up at the front, they have no time and are too tired in their short rest periods to write letters to the folks at home. The Army, in an effort to keep families posted, has issued a field service post-card on which are a number of printed sentences saying that the man is fine or he is in the hospital, whether he is getting his family's mail regularly and their parcels and that he will write soon.

A number of these cards have arrived here this morning, presumably from Peterborough boys fighting in France. Many of them were dated June 10. The soldiers simply cross out the sentences which do not fit their particular case. On 17 cards, all the writers said they were fine, but had not had any mail lately.

Quebec Youths

to order with the singing of "O Canada," the youths continued verse after verse of the song and then broke into other songs.

The youths, numbering several hundred, were present at the opening of the meeting and as speakers, including Mrs. Bernadette Lebrun and Stanley Rierson of Montreal, attempted to address the crowd, the youths continued their singing and interjected cries of "A bas les Communistes." (Down with the Communists.)

Youths Take Over

City police escorted the speakers and other party officials, including the prospective candidate, J. G. Decroiselles, from the hall and the youths took over the meeting.

A young man, who refused to reveal his name, but said he represented Les Jeunes Laurentiens, a French-Canadian patriotic organization, drew a hearing from the crowd when he shouted: "How is it that our competent authorities keep Camillien Houde (former Mayor of Montreal) in an interment camp and allow Tim Buck to go free?"

After he spoke briefly, the crowd again began singing and shouting.

Many People

the Bahai's scriptures and books by George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and Aldous Huxley.

The proceedings were as ordinary as the people who had come from typical English home in London, Manchester, Bradford and Bournemouth to attend the celebration. They met quietly, listened to sermons and occasionally prayed.

Westclox Girls Beaten By Lock Works

In a keenly contested match played Tuesday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, the Lock Works gals, behind some mighty tricky pitching by Beryl Lee, defeated the Westclox Seconds with a 13-10 edge.

The Baby Bens, dashing off 7 runs in the first inning, headed the winners up to the end of the sixth frame with a too-close-for-comfort score of 10-9, but the Lock Works outfit took the winning lead in the seventh with a 4-run rally.

Alice McIvor, on the hill for Westclox, battled beautifully, fanning out six of the winning team, and keeping them guessing all the way. Two home runs were turned in, both completed by Westclox ladies; A. McIvor in the first inning, and Rita O'Heron in the sixth.

It was a good battle from start to finish, and both teams should benefit from the experience.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, June 21—(AP)—Ever hear of a school for baseball coaches, in which the small-college, prep and even sandlot tutors could learn a few trade secrets from the game's big-timers?... During the off season most big-time college football coaches appear at one or more such schools but as far this department can learn, Alabama's coaching school is the only one that includes baseball—and it is out for the duration.

Shorts and Shells

The A.A.U. is seriously considering night track meets in case the championships remain in New York, because afternoon attendance has been so unsatisfactory. Fewer than 4,000 customers turned out last week-end.. Note from N.Y.U.: Basketball was the most popular intramural sport last season with 3814 participants of a total of 4,872—Gil Torres, Senators' third baseman, wears extra long pants, like Al Simmons, to conceal what probably are the thinnest legs in major league baseball.

Service Dept.

Corp. Billy Conn has been transferred to an "undisclosed station" after a short stay at the Greensboro, N.C., overseas replacement depot... Wonder if that means he'll give the G.I.'s overseas his version of past and future tussles with Joe Louis?

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

The 1944 Olympic games, once scheduled to be held in Rome, never reached realization but Allied troops of the 5th Army yesterday made good use of Mussolini's magnificent but unfinished stadium for a track and field meet. Despite lack of athletic training and sport equipment, the soldiers turned in excellent performances. Pte. Zemer S. Cox, a negro from Wichita, Kans., won the century in the reported time of 9.9 seconds and the 220 high hurdles in 23.1 seconds. L.Cpl. W. Rayner of the British Army copped the one and six mile events. Loud speakers were rigged to huge statues to keep the large crowd informed. Winners are to represent the 5th Army in the Mediterranean Track and Field Championships shortly.

Boyd Mallon, 154, of the Royal Navy was knocked out last night at Portland, Me., by Coley Welch, 160, New England Middleweight Champion, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round feature.

Pitcher Ewald Pyle was fined and suspended indefinitely, it was announced last night by Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants, who declared the player had become involved in fisticuffs with a fan at Boston last Saturday. Pyle broke a bone in his hand and remains suspended until he is fit to play.

Leo Durocher was removed from the active player list of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday and he has resumed the role of bench manager. He has been replaced at second by Clyde King, 19-year-old pitcher.

Although unable to swim, Thorp ran and waded about 40 feet from shore to rescue the child.

Guard Dirigible

NANAIMO, B.C., June 21 (CP)—The wreck of a 250-foot dirigible will remain under guard in the mountains between Youbou and Nanaimo, where it crashed a month ago while searching for a missing R.C.A.F. bomber until a United States Navy Air Force board of inquiry completes its findings.

The huge balloon was wrecked by a downdrift which plunged it into a canyon. The bomber wreck was located and the bodies of its five-man crew buried near the scene of the crash. The dirigible crew was uninjured.

Foley pitched very good ball for the Packers while Seymour and Begley were best at bat, the latter getting a triple and two singles out of six times at bat.

Shaughnessy and Mathison both had triples for the Blue Print boys.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LEARN BRIDGE FAST
27—Deeper Finessing

MANY FINESSING combinations involve situations in which the opponents hold more than a single honor. That is the case if your only honor in a suit is a guarded king, when you lead a small card toward it and then, if the first opponent plays low, you put up the king in the hope that the first opponent had the ace. It is also the case if you hold the A-Q-10 or the A-J-10 of a suit.

With the A-Q-10, if you are trying for the maximum number of tricks, it will usually pay to put in the Q on the first round after the first opponent has played low if the total number of cards against you is four or less, and then play the A next in an effort to drop the remaining honor. If the number against you is five or more, the 10 is the best play on the first round and the Q finesse on the second. Playing thus, if the first opponent had both the K and J, you will take all three high card tricks with your honors.

If you have an A-J-10, the best play, unless you have almost all cards of the suit, is a finesse of the J or 10 on the first round and a finesse of the other touching honor on the second. That gives you a trick with one of those lower honors unless both the K and Q are held by the last opponent to play.

When you have a K-J guarded by one or more small cards, it is usually best to play the J on the first finesse. This gives you a chance for two tricks if the first opponent had both the A and Q, and one if he had either, none if the second man had both.

Many beginners misplay a combination of an ace and one or more small cards in one hand opposite a guarded queen in the other. If they lack the smaller honors, it is suicide to lead the queen, which then can't take a trick, no matter which defender has the king. Then the right play is to lead a small card toward the queen, hoping the king is held by the opponent who plays before it. Sometimes this should be done on the first round and sometimes the ace should be taken before the lead toward the king.

When a player has the ace and king of a suit, and a jack which he may wish to finesse against the queen, it pays to take in one high trick generally, as protection against a singleton, and then finesse later. That is especially so if he is able to finesse in either direction. He improves his chances by preventing loss to a singleton honor if he takes a high card first.

Sometimes a player can eliminate danger entirely by this means. Suppose he has in one hand the A-Q-10-4 of a suit and opposite it the K-9-7-3-2. His only danger of losing a trick is to one defender who holds all four missing cards, the J-8-6-5. If he should take the first trick with the K, he may set up a trick for the opponent who plays after the A-Q-10. But if he takes the first trick with the hand which holds two top honors, with the A or Q, then he is ready to finesse in either direction. The usual rule here is to take the first trick in the hand containing two top honors.

Just change one card, and the first trick should be taken in the hand with the single top honor. Suppose the situation is the K-9-7-3-2 opposite the A-Q-8-4. Now the cards out are the J-10-6-5. If the first trick is taken with the A or Q, a trick must be lost to that combination, no matter who holds it. But since the declarer can protect himself against that holding by one opponent, he should do it, by winning the first trick with the K. He then has two honors still sitting over the J-10, if they are where they play before the A and Q, and can capture them.

Observing general principles like those involved in these combinations will enable you to apply your common sense to figuring out advisable ways of playing other ones to gain the maximum number of tricks from them.

Westclox Girls Beaten By Lock Works

In a keenly contested match played Tuesday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, the Lock Works gals, behind some mighty tricky pitching by Beryl Lee, defeated the Westclox Seconds with a 13-10 edge.

The Baby Bens, dashing off 7 runs in the first inning, headed the winners up to the end of the sixth frame with a too-close-for-comfort score of 10-9, but the Lock Works outfit took the winning lead in the seventh with a 4-run rally.

Alice McIvor, on the hill for Westclox, battled beautifully, fanning out six of the winning team, and keeping them guessing all the way. Two home runs were turned in, both completed by Westclox ladies; A. McIvor in the first inning, and Rita O'Heron in the sixth.

It was a good battle from start to finish, and both teams should benefit from the experience.

4 Lacrosse Teams Form New Body

MONTREAL, June 21 — (CP). — Four teams, who formerly operated in the Quebec Senior Lacrosse Association, at a meeting last night broke away from the loop and formed a new body to be known as the Provincial Lacrosse League. The four clubs thus forfeit any right to play in Dominion championship games for the Mann Cup.

The teams, Lachine-Ville St. Pierre, Caughnawaga Indians, Valleyfield, and Montreal Canadiens, broke off from the association when officials refused to vote the $100 grant usually given to teams to help them start the season.

One of their first actions was to re-instate Angus Thomas of Caughnawaga Indians who was suspended for life in 1941 when he struck Referee Leo Murray during a championship game.

The 1944 Olympic games, once scheduled to be held in Rome, never reached realization but Allied troops of the 5th Army yesterday made good use of Mussolini's magnificent but unfinished stadium for a track and field meet. Despite lack of athletic training and sport equipment, the soldiers turned in excellent performances. Pte. Zemer S. Cox, a negro from Wichita, Kans., won the century in the reported time of 9.9 seconds and the 220 high hurdles in 23.1 seconds. L.Cpl. W. Rayner of the British Army copped the one and six mile events. Loud speakers were rigged to huge statues to keep the large crowd informed. Winners are to represent the 5th Army in the Mediterranean Track and Field Championships shortly.

Boyd Mallon, 154, of the Royal Navy was knocked out last night at Portland, Me., by Coley Welch, 160, New England Middleweight Champion, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round feature.

Pitcher Ewald Pyle was fined and suspended indefinitely, it was announced last night by Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants, who declared the player had become involved in fisticuffs with a fan at Boston last Saturday. Pyle broke a bone in his hand and remains suspended until he is fit to play.

Leo Durocher was removed from the active player list of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday and he has resumed the role of bench manager. He has been replaced at second by Clyde King, 19-year-old pitcher.

British Leaders Discuss Control For Peace Trade

Frank Flaherty, just returned from London, where he covered the conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers, tells here about British post-war trade.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 21 — (CP) — As leaders of public opinion in Britain look at the post-war period they think in terms of planning, control and regulation. There is little if any thought of returning to an economic order of unrestricted free competition.

In different circles varying degrees of emphasis are placed on different forms of control and in some a good measure of scepticism is encountered as to whether plans and controls can be made to work, whether other nations will co-operate.

The controls envisaged are both internal and international. In the internal sphere the British government and the principal political parties are pledged to a policy of full employment. That, it is accepted, means planning and control, the continuance of some of the wartime regulations.

Internally the continuance of rationing as long as shortages exist is proposed. Prime Minister Churchill has announced the government intends to continue price stabilization after the war. The stabilization of prices for farm products and raw materials not only in Britain but throughout the world is regarded as a safeguard against depression.

Wide World Economy

Speaking of foreign trade in a House of Commons debate Rt. Hon. Hugh Dalton, president of the board of trade, said by the Atlantic Charter Britain was pledged to the promotion of an expansive world economy.

In such an economy, he said, "I believe there will be room for trade conducted in some cases under a considerable degree of state direction, in other cases without much state direction and in yet other cases quite free of state direction."

The British Federation of Industries, counterpart of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, has come out in favor of an "international economic council" to be created out of existing machinery for collaboration among the United Nations. Its purpose would be to give direction and prevent the trade of various countries from getting out of equilibrium.

The continuance of the bulk purchase through government agency system developed during the war for some time afterwards is likely. Canadian farm products sold to Britain will probably continue to be handled by the ministry of food under bulk contracts rather than by individual firms.

Decoration Day Held By I.O.O.F.

MILLBROOK, June 21—(ENS)—Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 306, held its annual Decoration Day service at the cenotaph in the town hall square Sunday afternoon, the members of the Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176, also having a part in the program, for which the Noble Grand, Rev. A. L. Sisco, presided, with the Lodge chaplain, Fred Elliott, P.G., reading the opening prayers.

The introductory address was given by H. Padgham, D.D.G.M., who urged a spirit of gratitude that "in these troubled times we are able to carry on peacefully with this yearly remembrance ceremony." The decoration of the Cenotaph followed, G. T. McPherson, V.G., reading the names of those buried in the various local and outside cemeteries for the Oddfellows, after a wreath of oak leaves and poppies in memory of brethren killed in the World War had been placed on the memorial by Fred Elliott. The base of the Cenotaph was covered with flowers as a sheaf was put in place when the names were read, by the following: Presbyterian, E. L. Armstrong, P.G.; United church, P. I. Bentley, past D.D.G.M.; 4th Line, R. O. Larmer, P.G.; St. John's, Lavergne Fallis, P.G.; 9th Line, Wesley Wragg; Fraserville, George Berry; Bailieboro, T. Thompson; Centreville, O. B. Johnson; Zion, W. Elson, P.G.; outside cemeteries, J. Isbister.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, R.S., read the names for the Rebekah Lodge, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, P.N.G., placing the flowers as they were handed her by representative members including Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. A. R. Payne, Beatrice Fallis, Evelyn Donaldson, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. W. Challice, Margaret Larmer, and Mrs. E. L. Armstrong. Two minutes silence was observed at the close of the decoration, "in memory of those who lost their lives in the last war, and in the present conflict," after which Rev. Walter Patterson was introduced as the guest speaker for the service.

Remembrance Stressed

Basing his remarks on the words: "Thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God hath led thee" the speaker urged the need of remembering in order that God's many blessings may be appreciated; that His testing in national, and individual, lives may be understood; and that all hearts may turn to Him since He alone knows what the future may bring. G. T. McPherson was the accompanist at the piano for the afternoon and the singing of "Nearer my God to Thee," with the Lodge ritual and the benediction by Mr. Patterson closed an impressive service.

Upon return to the Lodge rooms committees went to the various cemeteries and placed flowers on the graves, those so serving being: C. B. Sutton, P.G., Charles Thorndyke, P.G., W. A. Braithwaite, P. I. Bentley, P.G., J. H. Isbister, H. Tate, P.G., and J. Thompson.

U.S. Abandons Pipeline Project

BY C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 21 — (CP) — Smarting under criticism of the $134,000,000 Canol pipeline project in northwest Canada, the United States government has backed away from the proposal to build a 1,200-mile pipeline from the Saudi Arabian oil wells to the Mediterranean.

Abandonment of this project was revealed definitely by a high official today but he said the British and American governments would be willing to lend money to private enterprise if that is required to enable them properly to develop and distribute middle east oil.

Decision to abandon the project announced months ago as a virtually definite undertaking by Interior Secretary Harold Ickes, followed conferences here between American and British experts.

As now contemplated the line probably could not be built until after the war. Upon its completion the United States, in cooperation with Great Britaain would supervise production, much as is now done in domestic fields. It was understood Russia would be asked to co-operate to prevent price-cutting and indiscriminate marketing.

Britain controls 55 per cent and the U.S. the remainder of the middle eastern oil fields, estimated to contain a 26,000,000,000-barrel reserve.

Ottawa Clarifies Insurance Rule

OTTAWA, June 21 — (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission announced last night that compensation paid by an employer to an employee, whether as payment in lieu of notice in the case of discharge or as a gratuity in the case of voluntary separation of an employee from his employment, will not be in future regarded as wages or salary in respect of which unemployment insurance contributions must be made.

The Commission said these instructions, sent to its field officers across Canada follow a ruling by the Justice Department interpreting the Unemployment Insurance Act as requiring contributions only in regard to earnings paid over the period when a person is actually employed.

The announcement said that for the purposes of the act a worker will be deemed to be employed on any day for which remuneration is paid while the employee is on leave either on holidays or because of sickness where leave is given in pursuance of the contract of employment between employer and employee.

Friendship Need Stressed To Missionary Society

SPRINGVILLE, June 21—(ENS)—Mrs. Harold Cathcart was hostess to the W.M.S. for the June meeting. Mrs. Bothwell played quiet music in opening and Mrs. Preston, the president, brought thoughts of 'friendship.' Mrs. Fred Clarke offered her home for the July meeting, when the program will be in charge of the Mission Band, with Miss Velma Staples as leader. Mrs. Rae Wood had charge of the worship period and used the poem, 'The Passing of Seasons' as an introduction. The Scripture lesson was taken from John 15.

The society had as guests for the day, Mrs. F. Harris, president of the Peterborough Presbytery and Mrs. Albert Hunter, formerly of Springville, and who is past president of the local society. Mrs. Hunter spoke on 'Friendship,' saying that never before had there been such a need for this attribute in people. She said 'the way to have friends is to be friendly.' Then Mrs. Hunter stressed the need of friendship with other races and creeds, pointing out that the future of the world depends on the attitude to these peoples.

Miss Mary Robson, accompanied by Mrs. Robson, sang 'Beautiful Isle of Somewhere.' Mrs. Harris spoke on the origin of the W.M.S., pointing out that the women who organized the first society in Prince Edward Island in 1825, were women of prayer and international thinking women. "There are at present," said the speaker, "160,000 members of the W.M.S." She asked the question, "Are missionaries worth while?" and touched on some of the blessings which Christianity has brought to Korea, Africa and China.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Ahead Of Schedule

SPOKANE, Wash., June 21 — (AP). — Gen. Ray L. Owens, who commanded the United States 13th Air Force in the South Pacific from last June until January, said in an interview. Allied forces are months ahead of schedule in the war against the Japanese in the Pacific.

"The South Pacific is completely cleaned up in the air," he declared.

14 CANADIAN BATTALIONS IN FRANCE

Keller Infuses Great Spirit Into Canadian Troops

CANADIAN COMMANDER IN FRANCE IS UP ON THE FRONT LINES DAILY WITH HIS TROOPS

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 22 (CP-Cable)—This is Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, Canadian Field Commander in France:

He is husky and rugged and is every inch the combat soldier. He digs his own slit trenches and one day a high British officer called on him at headquarters to find him in shirt sleeves, shovelling away at a fox hole by his caravan where he works. The caravan also is dug into the earth for headquarters has been in the line of fire in this narrow eastern section of the beachhead.

Keller is up on the front line daily with his aide de camp, Capt. Charlies Turton of Montreal, who is practically the General's shadow going with him everywhere. In the first hectic days they moved around in a light tank or armored car and had several close calls.

There was the time the General was in a tank and Turton was riding in an armored car just five yards behind. They were going along a straight flat section of road which led to Bretteville and which was called "88 Alley." Sure enough, a German 88-MM. gun spotted the two vehicles and a shell screamed between the tank and the armored car, bursting 10 yards away from the road. When they got back to headquarters they also found machine-gun bullet marks on the armor plating.

Throughout the first week the General was on the job with few breaks day and night. There were scores of problems facing him and his staff but they were overcome one by one and the troops at the front magnificently carried out orders, holding the line against the German counter-attacks.

Keller infused a great spirit into the troops which served them well when fierce fighting had to be done.

The General's ship lay just off the French coast during the landings on D-Day with the General watching the progress of the early fighting ashore from the bridge. About 11 a.m he decided to go ashore but the sea was rough and he did not make it until 1 p.m. when he landed at Bernieres, where one Canadian unit fought an heroic battle on the beaches.

Nine Others Are Damaged In Carrier Plane Attacks

American Carrier Force Suffers No Losses
Action Ends When Japs Flee At Nightfall

By CHARLES McMURTRY—Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, June 22—(AP).—The United States 5th Fleet sank four and possibly five Japanese ships and damaged nine or 10 in a surprise attack between the Philippines and Marianas Monday. Headquarters reported in a communique that carrier planes sank one Japanese carrier, three tankers and possibly a destroyer. The American carrier force under the immediate tactical command of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher suffered no ship losses. Forty-nine American planes were lost. Many of them were forced to land in the water at nightfall. The action ended at nightfall with the Japanese fleeing and there was no indication the battle had been resumed. Headquarters also announced that 353 enemy planes were shot down in the Japanese futile attempt Sunday on Admiral Mitscher's force. This added 53 enemy craft to the previous estimate 300 destroyed.

Two U.S. carriers and one battleship suffered "superficial damage" and 21 aircraft were lost in combat. A fleet spokesman said superficial damage means the ship's capacity for battle was not impaired, indicating these three probably participated in Monday's action.

Admiral Chester Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, said the Japanese force consisted of four or more battleships, five or six carriers, five fleet tankers and unspecified numbers of crusers and destroyers.

He listed these casualties inflicted on the enemy:

One carrier, believed to be the Zuikaku (17,000 tons) received three 1,000 bomb hits.

One Hayataka class carrier was severely damaged and left burning furiously.

One light carrier (probably around 10,000 tons) Zuiho Taiho class received at least one bomb hit.

One Kongo class battleship (29,000 tons) was damaged.

One cruiser was damaged.

Three destroyers were damaged, one of which is believed to have sunk.

Sink 3 Tankers.

Three tankers were sunk.

Two tankers were severely damaged and left burning.

Fifteen to 20 defending aircraft were shot down.

This destruction or damaging of 14 ships was the third greatest single blow dealt the Japanese battle fleet in the war.

The greatest was the Battle of Midway in June, 1942, when another carrier force under Admiral Spruance sank four enemy carriers and nearly a score of other ships.

The second biggest defeat was November 13-15, 1942, in the Battle of Guadalcanal when the enemy lost more than 30 ships sunk and damaged.

The enemy fleet has been fairly well established as the one which attacked the American force on Sunday. Loss of 353 planes from its five or six carriers virtually wiped out its planes so that it had to rely largely on anti-aircraft for defence Land at Sea.

Because the battle was closed so late in the day and at nearly ex-

British Troops Nearing Ancona

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 22 — (AP).—Allied and Italian troops are within 32 miles of Ancona, prize Italian port on the Adriatic coast, while British 8th Army troops are approaching Camerino, approximately 35 miles east and a little north of Perugia.

American forces to the west have pushed on 15 airline miles northwest of Grosseto. In all land operations, although weather has improved, misty conditions are preventing cross-country movements on a large scale, a communique said.

The advance toward Ancona, ranking next to Venice in port facilities in that coastal sector, was made by troops which have reached Fermo, only 65 airline miles south of Rimini, the eastern anchor of the so-called Pisa-Florence-Rimini line, where the fleeing Germans may offer stiff resistance

Limited Gains.

Eighth Army troops have also approached Nocero Umbra, 14 miles west of Camerino. Limited gains were made north of the newly-taken ancient fortress city of Perugia, and in the Lake Transimeno area west of Perugia, despite strong resistance.

A field dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Sid Feder said casualties inflicted upon the Germans during the past 41 days of the Allied offensive in Italy were estimated unofficially at between 80,000 and 100,000 killed, wounded and captured. More than 27,000 Nazis have been taken prisoner.

The Mediterranean Air Force stepped up its activity, making 1,100 individual plane flights in attacking shipping in Livorno harbor, battle area targets and a railyard at Ventimiglia on the Italian Rivieia. There were no losses.

The communique disclosed that in a "spirited naval engagement" in connection with the ousting of the Germans form Elba, light coastal forces torpedoed three loaded enemy lighters attempting to eva-

Four Canadian Units Hit Beach In First Wave

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 22—(CP Cable).—Four Canadian battalions—the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles, the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto and the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment—were the heroic assault infantry units which stormed the fortified Norman beaches on the morning of D-Day. Tanks from the 1st Hussars of London, Ont., and the Fort Garry Horse of Winnipeg were in the first assault, too, with daring assault sappers from the Royal Canadian Engineers and machine-gunners of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

On the western flank a company of the Canadian Scottish from Victoria also was in the first wave to hit the beaches.

Names of these and other units which followed them up closely and rapidly joined in the battle were released for publication only today. The unit names previously had been held up for security reasons.

It was these leading assault troops, with parties of gunners and signalmen, who so gallantry attacked the elaborate beach defences and fought for every sand dune, trench system and concrete gun emplacement until they cracked the vaunted west wall defences along this Canadian sector.

High Praise.

You cannot praise these men enough. They were the spearhead in this hazardous venture and had a bloody triumph on the beaches where brave men fell and their comrades fought on until the German line was shattered.

The breaking of that line was one of the finest offensive feats carried out in this war. Here in the beachhead we still view it with wonder.

U.S. Soldiers Fighting Japs Taunt Strikers With Gift

NEW YORK, June 22—(AP).—The Associated Press is in receipt of the following communication by registered airmail, marked as coming from the U.S.S. Coos Bay, a seaplane tender, and stamped "Passed by naval censor":

U.S.S. Coos Bay (AVP-25)
c/o Fleet Post Office
San Francisco, Calif.
10 June, 1944.

The Associated Press
Editorial Department
San Francisco, Calif.

Sirs: We the crew of the U.S. Coos Bay, which consists mainly of survivors of other naval ships or veterans of major naval engagements, and all who have seen action not once but many times and who, while on this cruise, have not had a liberty for one full year, feel that we can do more than fight and even give our lives if necessary for our country. We are willing to help pay the wage increase from our meagre pay that money-hungry strikers are demanding if they will just continue to produce the implements necessary so that we can end this war. We have seen war—and we hate it.

We have chosen you as our agent or go-between to represent us in our campaign to 'buy off' the present strikers of the Wright Aircraft Corporation with the money we have collected from our small crew: a total of 41,200 pennies.

Please implore them to end their strike and accept our offer to help pay their wage increase which they feel is more important than our lives.

Chip In Again

Ask them not to strike in the future but, instead to let the men in the war zone know of their dissatisfaction and they will gladly chip in each month to save them from starvation so that they may continue to produce arms for us to defeat their enemy as well as ours, and so that we may come home soon to see the ones we love, our sons and daughters whom we have never seen and our wives and mothers who haunt us with memories day and night; also to see our country for which we are willing to die—yes—and to see your strikers; do you want to see us?

Out here we are close to our 'foreign' enemies and can properly deal with them; our enemies at home we cannot reach. Therefore, in desperation, we can think of nothing but to offer our money to 'buy' them back to work; this money having been earned honestly and in the belief that our efforts were the salvation and protection of those who are striking against us.

The Crew of the U.S.S. Coos Bay.

P.S. If the Wright strike is over just choose another. There are always plenty at hand.

(The money accompanying this letter, all in U.S. paper currency, has been forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy, James V. Forrestal. It comprised three $100 bills, five of $20 denomination, one $10 bill and

Recruiting Shows Big Gain

Volunteers Enlist As Invasion Starts

OTTAWA, June 22 — (CP) — The invasion of France and a recent stepping up of recruiting activity throughout Canada has brought about an increase in the number of volunteers for active service, an army source said here today.

While no figures were available, the volunteers were understood to have come both from the civilian population and from the home draft army.

A spokesman said an anticipated increase in casualties as a result of new operations, engaging greater numbers of Canadians, made it desirable there be an increase in recruiting.

He said, however, the drain on army strength, caused by invasion casualties, was taken into consideration when the estimate on army intake was made. At that time the army estimated it would need 4,000 active volunteers a month.

There is usually a seasonal slackening off in recruits at this time of year, but this sometimes is made up by a surplus of manpower during the other seasons.

Defence Minister Ralston has already told the Commons the casualties have been moderate and below the figure estimated for the initial phase of the operations.

Glengarrians Drive Deep Inland

Cameron Highlanders Hit The Beach In Supporting Role

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 22.—(CP Cable). — Fourteen Canadian battalions fought in France during the period from D-day to June 14, it now is permitted to be disclosed. They were:

The Royal Winnipeg Rifles; the Regina Rifles; Canadian Scottish, Victoria, B.C.; Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto; North Shore New Brunswick Regiment; De Chaudiere, a French-speaking unit, Quebec; Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Peterborough, Ont.; North Nova Scotia Highlanders; Highland Light Infantry Galt, Ont.; 1st Hussars, London, Ont.; 17th Hussars, Montreal; Fort Gary Horse, Winnipeg; Sherbrooke Fusiliers; Cameron Highlanders, Ottawa, Permission to name these regiments has been given to The Canadian Press.

It was the Winnipeg and Reginas who stormed the beaches of Courseulles, with the Winnipegs on the west of the inlet and the Reginas east of it.

A company of the Canadian Scottish also landed on the Winnipegs' beach in the first wave, and two assault squadrons of the 1st Hussars went in there.

As the beach defences were taken, the rest of the Canadian Scottish infantry regiments and tank regiments then went on to capture all their objectives.

The Queen's Own landed at Berniers followed by tanks of the Fort Garries, and at St. Aubin the North Shore Regiment touched down with more Garries' tanks.

The Chaudieres came in at St. Aubin too, and sliced through German defences with the other two infantry regiments.

About noon on D-Day the Canadian 3rd Division's Reserve was committed by Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller of Kelowna, B.C., division commander, came in an thrust south, riding on tanks of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers.

The Stormont Dundas and Glengarry Highland Light Infantry were in the forefront from the coast to Caen.

The Cameron Highlanders went in with the division and supported every formation along the Canadian front.

Troops of the 17th Hussars worked along the front with the division on various tasks.

Lt.-Col. Turnbull Named O.C.

It was officially announced today that Major James Turnbull who has been acting commanding officer of the Peterborough Training Centre since the transfer of Col. Walter Bapty in May had been appointed to command the centre. Major Turnbull also is promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

Born in Ireland, as a boy Lieut.-Col. Turnbull came to Peterborough and at the age of 16 he enlisted in 1915 with the Cobourg Heavy Battery in the Great War. He saw service in France as a gunner with the 8th Battery and was wounded. On his return to Canada after the war he worked for a time in the C.N.R. freight office and then on the editorial and advertising staffs of the Peterborough Examiner. Then followed a short period with the Heintzman Company when he received his appointment as chief clerk of the Utilities Commission which post he held when he went on active service in 1940.

With his return to Peterborough after the Great War although peace seemed to have been firmly established Lieut.-Col. Turnbull was one of that small band of men in this community who preached preparedness and carried on with the peacetime militia. He joined "C" Company of the 4th Machine Gun Battalion which was organized as one of the earliest trends growing out of experience in the last war. Col. J. A. Dewart was the officer commanding the company and later when he took over the command of the battalion Lieut.-Col. Turnbull was given command of the "C" company.

Terrific Barrage Batters Cherbourg

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 22—(AP).—Allied forces unlimbered this afternoon their greatest assault since the storming of the beaches of Normandy—a combined land and air attack intended to crack the last defences of the fortified city of Cherbourg. The attack began when waves of Brtish and American planes swept in with a terrific aerial barrage lasting 80 minutes, a field dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Don Whitehead reported. Rocked back on their heels by the weight of this assault in which light and medium bombers dropped down almost to cannon-mouth level to drop their explosive charges, the Germans were immediately beset by a thunderous artillery pounding which left smoke and flame sweeping the German forts.

American troops drawn up in position tensely waiting the effect of these blows, then swept forward.

They last were reported hammering at Fort du Roule, only about 1,500 yards south of the military port, and at Fort Octeville, only slightly farther away to southwest.

The latest headquarters announcements showed that the concentric attack had virtually split the German garrison into three segments.

Meanwhile in the Tilly area at the eastern end of the front, where British forces are operating, heavy enemy shell and mortar fire was reported.

There was no report from the British-Canadian Caen sector, farther east.

Huns Rolled Back.

(These were the troops credited in Washington Thursday by War Secretary Stitmson with making possible the "striking advances" in the Cherbourg area. Mr. Stimson said they "so engaged the enemy that he had no uncommitted strength to threaten the American corridor.")

In the Cherbourg sector, the Americans captured St. Pierre Eglise, 8½ miles east of the port and the last road junction leading to Cherbourg from Cape Barfleur, isolating the Germans in the northeastern tip of the peninsula. Other troops coming up from the south had entered Quettehou, a large town near St. Vaast La Hogue on the east coast and 13 miles southeast of Cherbourg.

On the west another spearhead had practically split the Germans in Cherbourg from those in the northeastern tip of the peninsula by advancing to within half a mile of Beaumont-Hague on the road to Cape De La Hague. Beaumont-Hague is 8½ miles west of Cherbourg.

In a front dispatch today, Ross Munro, chief Canadian Press war correspondent with the Canadian 3rd Division, reported names of 14 battalions active in France from June 6 to 14 which censorship regulations now permit to be disclosed.

Supreme Headquarters said it lacked any knowledge of a reported Allied ultimatum by field radio to the Cherbourg garrison demanding surrender by 7 a.m., Greenwich time, today (2 a.m. EDT). The London Daily Sketch said last night it had recorded such a broadcast.

Final Attack

It was assumed that if the ultimatum was made it was rejected and that Lt.-Gen. Bradley had ordered a final attack. Supreme Headquarters said it was possible the field commander might have made the demand on his own authority.

On the American left flank, infantrymen plunged to within three miles of the sea in the vicinity of St. Crois-Hague, a village seven miles west of Cherbourg astride the main highway to Cape de la Hague, where some German forces are reported seeking at least temporary refuge.

On the right, a fast-moving column drove to a point almost as close to the northern coast by reaching the Eaire River near the village of Le Theil, less than five miles east and slightly south of Cherbourg.

Shuttle Raid To Russia Shatters Berlin

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 22—(AP)—Fleets of light and medium bombers carried out a crushing offensive in support of American troops hammering into Cherbourg today, while big forces of American heavy bombers plowing through flak barrages attacked Pas de Calais rocket bomb installations.

Allied light and medium planes swooped down to within 100 feet of German cannon to drive home the closest support yet given the Cherbourg attackers.

Heavy bombers gave the rocket launching grounds their fourth pounding in less than 24 hours.

The daylight blow followed a night of far-flung aerial attacks extending from France to Germany's industrial Rhur and Berlin—dwarfing the Germans' cross-channel barrage of rocket bombs, which they asserted today are now coming over with incendiary loads.

Fighters Reach Russia

(The Germans also said, without Allied confirmation, that the American planes which bombed Berlin yesterday and flew on to Russia used an airbase at Poltava in the Ukraine, 1,500 miles from London. The Allies announced that some fighter planes escorting the Berlin bombers also flew to Russia.)

Last night Berlin was attacked by speedy R.A.F. Mosquitos while British Lancasters hit Ruhr and Rhineland objectives. Canadian bombers, without loss, attacked the Pas de Calais area late yesterday.

Close upon the American blow at the Pas de Calais area in the morning another great fleet roared out over the Channel in the same direction this afternoon, stirring up a great barrage of anti-aircraft and

LONDON, June 22.—(CP).— The Red Army hurled masses of men and equipment into two new drives on a broad front north of Lake Ladoga to-day in an effort to make a quick end of the war with Finland, already reported in the throes of a government upheaval which may be the prelude to a bid for peace.

Launching of the drives was announced last night in a Moscow communique, which also disclosed that Soviet forces advancing from captured Viipuri on the Karelian isthmus south of Lake Ladoga were within 20 miles of the border fixed at the end of the 1939-40 Finnish-

Germans Lose 80,000 Men

Casualties Mount Steadily In Italy

FIFTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Italy, June 22 — (AP) — Casualties inflicted upon the Germans during the past 41 days of the Allied offensive in Italy were estimated unofficially yesterday to total between 80,000 and 100,000 killed, wounded and captured.

This estimate was based on the known number of Nazis captured—now more than 27,000—and the usual military "rule of thumb" that for each enemy soldier taken prisoner one is usually killed and one or two wounded.

The Allied offensive in Italy is not only taking a big toll of Nazi soldiers, but is causing the German High Command to rush new Divisions into the battle.

Since the Allies swept through Rome, elements of at least four new German Divisions have been speeded to Italy—not only from Northern Italy but from other parts of Europe, including the eastern front areas.

Of these divisions two were Luftwaffe outfits—the 20th from Denmark and the 19th from Belgium. The 16th Storm Troopers were brought from the Balkans, the 162nd Turkoman made up largely of Mongolians, and Turkomen came from Florence.

The Tukoman Division is already virtually smashed. One Allied unit alone has taken 1,200 prisoners, of whom nearly 800 were non-Germans.

Aviation Laws Precipitate House Debate

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 22 — (CP) — Debate on changes in aviation laws in the Commons yesterday developed into a controversy on the merits of private as opposed to public ownership between Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. members, with Liberals saying comparatively little on the issue.

Munitions Minister Howe intervened at one stage to say that the Bill before the house did not "nationalize anything." He did so after Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York Sunbury) complained it was a socialistic measure and in line with the views of those who wanted to nationalize all large enterprise.

The measure under discussion was a bill amending the Aeronautics Act and creating an Air Transport Board with powers to deal with standards of airworthiness, rates in transportation the granting of licenses to Air Lines and to advise the Minister responsible for aviation on policy regarding aviation development.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver South) led off the opposition to the measure by charging that it would make the Minister responsible—at present Mr. Howe—"The Dictator of Civil Aviation in Canada." He objected particularly to the provision that the granting of licenses by the Board would require the approval of the Minister.

At present licences were granted by the Board of Transport Commissioners and the new measure would take away from the people the protection afforded by an independent board over a vital form of transportation, he said.

Principle Sound.

The proposed cancellation of all licences one year after the war in Europe ends was "dead wrong." The policy of issuing no air transport licences to agencies operating other forms of transportation also was wrong. It warned him that if he became successful and grew big he would lose his franchise.

With young Canadians gaining a name for themselves in wartime aviation the country should develop all possible air routes and give scope to every agency instead of "trying to throttle aviation development," Mr Green said.

"The purpose of this bill is that the Government of the day shall be responsible for the administration of Canada's air policy," said Mr. Howe. "I believe that is a sound principle and I am astonished that there is not general agreement on it."

He said the choice was between administration by a Minister responsible to parliament and a bureaucracy which would not be responsible. Members of the Opposition had condemned both.

Referring to a decision of the Board of Transport commissioners that trans-Canada Air Lines could carry mail but not passengers from Vancouver to Victoria because Canadian Pacific Air Lines already was carrying passengers, Mr. Howe said it was a correct one under the Transport Act but he questioned if it was in the interests of Canada at a time when the public required transportation, and equipment was short. It meant that T.C.A. operated on the route with empty seats and C.P.A. was over-crowded and could not handle the traffic

Raps Monopoly

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader drew Conservative protests when he said the battle was between those who believed services should be run by the nation and those who wanted Canadian Pacific "to get in on the ground floor."

He said if Mr. Green considered he had made any personal imputation he would withdraw after the Vancouver member moved to divide the House on appeal from a chairman's ruling.

It was impossible for a young man to come back from the war and start an air line. The list of applicants for franchises showed that an attempt had been made to gather up franchises while the war was on. Routes pioneered by airmen in the past had passed out of their hands and into the Canadian Pacific system.

"The alternative with which we are faced," he said, "is whether a private corporation, powerful in itself, shall be permitted to obtain a monopoly of the new franchises that may be granted or whether this great natural monopoly shall remain in the hands of the people wherein such monopoly properly belongs."

Mr. Hanson asked if the bill was an attempt to outbid the rising power of socialism and said it was the negation of everything a Liberal party sought to stand for. He said the proposed board would be "emasculated" and would be merely advisory.

John Diefenbaker (P. C.—Lake Centre) said he would move an amendment to strike out the necessity for the minister's approval on the granting of licences, and also objected to the barring of operators of other forms of transport from aviation.

The bill will be further discussed tomorrow after debate on the bill to create a reconstruction department ends.

Sanatoria Staffs Wholly Inadequate

MONTREAL, June 22 — (CP) — The Board of Governors of the Royal Edward Laurentian Institute at a meeting yesterday reported that sanatoria staffs were "completely inadequate," despite the greatest effort to obtain help.

A report signed by the heads of the Children's Memorial Hospital, Grace Dart Home and the Royal Edward Hospital's Laurentian and Montreal Divisions maintained that they had been unable to relieve staff shortages by engaging part-time personnel because the hospitals containing the largest number of beds were situated some distance away from centres of population. In addition, fear of the risks that work in a tuberculosis hospital entails has prevented mothers and housewives from undertaking part-time work.

Military examinations and surveys in industry had disclosed many new cases of tuberculosis, the report said.

The Berlin radio said German troops were evacuated from the Island of Pianosa, south of Elba, and the island of Palmajola, between the mainland and Elba, at the same time the Allies seized Elba.

Eighth Army reconnaissance units moved northeast of Perugia to Nocera Umbra on Highway 3 and the village of Morro on Highway 77, approaching Camerino, and to the northwest to an old town on the road to Umbertide, which lies about 14 miles northwest of Perugia.

The village of San Marco, about two miles northwest of Perugia, has been occupied and British troops are only three miles from the last lake shore town of Magione.

The Germans are resisting strongly on the west and southwest sides of Lake Trasimeno, where the 8th Army is driving on Castiglione Del Lago, principal town on the west shore of the lake. The villages of Villa Strada and San Fatucchio, southwest of the lake, were taken after some fighting. The Germans infiltrated into the town of Chiusi, farther to the southwest and fighting followed.

Along the entire 8th Army front the Germans were developing major delaying action, using artillery and mortar fire.

French troops of the 5th Army, advancing over ragged, muddy country, cleared the enemy of several more villages, including Poggio Ucello and Montenero, in the fighting area between the 8th Army and the Americans of the 5th to the west.

American forces occupied Poaganico, on the river Ombrone about 14 miles northeast of Grosseto.

Stony Mountain Trouble Probed

WINNIPEG, June 22—(CP).—The Winnipeg Free Press said yesterday that Acting Superintendent W. S. Lawson has been sent here from Ottawa to investigate dissatisfaction and trouble at Stony Mountain Penitentiary.

The Free Press said the trouble started about three months ago when 100 convicts were sent to the penitentiary from Portsmouth Penitentiary in Ontario.

"It is understood Ed Norton, deputy warden, resigned about three weeks ago, and it is also rumored other staff changes are contemplated."

During one recent outbreak, the newspaper said, a prisoner threw a blanket over a guard's head and "before peace was restored, blows had been struck on both sides."

On another occasion, the Free Press said a guard instructing a class of 75 prisoners was locked in a mail bag The prisoners escaped to the prison yard but did not attempt to leave the penitentiary.

In the same story the Free Press said that Warden J. H. Campbell denied there has been any trouble and said Superintendent Lawson was on a routine inspection.

Shuttle Raid

rocket fire from the German's coastal defences.

These attacks capped 24 hours of tremendous activity including the U.S. Air Force's shuttle raid from Britain to Russia.

A Moscow communique from the headquarters of the eastern command of the U.S. Strategic Air Force said three bombers and two escorting fighters were lost on the flight to Russian air bases. Synthetic oil refineries and installations at Ruhrland, southeast of Berlin, were bombed by a large force.

Mustangs provided constant cover for the bombers during the flight and shot down five enemy planes, the communique said. The bombers shot down a sixth. Yak fighters of the Red Air Force supported Mustangs in the last half of the trip, the announcement added.

"Weather over the targets was fair and the results excellent," the communique said.

Lose 119 Planes.

The 24 hours of operations cost the Allies 119 planes, against 62 German planes shot down.

The loss of three bombers and two fighters on the shuttle raid was in addition to the 43 bombers and 15 fighters lost from the American section which hit Berlin and returned to Britain. The shuttle raiders' toll of six taken from the enemy was in addition to the 49 shot down by the force which returned to British bases.

Keeping the assault going on the German's still-active rocket bomb-launching bases in the Pas de Calais area, R.A.F. heavies followed American heavy and medium bombers over that region yesterday evening and delivered what was officially described as a "devastating" blow at the German installations there.

Forty-six bombers were missing from the widespread British operations, which included laying mines in enemy waters.

The German radio warned today Allied planes were over Styria—perhaps indicating American bombers from Italy were out.

The daylight raid against Berlin by a fleet of more than 1,000 U.S. heavy bombers and 1,200 escorting fighters was the greatest of the war against the Reich capital. It was disclosed that some of the fighters as well as some of the heavy bombers made the shuttle flight between Britain and the Soviet Union.

While German flying bombs continued droning through English skies overnight, the mounting weight of bombs dropped on the Pas de Calais area indicated the Allies were making progress in their campaign against the launching mechanisms for these projectiles.

East of the battle area in Normandy bombing was concentrated on the disrupted and choked railway and highway network over which the Germans are striving to push reinforcements. Over an area of several hundred square miles British and American fighter-bombers battered bridges, railroad yards, tracks, trains, barges and oil tanks at 20 different places. Air bases at St. Quentin and Dreux also were hit.

The fighters which accompanied the heavy bombers making the shuttle raid on Berlin may have set a distance record, depending on how far beyond the Russian border the bases are.

900-Mile Hop

The border itself is some 900 miles from Britain. American fighters have gone several hundred miles further than that on round trips escorting bombers to Berlin and targets farther east in Germany.

Opening of the new Britain-to-Russia shuttle route brought with it the prospects of still greater raids against Germany.

A shuttle operation already has been established between the U.S.S.R. and Allied bases in Italy, and the new use of eastern bases by British-based aircraft multiplies the possibilities for bewildering, co-ordinated air attacks against the Reich.

The Russian terminal also will give additional help in beating the weather's intermittent interruption of operations, attacking forces operating from British, Mediterranean and Russian bases can cover virtually all of Germany and most of its occupied territory.

The raid yesterday was the American's 12th on Berlin. It cost 43 U.S. bombers and 15 fighters. Forty-nine German fighters were knocked down, 20 by fighters and 29 by the bombers' guns.

It was revealed that American fighter planes now based in France are equipped to carry 2,000 pounds of bombs across the front lines in short-range operations supporting the ground troops.

In place of auxiliary fuel tanks the fighters carry a 1,000-pound bomb under each wing.

Four Canadians

Meanwhile the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont., and the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, Galt, Ont., came swirling forward to link with the Sherbrookes and the North Nova Scotias.

On what is the perimeter defence of Caen these Canadian Highland Regiments, with their tank unit, stood firm as German armor and infantry tried repeatedly to break through and drive a wedge into the narrow beachhead.

The Glengarrians were shelled and mortared and German infantry came right up to their positions, only to be driven back. The Sherbrookes and west Nova Scotias saw considerable action of various kinds here too and the tanks were a pillar of strength to this thin line which held firm until the Germans gave up their attempts to break it.

Bombardment from the sea and air helped to soften up the defences but the grim infantry task remained and those leading invasion troops had to cross a flat beach raked with machine-gun bullets and hack their way through tangles of barbed wire and break their way into the trench and pillbox system to drive out the German defenders with bayonet, grenade and machine-gun.

The Winnipegs and Reginas had one of the toughest tasks on the whole Canadian beach, landing on both sides of the inlet at Courseulles. The Winnipegs were west of the inlet with a company of Canadian Scottish while the Reginas were on the east side.

Intricate Defences

Two massive gun casements on either bank of the inlet entrance commanded both beaches and, spreading from these anchor casements, were carefully prepared trench systems, underground tunnels, pill boxes and various kinds of concrete strongpoints.

The Winnipegs and their squadron from the 1st Hussars fought a flaming battle west of the inlet while the Reginas, on the east side, had just as fierce a struggle.

The Germans stayed and fought. They were killed in their trenches and beside the guns and Canadians also died there on the fireswept dunes.

The Winnipegs broke through with tanks and flooded back into farmland and little hamlets southwest of Courseulles.

The Reginas passed from the broken beach defences into Courseulles and fought their way, building-by-building street-by-street, until they smashed the Germans there and captured German coastal headquarters near the market square.

Sand dunes, stretching back to Courseulles itself, which is several hundred yards from the beaches, were honeycombed with dugouts and defence positions.

At 8 a.m. June 6 the Winnipegs and Reginas, with assault tanks of the 1st Hussars, assault engineers and supporting detachment came in from the wild sea in their landing craft and troops spilled from the craft on to the beach.

Mines Effective

Some craft hit mined obstacles and blew up as they came in. German machine-gunners laced the stretch of sand with tracers while coastal guns and mortars hammered it. Somehow the western infantry got over the beach and stormed into the dunes.

The rest of the Canadian Scottish came in to link up with the Winnipeg and Reginas and the rest of the 1st Hussars and the Field Artillery also landed. This powerful force rushed south on a line west of the River Mue, capturing town after town and beating up German strongpoints in fields, woods and villages as it went.

The momentum of the attack never slowed down and the Canadians broke right through to their final objectives at Bretteville on the Caen-Bayeaux Highway.

There was no initial advance like this in the whole Allied invasion effort and it was the Winnipegs, the Reginas, the Canadian Scottish and the Hussars Gen. Montgomery, the Allied Commander referred to when he complimented a western Brigade for its first-day push.

Gen. Montgomery told correspondents June 11 that this showing was "excellent."

A mile east of the Reginas' beaches, the Queen's Own landed under similar conditions at Bernieres. The biggest gun casement on this sector was located there and the Toronto troops went right for it.

Took Strongpoint.

They crawled over a high wall, with machine-gun bullets falling around them, crept through the dunes into the German trenches and with outstanding courage hurled the enemy from this very strong position.

Other Queen's Own Riflemen went right into Bernieres, driving snipers and groups of Germans from houses, the fine Gothic church, cafes and from woods on the outskirts. A long line of integrated pillboxes west of Bernieres in the dunes was attacked in another brilliant foray and the Germans were ousted from them.

The Fort Garry tanks were delayed by a heavy sea in getting ashore there to lend support to the first attack but they came in shortly afterwards and joined in the thrust inland.

Through crops, past minefields and in the face of enemy artillery, machine-gun and mortar fire went the Queen's Own and the tanks, blasting their way through strong point after strongpoint to the Tailleville area, southwest of Bernieres. They consolidated there and carried out some sweeps over the countryside toward Douvres to the southeast.

Hit at St. Aubin

A mile east of Bernieres, the north shore New Brunswick Regiment landed at St. Aubin and battled their way through the western section of the town which had been heavily hit by naval bombardment and air attacks.

Royal Marine Commandos landed there, too, and remained in St. Aubin to clear the town as the New Brunswickers pushed inland to fight for and capture some of the strongest underground positions in the district.

One position had big dugouts 40 feet underground but the Maritimers took it.

Le Regiment de Lachaudiere, a French-speaking battalion from Lake Megantic, Que., was the reserve unit in this brigade and it came in at St. Aubin and ran wild in the country behind the beach defences.

Russian war.

The political situation in Helsinki as the Russians intensified pressure on the staggering Finnish army remained obscure, but there were strong indications the Finnish government was facing a crisis.

A Reuter News Agency dispatch from Stockholm said a Finnish peace cabinet had already been selected. An Associated Press Stockholm dispatch said the Swedish paper Svenska Dagbladet declared the Finnish government crisis had been "de facto solved," a phrase interpreted to mean that the cabinet was reformed and could ask Moscow for armistice conditions.

The new Russian offensives were launched on the third anniversary of the German invasion of the Soviet Union, and apparently were aimed at clearing the Murmansk-Leningrad railway of Finnish forces.

Huge Pincers Move

One of the thrusts was launched along the Svir River, between Lakes Ladoga and Onega (Onezhskoe), approximately 150 to 200 miles northeast of Viipuri. The other was started about 100 miles further north, and cracked Finnish lines east of Medvezhegorsk, at the northwestern tip of the lake.

The broadcast Russian communique said that in the first day of the attack along the Svir more than 200 populated places had been occupied, including Voznesene, a district centre of the Leningrad region.

Plunging beyond the burning ruins of Viipuri, other Red Army units were within 120 miles of the Finnish capital of Helsinki, after taking more than 50 additional places, the Soviet communique added.

The new drives menaced seven divisions of German troops garrisoned in Northern Finland as protection for the metal mines located there, and there was speculation that the Nazis might set up a puppet government in that area to protect their interests.

Comment also was sought from local officers of the Union.

Union Faces Crisis

Thomas said Detroit May 27 that "public opinion has become inflamed against our Union" (because of authorized strikes in war plants) and added:

"The U. A. W.-C. I. O. today faces one of the greatest crises in its history. On the outcome of this crisis will depend the possibilities of our survival in the post-war period. The test is this: Are the membership of our Union and its leaders willing to abide by the Democratic decisions and mandates of our constitution and conventions."

A walkout of 15,000 started at the Wright plant June .. after seven negroes were transferred to a department which had been operated by white workers. The negroes remained on their jobs throughout the strike which ended June 9.

treme range in order to catch the Jap fleet, all American planes were not able to return to their carriers. Many of the 40 lost landed in the water and the crews took to rubber life rafts.

Some of these already have been picked up and others undoubtedly were rescued after dawn Tuesday, although reports are incomplete.

The Nyataka carrier sunk in the Philippines Sea was at least the eighth Japanese flat top sent to the bottom. In addition to four at Midway, the Japanese lost two in the Battle of the Coral Sea and one to a submarine.

The carrier Zuikaku is listed in Jane's fighting ships at displacing 20,000 tons and carrying 60 aircraft, mounting 12 five-inch anti-aircraft guns.

The Hayataka class carriers are listed as "rumored to exist." Jane's suggested this class may be converted merchant vessels.

The Kongo class battleships were laid down in 1912 and 1913. They include the Kongo, Iei, Haruna and Kirisima, each having a normal complement of 980 men.

On Saipan, whose invasion June 14 enticed the Japanese Navy out of prolonged seclusion, Americans holding the southern third of that Marianas oase, 1,500 miles south of Tokyo, inched north along Magicienne Bay.

"Severe fighting continues," the Wednesday communique said, echoing previous reports. Japanese trapped at the southeastern tip are being squeezed into a tighter pocket.

Gun Company were amalgamated into the Prince of Wales Rangers Major Turnbull was appointed a company commander and later second in command of the regiment.

Those were lean and often very discouraging years for officers and men of the militia as a whole including Peterborough units but in spite of the public opinion that the last war was fought to end all wars men like Lieut.-Col. George Melton, Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., Col. Gordon Hall, and Lieut.-Col. Turnbull continued as the nucleus around which the present Canadian Army has developed. They were years of training and study which demanded the sacrifice of time and leisure which may have seemed at times as ungrateful activity.

When the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders were mobilized in 1940 Col. Turnbull was named commander of headquarters company which was recruited in Peterborough but before the unit left the city he had been promoted to second-in-command of the regiment. He went with the unit overseas and two years ago was returned to Canada and after serving in Sherbrooke Training Centre he was transferred to Peterborough.

Lieut.Col. Turnbull is married and has one son who attends the Collegiate Institute.

In the centre substantial gains were made along the main road from Valognes. Today's communique reported "good progress" with advances of two to three miles along the entire front.

Allied experts flew into the Cherburg peninsula to investigate the flying-bomb bases captured intact, but the Supreme Command said there were no indications the Germans had been using these against England. It appeared, a spokesman said, that the Amrican drive over the peninsula left the enemy insufficient time to get the launching sites ready for operations. It was stated more than a quarter of the rocket bomb bases were in Cherbourg peninsula.

Except for the swift encircling drive on Cherbourg, there was little activity on the beachhead. The communique reported only patrol activity elsewhere.

Although in the Cotentin action the assault on Cherbourg itself captured the spotlight, it was apparent Gen. Bradley was striking vigorously to round up German garrisons on the two prongs of the peninsula.

With reports from the front lagging far behind developments, the Supreme Command conceded that advance American patrols already may have reached the sea beyond St. Croix-Hague on the west and Le Theil on the east — advances that would cut off German forces and forts on Cap de la Hague on the west and on Point Barfleur on the east.

Forts Difficult

In the close-up fight for Cherbourg the French-built concrete forts — Octeville and Du Roule — about 1,500 yards from the prize harbor — were proving formidable obstacles to the attacking American troops. The fighting apparently raged all around the town, in the suburbs and possibly inside the town itself.

The BBC said today German fortifications west and east of the port are "the strongest yet encountered by the Americans."

The German radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, began preparing the Nazi home front for loss of the fort, speaking of how it could not hold out long against overwhelming attacks.

The German-controlled Vichy radio said warships offshore were supporting the Americans, but Supreme Headquarters said it had no knowledge of such a bombardment.

The Germans still were rushing to destroy everything in the port and city which could be of use to the Allies.

Reports here said that Cherbourg's airfield appeared to be within the Allied grasp if not already taken. This would be the first sizeable field captured in the beachhead drive and, when repaired, would permit use of medium bombers.

Bad weather yesterday hampered air operations and also delayed unloading of war materials. A strong wind from the northeast whipped up a heavy surf on the beaches.

A dispatch last night from Associated press war correspondent Don Whitehead quoted French civilians straggling through the lines as saying the Germans in Cherbourg had prepared for a street-by-street defence by knocking holes in the corner of buildings and setting up machine guns and anti-tank guns to cover the approaches.

Whitehead's dispatch, sent at 9:31 p.m. last night, said the invaders had "encountered the core of the enemy's last line of defences—blockhouses and concrete pillboxes—and for the past 12 hours had been probing enemy positions "and getting ready for the final thrust."

The infantrymen, he said, were meeting stiffening opposition from strong points fixed "so that the lines of fire criss-crossed, with each point supporting its neighbors."

But Whitehead expressed the view that there would be little chance for the enemy to mak a "Stalingrad" of the city because th Allies have vastly-superior hitting power on land, sea, and in the air.

Jacques Cartier Society Under Fire

OTTAWA, June 22 (CP)—Statements of Senator T. D. Bouchard (L-Quebec) that activities of the Order of Jacques Cartier were directed at preventing understanding and improved relationships between French and English Canada were expected today to lend new life to a Senate debate on a motion by Senator L. A. David (L-Quebec) dealing with the teaching of history.

Senator P. R. DuTremblay (L-Quebec) adjourned the debate yesterday immediately after Senator Bouchard spoke, and it is anticipated that several other Quebec members of the Upper House will follow as a result of Senator Bouchard's remarks which broadened the scope of the resolution into a discussion of the general relationship of French and English Canada.

The resolution called for the appointment by the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference of a committee to draft a history of Canada which would be acceptable to all provinces. Senator Bouchard, supporting the motion, yesterday said the teaching of Canadian history in Quebec had been used in some instances to disrupt unity in the Dominion.

Speaking first in French and then in English, he said the results of the teaching of history in Quebec were "rather discouraging to those who thought and still persist in thinking we could build a large country in which the descendants of two great nations and two great cultures would live and thrive in peace and harmony."

"A man of honest purpose has to concede that there are important frictions existing between the Canadians of French and English descent. The differences of religion and language are, though they should not be, the fertile fields where the sowers of the seeds of discontent work day and night, but mostly in the dark.

"History has taught that nearly every revolution has started under the influence of secret societies. One was founded around 1926 with the blessing of the Catholic and French clergy under the name of the Jacques Cartier Order."

Cut English.

He said that under the former L'Union Nationale government in Quebec, which he described as the "first governmental offspring" of the Jacques Cartier Order, regulations were passed in Quebec to shorten the English tuition in schools.

"The movement against teaching English in our primary schools was intensified and it has come to a point where fathers and mothers noted that their sons and daughters were making no progress in the English language," he said.

Senator Bouchard spoke on a motion by Senator David calling for the appointment by the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference of a committee to prepare a text book on Canadian history acceptable to all provinces. A major portion of his speech was devoted to the activities of the order of Jacques Cartier .

"It is my firm belief that at least 75 per cent of the members of this Order (Jacques Cartier,) numbering according to the most recent information, around 18,000, are good British citizens who do not suspect where they are being pushed by the fanatics of every description who are the real leaders of this secret society," he said. "Imagine the harm that can be done by these active agents of destruction in a more or less passive population as the one lining in my province.

He quoted "L'Emerillon," which he described as the secret organ of the order, as forecasting "French domination in the more or less near future" in Ontario.

History Subversive

"Our French masses in the north, especially" he quoted from the paper, "shall finish to weigh so heavily on the population of the centre and south of the old Upper Canada that on each side we shall perhaps think of a secession to the end of creating a new province, French by a great majority."

"Canadian history should not serve as a tool of subversive propaganda in the hands of those who are aiming to disrupt the Confederation system and to overthrow our form of democratic government," he said.

Senator Bouchard quoted extracts from a History of Canada approved for primary schools in Quebec in 1910 which, he said, contained contradictory statements illustrating that the teaching was "made intentionally to prejudice the young minds against our compatriots of a different tongue and creed."

He said he could not agree with the views of "some of our citizens higher up" that no attention should be paid to subversive activities.

A BRITISH PORT, June 22 — (CP). — Midnight rendezvous off the French Riviera and the coast of Corsica....A mysterious woman who climbed aboard a British submersible from a small boat while reciting snatches from "The Scarlet Pimpernell"......A submarine captain who became known as "The Pimpernell."

That's part of the saga of His Majesty's submarine Sybil, which returned to its home base after one of the longest Mediterranean commissions ever carried out by an underwater craft.

The commanding officer, Lt. E. J. Turner, D.S.O., D.S.C., a Scotsman, was nicknamed "The Pimpernel" by the Sybil's crew after a secret mission to embark the members of General Giraud's staff and take them to Algiers.

"Surfaced, we crept to within 300 yards of shore off the Riviera," Turner said. "The night was dark with no moon and there was a calm sea. For a time I waited on the bridge watching the flashes of trams pasing along a coast road.

"Then I saw a small boat being rowed toward us. I leaned over the conning tower expecting a man to give the password."

Pimpernel Rhyme.

"But there was only one passenger—a woman—and instead of uttering the password she said softly:

"They seek him here, they seek him there,
Those Frenchies seek him everywhere.
Is he in Heaven? Is he in Hell?
That demned elusive Pimpernel."

Hauled aboard, the woman was welcomed to the wardroom and proved "an excellent messmate." She disembarked at Algiers four days later.

"I saw her again in Algiers shortly before we left for home," Turner said. "She has done much useful work for the Allied cause."

Sybil's Corsican mission came came while the Nazis were occupying the island. The craft took off the chief of the Corsican secret organization which was preparing to strike with the Allies.

"We just got him aboard when we were attacked by shore batteries," said Turner. "But we took him to Algiers where he made a valuable contribution to the preparation for the attack on Corsica."

Then, the Corsican leader was flown to the island and dropped by parachute.

Besides the special missions, the Sybil sank many ships. On the first offensive patrol two large supply vessels were sunk following a long submerged chase.

Money For The Arts

On Wednesday the suggestion was made to the House of Commons Reconstruction Committee that an appropriation of ten million dollars be made to advance the cause of the arts and letters in Canada after the war. The proposal was contained in a brief which embodied the opinions of sixteen national associations of artists, musicians and architects. It was suggested that a Government department be established which would supervise cultural activities in Canada and extend such national services as the National Art Gallery, the National Film Board and the CBC. The proposal was also made that community art centres be established, a third of the cost being borne by the Dominion Government, the Provincial Government and the community respectively. In larger towns and cities such centres would cost about $250,000 each and would contain an art gallery, a library and an auditorium; in smaller communities similar establishments costing between $50,000 and $100,000 would be built. "In no country is less consideration given to the arts than in Canada", said the brief; "this condition could be cured by deliberate intention and action".

The chief contention of this brief—that art in Canada is neglected by all but a tiny minority of the population—is undeniable. We do not think that this is because Canadians are a crass and inartistic people; in the large cities where there are art galleries, a variety of concerts and a living theatre, these things are enthusiastically supported. But in the smaller cities, the towns, villages and rural districts there is little music to be heard, no pictures to be seen, no drama, and architecture of unrivalled hideousness. The proposal before the Parliamentary Committee is that the Government should spend some money to give the people of Canada a chance to develop their artistic tastes, which exist, but which are woefully undernourished at present.

The idea of establishing a Government department to supervise this work is not a wholly palatable one, for government-fostered art is rarely of the highest quality. Still, something is better than nothing, and the centres which the brief suggests should be built would be valuable oases in the artistic desert which is Canada.

Canada needs the inspiration and the spiritual refreshment which art alone can give it. "Where there is no vision, the people perish". At present, in matters of art, we are one of the most backward countries in the world, far behind peoples whom we look upon as half civilized. If our Canadian civilization were to be destroyed tomorrow, it would not leave a single object behind it to tell future ages that the Canadians were more than a nation which bought and sold, lived and died, ate and drank and slept. Is art in Canada always to be the possession of a few, imported by them from other and more spiritually alive nations? Or are we going to produce something of our own? If the latter is our decision, we should begin to encourage our artists now.

The C.C.F. Disapproves.

The C.C.F. held a provincial convention in Montreal last Saturday night, at which this resolution was passed: "Whereas the C.C.F. is a Socialist Party, and whereas the official policy of the British Labour Party of coalition with the Conservative Party compromised the working class struggle against capitalism in Great Britain, therefore be it resolved that the Quebec C.C.F. declares strong disapproval of the continuation of its policy of collaboration with the capitalistic government of Great Britain". We are not sure whether the C.C.F. expects this resolution to be taken seriously or not; if it does some interesting points are raised.

The first point is that the C.C.F. apparently doesn't know much about the British Labour Party, which declared early in its history that its purpose was "to establish a distinct Labour Group in Parliament, who shall have their own whips and agree upon their own policy which must embrace a readiness to co-operate with any party which for the time being may be engaged in promoting legislation in the direct interest of labour". We think that this latter statement may be taken as an expression of willingness to co-operate in any movement for the preservation of the homeland in the event of a great war, to preserve liberty at home and protect it abroad. The British Labour Party has had an existence of some kind since 1900, and during those years it has become a seasoned and intensely practical party, with a record of service in two wars; C.C.F. socialism is still largely in the comic-strip stage, and its attitude of opposition to the war effort during 1939-40 showed how realistic it was.

The second point is that the Quebec C.C.F. seems to regard itself as part of an international labour organization, with full right to censure a political party in another country which it believes holds views similar to its own. The day of such international movements has passed, and the Quebec C.C.F. would be the first to protest if the British Labour Party criticised its doings, or assumed a right, as the senior organization, to interfere with its policy. The Montreal group must have been drunk with zeal when it undertook thus to teach its grandam how to suck eggs.

The C.C.F. has incorporated into its doctrine some very old-fashioned notions of socialism. The concept of the "working class struggle", which was all very well in the days of Karl Mark, does not mean much nowadays when virtually everybody works and when the rewards of what is called 'labour' are frequently higher than the rewards of work requiring considerable academic training. And it must be said flatly that the C.C.F. does very ill in raising a class-war issue in a country which has no class system, no hereditary aristocracy, and very few family fortunes of long duration. Canadians, fortunately for themselves, know nothing whatever about class war, and no good purpose is served by trying to raise that bogey here.

History Of Peterborough Schools

In our Third Column today we print the first half of an article on the early schools of Peterborough which was recently discovered in the files of this office, and which we are convinced was written by the late Frank Dobbin. Not only is the article interesting in itself, but it contains a quantity of information which we feel should be on permanent record, and that is why we are proud to present it on this page today and tomorrow. The files of a newspaper are a rich store for any searcher in the history of a country or a community, and we hope that, apart from its daily usefulness as a budget of news, the Examiner will be useful in the future as a full record of what has happened in this district. That is why we are glad to print matter of interest as local history whenever it is available, and we think that the late Mr. Dobbin's article has special value.

A Matter Of Municipal Improvement

We see by a recent copy of the Vancouver Sun that the community of West Vancouver has decided to buy six waterfront properties which are to be made into park and playground extensions; the expense will be covered by a bond issue and the total cost will be $89,250. West Vancouver has a population of about 12,000.

This may provide some encouragement for Peterborough, which has long been flirting with the idea of municipal improvements, but which has not yet shown any serious intentions in that direction. We are in a more fortunate position than the small community of West Vancouver; we have several parks already, and we shall not be forced to buy property if we want to create any more. The trust in the future which has been shown in the West might advantageously be copied here in the East.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Italy's new Premier is named Bonomi, but he is an untried man. Hasn't scratched yet, in fact.

Early Schools In Peterborough

By FRANK DOBBIN

ONE hundred years ago the first Common School Act in Upper Canada came into force and in the marking of this century of public school education The Examiner just by chance found an old history of schools and education in Peterborough. This history we believe was written by the late Frank Dobbin to whose memory and writings this city is indebted for much of its early history. Mr. Dobbin writes of the schools and early education.

THE end of the first ten years of settlement,—1824 to 1834—showed that the population of the town site of Peterborough had increased. Those locating had large families of children. For the first fifteen years such schools as provided were in the way of private effort and service. One such was established at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, upstairs in a wooden building long since demolished. Another was on the north side of Charlotte street, on property now a service station. There Mrs. Flavelle, grandmother of Sir Elsworth Flavelle, for many years conducted a private school that acquired a most favorable reputation as an excellent one to send children. They were taught both manners and deportment and acquired the groundwork that afterward stood them in good stead when admitted into other schools.

DR. S. F. FORD of Norwood, an old Peterborough boy, who completed upward of sixty years of practice, gave some interesting reminiscences of the schools of the early days. Dr. Ford served as a medical officer in the closing years of the American Rebellion War, and afterwards took up practice in the eastern part of the county, at Norwood. He has personal recollection of the matters of which he contributes the following incidents. The approximate dates being in the later thirties and on through the forties of the last century.

Dr. Ford relates: "One, Chesman Mowe, kept a private school in the later thirties, in a small house near to what is now the entrance to the Little Lake cemetery." It may be explained, while not pertinent to matter under review, that Chesman Mowe and his brother had squatted on the lands now covered by the cemetery, south as far as the locks. When promoters of the cemetery project sought consent from the Assembly of Upper Canada to buy the property, he set up a strong opposition. The result of the controversy was that House not only ousted the brothers but made a gift at a charge of only fees to the cemetery company.

Continuing Dr. Ford writes: "Walter Sheridan, afterwards County Clerk and Treasurer, taught in a small school in what was known as the Scotch Village, (afterwards Ashburnham). The building was of logs, squared and comfortable, and pulled down when the brick school was erected on Mark street.

"ON the west side of Aylmer street, between Charlotte and King streets, in a clapboard building, high up on cedar posts, a Mr. Weatherhead, a one-armed man taught school, for several years in the early forties. Among his pupils were late J. J. Lundy, William and Peter Hamilton, James Stevenson and his sister, Joseph Cobb, the Henthorn boys, the Eastlands, the Spencelys, William Ford, the Hartleys and Richard Winch. William and James English and many others, now gone to rest, but who were prominent men in the town in not so remote years, attended that school.

"Mrs. Colwell, widow of Captain Colwell taught a private school for girls in the house, afterwards occupied by W. S. Conger, on London street. The site of this house is now the St. Vincent's Orphanage. Mrs. Cobb, mother of the late Joseph Cobb, taught a girls' school in a little building on the south corner of London and Aylmer streets. Thomas Whitfield, a Cavan man, started up a school in an old building which stood near the spot now occupied by the armouries, on Murray street.

"ON the west of Aylmer street, between Simcoe and Rubidge streets, a Mr. Ware had a school. This building stood just about opposite the old Black Horse Inn, that venerable building adjoining the Creamery. There were constant fights between the boys of this school and of the Weatherhead school. One day the Ware boys caught hte Weatherhead boys in swimming at the old swimmin' hole, near Pat Hammon's distillery, (the stone building at the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets). The hour was that of high noon. The Ware boys swiped the clothes of the swimmers, carried them away and deposited them at the corner of George and Brock streets. It was late in the afternoon before a good Samaritan hunted up and returned to the shivering bathers the stolen clothes.

"The old school, on the north side of Brock street, between George and Water streets, afterward used as a paint shop had something of an educational history. Here taught, first, Rev. Andrew Smith, father of the late Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of prisons. Also, Thomas Robinson, an uncle of T. W. Robinson, was a teacher for several years. Many of the former citizens of Peterborough gained each his education in this building.

IN 1844 came into force the first Common School Act for the province of Upper Canada, and was applied in the Colborne District in 1845. The act gave the municipality of North Monaghan certain powers as well placed functions in the hands of the County Council, and application was made to the Assembly of Upper Canada for a grant of lots on which to build schools within the town plot as surveyed.

Elias Burnham was the first schools inspector, and his report at the end of the year gives a graphic description of the paucity of accommodation and limited facilities for teaching. He concludes his remarks with the statement that "in no instance in my recollection, with one or two exceptions, have I seen the English grammar in use; very seldom geography and no history, except an occasional reading book. The Bible I found in general use."

A WHALE'S SHOULDER

The trouble with the world (one of the troubles, of course) is that peoples do not know how to make conversation: as a rule they are boastful. The French say: we have the Eiffel tower. The English say: we have the crown jewels in the Tower. In Philadelphia they have the Liberty Bell, and in Antwerp they have a shoulder bone of the giant who once ruled the city. It is a bone of a whale, but that doesn't matter.—News From Belgium.

Mr. Roosevelt's Peace Plan

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

AT some future date it may be noted as significant that the American peace proposals, formulated after eighten months of nonpartisan consultation between State Department officials and the political leaders of both parties, were put forth at the moment when American forces stood at last on the European beachhead. The President's statement, which thereby lost some of its impact on the world, may have been deliberately timed. In setting forth the American consensus on how best to maintain peace and security Mr. Roosevelt may have considered that too much was made last time of the mere machinery of the peace, that fanfare and brass bands and the signing of international documents are not in themselves a guarantee of lasting peace. It may have been his intention to put the American view before the world without insistence, certainly without any suggestion that it is the last word.

However that may be, the framework for future world collaboration that he has disclosed forms a basis of agreement not only with the rest of the democratic world but at home, which is almost as important. His statement goes no further than the Republican and Democratic party leaderships will venture, and when it is considered that the national conventions are about to be held the significance of this fact is evident.

In following the pattern of the League of Nations Mr. Roosevelt would set up a fully representative body of all the peace-loving nations. This organization will elect annually a council which will include the four major nations and a suitable number of other nations. Although the broad effect is the same as Mr. Churchill hopes to achieve by his own tentative proposal, President Roosevelt has avoided, by a neat inversion, the serious objection raised against the Churchill plan by the small nations.

What Mr. Churchill proposed was a council of the four major powers, retaining sufficient force to guarantee that ambitious nations will find it impossible to carry out their aggressions. Below the council would be an assembly of world powers, whose relationship to it was not defined. The outcry of the small nations, who saw themselves under a four-power dictatorship, was so sharp and immediate that Mr. Cordell Hull had to assure them that their position and rights would be safeguarded.

The position of the small nations under President Roosevelt's plan is immeasurably improved. The council, which includes the Big Four, is the lower-level body, to be elected by the organization of all the associated nations. Further, "there would also be an international court of justice to deal primarily with justiciable disputes," and agreements to maintain and use adequate national forces to prevent war.

Having disposed of the fear of a four-power dictatorship, the statement proceeds to remove the bugbear of an international police force. "We are not thinking of a superstate with its own police forces and other paraphernalia of coercive power," Mr. Roosevelt says. Thus the doubts and fears of those nations who would co-operate but see their national sovereignty threatened are banished.

Critics of the President's plan have not been slower than usual in finding fault with it. It is a minimum plan, they say; it lacks definitions, it leaves many questions unanswered. Adherents of world government by force are dissatisfied. So are those opponents of the League who see in it too close a resemblance to that defunct body; they attack its proposed formation of international agencies to deal with the problems of world relations, forgetting that agencies of the League itself are still in existence and performing useful tasks throughout the world that cannot be otherwise undertaken.

Much of this criticism is valid. The plan is necessarily indefinite. But what is important is that it exists as the American blueprint for peace; what is definite is that it states what the American people are agreed on, and how far they are prepared to go in their determination to maintain peace in co-operation with their allies.

North Dakota's Dilemma

(By J. H. GRAY)

FEW Canadians watching the progress of election campaigns south of the border fully realize the importance which local issues have in turning election tides. The current Republican primary campaign in North Dakota is an apt example of how potent local issues can intrude to confuse what would otherwise be a clear-cut struggle between isolationism and internationalism.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, one of the outstanding American isolationists is up for re-nomination for another six-year term in the U.S. Senate. Because of his pre-war record, he is faced with severe opposition inside his party and a vigorous drive is being made to prevent his nomination.

If this were the only issue in North Dakota, we in Canada could draw some conclusions from the result. Unfortunately, however, another question is involved which has nothing to do with foreign policy but which may become the major issue of the campaign.

Under the United States Senate there operates a number of committees of great power. Regional and party considerations are the original factors in appointing members to these committees. Once on, however, seniority is what counts. The ranking members of the majority party in the Senate are always the chairmen of the committees.

Senator Nye is now rounding out 20 years in the U.S. upper house. He is the ranking Republican member of the most powerful of all the Senate committees—the appropriations committee.

For years the people of North Dakota have felt they have had less than their fair share of federal spending. As a habitually Republican state, its representatives did not wield much power when the Democratic party controlled both houses of Congress. But if the Republicans gain a majority at this election, a Republican will head each of the committees. If North Dakota Republicans renominate and later elect Senator Nye, he will be chairman of the appropriations committee. By reason of that position he will be one of the most powerful men in Washington.

Not only will he be able to do many things for North Dakota on his own hook, but he can bring influence to bear upon other chairmen to get them to take a friendly interest in his state. But, if Senator Nye is defeated, chairmanship of this committee will fall to the next senior man—a New Englander. Senator Nye's successor would wield little power in Washington until he had built up his seniority, as Senator Nye did by winning three re-elections.

Thus the dilemma posed for the North Dakota neighbours is thorny indeed. If they reject Senator Nye, they throw away a powerful lever for getting more federal money spent in North Dakota. If they vote for him, they get an extreme isolationist whose ideas about the need for a world order may be the complete negation of their own. If they defeat Senator Nye it will of course be a repudiation of his isolation. If they re-elect him it may or may not be an endorsation of his record on foreign policy. What is true of North Dakota, in this regard, will be true of other states as well.

'SECOND FRONT'

Speakers at "Salute the Soldier" meetings during the week-end referred to the expected great offensive.

Captain H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air (at Broadstairs).—The Second Front has already begun. Surely no one can question that the invasion of Europe has come about when nearly 8,000 men invaded Berlin the other morning. Over other parts of Germany there has been, during the month of April, an invasion from the air by day engaging manpower to the number of approximately 75,000. When the British Tommy lands on the Continent his foothold will be made more secure and his path more direct because of the destruction throughout the length and breadth of occupied Europe carried out by 138,000 Allied airmen during the April prelude. —London Times.

FALA OR FALLA?

President Roosevelt has insisted a time or two at press conferences—usually when paddling the press for alleged inaccuracies—that his dog's name is properly spelled Fala, and not "Falla." F.D.R. has made a point of people just being incapable of getting his dog's name right. Inspection of the name plate on the terrier's collar Tuesday revealed that the name engraved on it is "Falla."—Minneapolis Tribune.

TELLING THE STRANGER

Someone anxious to make a book should collect and publish some of the information imparted to American soldiers in this country by well-intentioned guides. Here are a few items from St. Paul's. Sir Joshua Reynolds was a musician who played the organ at Westminster Abbey and doubtless was commemorated at St. Paul's in gratitude for escape from his performances; St. Dunstan's Chapel is much frequented by the blind; the Whispering Gallery is where the Dean stands to address the people. And the eagle on the lectern is, of course, of the true American brood.—London Spectator.

A Bible Message

Doth not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice?.... She crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors. Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man....

Hear; for I will speak of excellent things; and the opening of my lips shall be right things. For my mouth shall speak truth; and wickedness is an abomination to my lips. All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing forward or perverse in them. They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.

Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold.

For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it. (Prov. 8: 1, 3, 4, 6-11.)

The door of the cottage had needed repairing for many years, but the occupants were quite satisfied to ease it off the floor with a hatchet whenever it jammed.

There was a discreet knock at the door, and a head popped out of the window to see who the caller was. The owner of the head quickly withdrew, and in a voice that the entire village might have heard, yelled:

"Quick! It's the new minister. Get the hatchet!"

War-Born Words

So far the war has not made an impressive contribution to the English language. That, at least, is the picture derived from H. L. Mencken's list, "War Words in England," which appeared in the February number of American Speech. He has listed new coinages that have appeared in the English press with some frequency, discarding "the feeble neologisms that died with their projectors."

But there are still a good many words on the Mencken list that do not suggest a high life expectancy; words like bomphlet and bomphleteer (even if invented by the distinguished A. P. Herbert, dicky-bird and nose-bag for gas mask, Moaning Minnie and Howling Horace for air-alarm sirens.

The more promising words, perhaps because the most familiar over here, are alert, blackout, blitz and blitzkrieg (but not blitzlull or blitzpeace), commando, ersatz, evacuee, Lord Haw Haw, Jerry, lebensraum, quisling. One of the catch phrases in the Mencken list deserves to live as a specimen of Syrano de Bergerac humour in British form. It is "I Thengyow." It is what the boys in France say when a shell drops unpleasantly near. I Thengyow for I thank you. —New York Times.

Germans Shot Prisoners In Back Canadian Tank Sergeant Says

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 22—(CP)—A Canadian tank sergeant who lay wounded for four days in enemy territory crawled back to his own lines to relate how a German guard cold-bloodedly shot down him and two companions.

Sgt. Ernie Payne of Parry Sound, Ont., reached Canadian lines safely along with Sgt. Tom Johnston of St. Thomas, Ont., who also was cut off in another fierce tank battle.

Payne said he and two companions were captured after their tank was knocked out in combat. They were disarmed and turned over to a lone German soldier who opened fire on them with a rifle from behind after they had walked about 50 yards down a road toward an enemy-held village.

One soldier was killed, Payne was wounded in the neck and the Nazi fired three or four shots after the third soldier, who jumped for cover in a hedge.

Payne crawled into hiding and lay by the road for four days, afraid to stir in an area that was alive with German troops. Finally he managed to creep undetected back to his own lines.

Johnston was in a tank which over-ran enemy infantry positions, firing into trenches and even tossing hand grenades into some until it was attacked itself by German tanks from concealed positions.

Johnston's commander was wounded by a sniper and Johnston helped him to the ground and then proceeded to another Canadian tank to get help, but before he could reach it, it too was hit. When Johnston returned he found his commander missing and was unable to find him despite a search.

The sergeant then hid until the Germans suddenly withdrew to a position further back and he was able to return to Canadian-held territory, from which a new offensive a few hours later took the ground on which he had been fighting.

Johnston said most of the Germans he saw were extremely young and fought fanatically. They wore the hip-length camouflaged jackets and tucked-in trousers of the Hitler Youth Division.

Youth's Ideas Probed By YMCA Body

BY LEONE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 22 — (CP) — During this war the accent has been placed on Canadian youth, and across Canada many earnest thinkers are devoting their spare time to guaranteeing that the accent will not be lost.

The Canadian Youth Commission was formed to investigate and act upon the ideas and aspirations of Canadian Young people, particularly those between the ages of 15 and 24.

This commission is a private organization, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., and widely representative. It has embarked upon a two-year program of investigation, planning and public education.

R. E. G. Davis, director of the organization, said the outstanding characteristic of the commission is that it is working with youth and not for youth.

"We are consulting youth directly and finding out what youth itself thinks, not what adults think youth thinks," he added.

The first step of the organization was to form a studies and investigation group. Members of this group interview young people all over Canada. They seek young opinions in urban and rural communities, in labor unions in the armed forces, in churches, universities, in high schools, and in the various youth-serving agencies.

A second body is roughly known as the reaching group. It conducts intensive interviews of selected young people. Throughout Canada more than a thousand youthful groups hold discussions and exchange opinions on post-war problems.

Good Ideas Advanced

These ideas are then brought to the front at hearings called in different localities. Mr. Davis explained that in this way the thinking of young people is guided into concrete suggestions. He declared that at many of the conferences more mature ideas are advanced than at those composed of adults.

A third group consists of seven committees of experts. Each committee tries to understand and interpret faithfully the point of view of young people themselves. Each committee handles one topic—employment, education, physical and mental health, recreation, family living, citizenship, religion and life philosophy. They act upon the findings of the two preceeding groups to prepare reports in their area and to advance specific practical suggestions.

And then there is a fourth group called the action committee. It has a branch in every province except Prince Edward Island. Members of the action committee are responsible for exactly what the name implies. They organize community committees and persuade provincial leaders to act upon suggestions. The workers include psychologists, psychiatrists, dentists, social service workers, and those who are just interested in youth.

Mr. Davis said that all who have heard of the scheme have expressed enthusiasm. He has received letters from different localities and even England asking for details of the commission and expressing hope that its work will bear fruit.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tonight will settle the question of whether Pitcher McPherson's slow motion offerings will prove as effective against St. Peter's as they were last week against the power hitters of the Switchgear and Plaza clubs. McPherson is billed to go to the mound for the U.E.W. team tonight as they battle the Saints in a City League game that means a lot to both teams. The Union outfit, behind the Millbrook twirler's effective pitching, have looked like a new outfit in recent games but they will have to win a couple of victories soon if they hope to grab off a playoff berth. They will field their strongest possible team and hope to break into the win colmun at the expense of St. Peter's. The latter cannot afford to lose many more games either and they are all keyed up to push over a win. Gene Reynolds who until the signing of Bill Moorhead the other day was the one-man pitching staff of the Saints will likely do the firing for them tonight. He has been pitching good ball all season and hopes to add another win to his string at the expense of the U.E.W. outfit. The game will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp and should be another snappy exhibition, rating a good crowd.

* * * * * *

With Quakers and Johnson Motors supplying the contention tonight in a girls' league game at the Ashburnham Bowl, the fans should see a good battle between two young teams who have been showing a consistent improvement as the season progresses. The Quakers, new to the loop this season, have dug up some promising material and Gertie Masters who does the throwing for them has demonstrated some effective pitching ability. She will probably get the call tonight with Helen Mark slated to go to the mound for the Outboard Marines. Tomorrow night the Westclox seniors, unbeaten this season, will tie into the Brintons who gave them a really tough battle the last time out. In fact the champs did not nail the decision until the last stages of the well-played contest. Brintons, in fact, made it a battle all the way and it was one of the best girls' games of the season. Brintons hope to make it even closer tomorrow night. Bernice Stinson, Phyllis Corrigan and Doris Walker are available as pitchers while Joyce Withers or Isobel Bullock will be the Big Bens' choice.

Hockey Star Killed

Peterborough hockey players and fans will learn with regret that Clayton Jackson, one of the two Deseronto brothers who played on the forward line with Belleville intermediates for a number of seasons and were seen in action frequently against the Petes has been killed overseas while fighting with the Canadian Army. Ken Colling has the following to say in his column: "It was with profound regret this corner learned Clayton Jackson, of Deseronto, had been one of Canada's most recent casualties overseas. A quiet sort of a lad, Clayton "Mike" Jackson teamed with his brother, Will "Ike" to form a great scoring combination to help bring Belleville's first and only Intermediate O.H.A. championship to this city in 1937. As he played hockey, Clay Jackson was a quiet and thorough soldier and is the second Belleville O.H.A. player to make the supreme sacrifice for freedom. Jim Pepper was the first. Glancing back over the 1937 champion Belleville hockey lineup we find Secretary Don Thomas now in Italy, while Ken Murphy, Lum Carson and Harry Morgan are also in the service. Incidentally Bill Jackson tried to enlist at the same time Clayton went into the Canadian army, but was rejected. A younger brother is in the Royal Canadian Navy."

Billy Westwick in his Ottawa Journal sport column draws attention to the fact that Yvon Robert, the Montreal mat star who wrestled here several months ago on one of the Tunney bills at the Brock Street Arena won a popularity contest conducted among Montreal sport fans who forgot all about the stars of hockey and baseball and voted in gobs for Monsieur Robert who incidentally has been doing all right for himself financially as well for he owns one of the most prosperous night cubs in the metropolis. Says the Ottawa scribe: "Some research by Toronto writers into the returns at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens reveals the wrestlers holding down a prominent position....From November, 1942, to October, 1943, the grapplers played to a total of 221,898 fans.... That total is only 42,637 less than National Hockey League games there drew for a similar length of time Toronto is one of the top wrestling centres, though matchmaker Eddie Quinn isn't doing too badly at Montreal, where Yvon Robert continues to pack them in....When it came to a vote for the most popular athlete in Montreal, all the hockey and baseball stars were forgotten and Robert drew the nod....After losing three matches in a row to Sandor Szabo at the Forum, Robert threatened to quit if beaten. ....But he caught up with Hungarian star the other night and will be around for another 10 years at least."

There are many reasons why the St. Louis Cards are well out in front of the National League race this season and one is a tall right-handed pitcher who hails from Houston Texas and in his second season in the big show is setting a pace that has all the heavers gasping. He is big George Munger who yesterday won his ninth game of the season as the Cards nosed out the Chicago Cubs 6 to 4. Munger took all his first season to win that many games and he was beaten five times in 1943. This year he has lost only one game so he is out in front of the parade with a percentage of .900 which, neighbors, can be accurately described as de luxe pitching. The big fellow had to have some help from Mort Cooper yesterday but got credit for the win. Also, as a feature of yesterday's doings mark a new record for Mel Ott. The hard-hitting manager of the Giants scored the 1,741st run of his National League career yesterday and as a result beat the old time record set a long time ago by Hans Wagner. Incidentally the Giants gave the Brooklyn Dodgers quite a lacing, winning hands down by 11 to 2, scoring seven in the ninth to rub it in. Rookie Bill Voiselle got the win, his ninth of the season.

In addition to the game won by Munger the Cards also gathered in the other end of a double-header from the Cubs, taking the second fixture 7 to 2 on expert six-hit pitching by the smart southpaw Harry Brecheen. Ray Starr now with the Pittsburg Pirates beat his former teammates the Cincinnati Reds for the second time, winning 2 to 1. In the American League St. Louis Browns went further out in front by an easy win over Chicago White Sox 11 to 2, with Nels Potter pitching smooth ball for the winners and Gene Moore and Vernon Stephens hitting homers for the Browns. At the same time the Philadelphia A's were helping the St. Louis club by taking the Red Sox for the third game in a row. Jess Flores pitched for the A's and his good work coupled with timely hitting by Dick Siebert enabled the Mackmen to take the decision by 4 to 2. New York Yanks and the Senators broke even, the Yanks winning the opener 4 to 3 and losing the nightcap 6 to 4. Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers had a slug-fest which the Tribe finally won 9 to 7, in spite of a homer by Rudy York with two on the runways in the first-inning.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The postponed game between Westclox and Aircraft in the Girls' Softball League will be played on Saturday evening at 6.45 o'clock and should prove one of the best battles of the season. Leadership of the league will be at stake as Westclox lead the Aircraft by only one game at present....Switchgear have added another pitcher to their string, evidently readying for the playoffs....He is Red Stevenson, left-handed Omemee pitcher who has signed on with Murph Chambers' crew....That gives the league leaders four twirlers....Switchgear, by the way, have arranged an exhibition game with the Oshawa Colts, for two years intermediate Ontario champions. The Colts with their full retinue will appear at Riverside Park on the evening of Saturday, July 22....Gib Brockley, Switchgear outfielder was banished from the game in the third inning last night for objecting to a decision at third base....Brockley voiced his complaint from right field and Umpire Batley tossed him out of the battle, McNabb finishing the game in the garden....Art Padgett was still out of the lineup with a lame back....Revoir who pitched for the Soldiers last night hails from down Marmora way.

Soldiers Hand Leaders First Defeat

Behind seven-hit pitching by Earl Revoir, Soldiers hammered two Switchgear twirlers for 19 hits in Wednesday night's City League fixture at Riverside Park and handed Manager Murph Chambers' league leaders their first defeat of the season. The final count was 11 to 4 and the Soldiers were always in front after the second inning.

The Military Training Centre club won with so little difficulty that the game ranks as the upset of the campaign.

Revoir, making his debut for the Soldiers, had the Switchgear hitters under control all the way. Only once did they succeed in getting more than one blow in an inning and they did not put together an earned run until the seventh by which stage the winners were a mile out in front. The big pitcher helped his own cause by beating out three bunts.

Freddy Elliott started for Switchgear but it was not his night. He was hit hard and often and was not helped any by some off color defensive work by his teammates who kicked in with eight errors during the pastime. By the time Manager Chambers decided to make a change in the artillery department Soldiers had scored seven runs off Elliott in the first five innings and they picked up four more at the expense of Ronnie Akers who finished the pitching chore.

McIlveen and Revoir led the Soldier attack with three hits each, and every man in the lineup for the Training Centre got at least one blow. Elliott was the only Switchgear batter to collect two hits.

Soldiers started with a run in the first after two were out when McIlveen tripled to right and scored when Procyk beat out a slow roller.

Switchgear evened the count in the second when McCormick and Brockley opened with walks. Tompkins fanned and Nicholls flied to Procyk. McCormick scored when Junkin let the throw from the field get away from him.

In the third after McIlveen had beat out a tap to Ashmore and Procyk and Morgan bunted safely to fill the bases Herrick doubled to centre to send in two runs.

Switchgear got a gift run in their half when Carpenter reached third when Mortimer missed his long fly to centre and then ran home on a wild pitch.

An error by Mowry on Revoir's safe bunt and a timely single by Tony McIlveen sent another Soldier run in the fourth and in the fifth they added three more. Morgan got a life when Carpenter dropped his short fly after a run and Herrick's single sent in a marker. Junkin singled through short. Jenner was safe when Holmes missed his fly but Herrick was caught between third and home on the play. Revoir beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Anderson forced Junkin at the plate but Mortimer singled through short to score Jenner and Revoir.

With Akers pitching bases on balls to Procyk and Morgan, Junkin's single, Jenner's pop fly double back of first and Ashmore's bad throw home sent in three more Soldier runs in the sixth.

A couple of misplays gave the winners another marker in the seventh and Switchgear scored their third run in their half when Holmes walked, went to second on an infield out and scored on Ashmore's double to right centre.

A safe bunt by Holmes, a pass to Carpenter, a wild pitch and Mowry's infield out scored the final run for Switchgear in the ninth.

NEW YORK, June 22 — (AP) — Mel Ott has broken only three bats so far this season, and each time he picked out a new one and busted a homer with it . . . Cal Hubbard, the American League Ump, claims this has been the toughest season the arbiters ever have had. "There are more close plays to call because they don't have those good infielders to throw out runners by a mile," he explains . . . when a Pittsburgh scribe chided Leo Houck, Penn. State's veteran boxing coach, for claiming he never had been knocked out in some 200 professional fights, Leo's only reply was a photo of the bout in question showing Houck and Billy Murray on their feet with the referee holding Murray's hand aloft. "Does this look like I was knocked out?" Elo wrote. It doesn't but Nat Fleischer's record book still lists it as a KO victory for Murray.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

After dropping a number of diamond veterans whom they sought last winter, the Brooklyn Dodgers have turned to mere youths from 17 years of age up to bolster the squad. Shortstop Eddie Miksis, 17, and Pitcher Charles Osgood are just out of High School; Pitcher Clyde King, 19, is from the University of North Carolina, and Calvin Molish, 18, has already won his place as a starting hurler, while Ralph Branca, 18, is fresh from New York University where he gained some renown as a moundsman. President Branch Rickey declared last night chief reliance would be placed on the boy wonders if the war manpower situation remained unchanged in 1945.

John Marsch's Free for All set a track record of 1:04 3-5 for the five and one-half furlongs yesterday winning the $10,000 Hyde Park Stakes by five lengths at Arlington Park, paying $3.40 for $2. Don Ameche's Sir Bim was second.

Martin and James Smith of the London Edwoods carried off first honors in the annual Scottish doubles tournament last night of the Thistle Lawn Bowling Club, in London, which attracted 34 entries from many points. In second place were J. E. Stedlebauer and J. Vance of Tillsonburg.

Bill Boehringer, formerly with Kansas City in the American Association, made his start last night with the St. Catharines team in the Niagara Senior Baseball League against Hamilton, but was replaced in the fifth inning by Gene Coderre because of wildness. The Saints went on to win 7-3.

In the finals of the bantam series of the church league finals Knox defeated St. John's 18 to 17 in a very close game played at Queen Mary School grounds. St. John's started off well and had a 11-run lead but faded on end with Knox fighting hard to take the lead and win the game in the last of the ninth. Knox was well supported by the members of the church. There were no stars, both teams playing good ball at times but making some errors through over anxiety. The score by innings:

Aircraft Girls Smother Brintons 14-2

Steady pitching by Norma Strickland, helped Aircraft girls swamp Brintons 14 to 2 in a Ladies' Softball League game played at Ashburnham Bowl Wednesday evening.

The end of the first five innings found the score 1-1, but Aircraft corrected this in the 6th with a 6-run rally, making the count 7 to 1. The Wilson-coached swing-skirters followed this up by dashing off five more counters in the 7th frame, and although the carpet-weavers made a desperate attempt to even the count, only one more run was registered, by Jean Vass in the 7th. Aircraft topped their 12 runs with two more in the 8th inning. The only home-run of the match was turned in by Aircraft's Lavina Whetung, in the 8th.

Highlight of the game was the expert pitching by Norma Strickland. Fanning ten of the losers, the gal managed to keep Brintons confused all the way, and the carpet-weavers were held to 3 hits.

On the hill for the losers, Helen English fought the hard-hitting Aircraft team to the last ditch, but the swing-skirters garnered 19 blows.

Brintons were hampered by costly errors in the final stages of the game, but made a good showing in the first five innings, when they kept the score a tie.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 22 — (CP). — This one is told about T. Sunkel, Montreal Royals' purposeful mound star. With the invasion going on and everyone much interested in the events of the beachhead, his teammates got to talking about the war and this and that.

"What do you think of the international situation," queried Larry O'Brien, batting practice pitcher for Royals, as well as sportswriter for the Montreal Standard.

"Well," replied Sunkel reflectively, doubtless shifting a cud of tobacco in the approved fashion for these anecdotes, "there's nothing wrong with the International that a little better pitching won't cure."

'Ware squalls:

Mother Nature pulled a little sabotage on yachtsmen in a race up Sarnia way the other day. The boats were beating along right merrily with a spanking breeze when a sudden squall whipped up. Storm held the water back from the end of the lake the boats were sailing in, and the lake level dropped four feet in an hour. As a result only two of the yachts with shallow keels were able to finish the race, while the others fumed and snapped their halyards.

Bit discouraging:

We wouldn't blame some pitchers if they got a little downhearted. Frankie Germann hurled a one-hitter in a girls' fastball game against Moose Jaw Royals, but lost out 2-0. And then in an inter-county game between Kitchener and Preston, Ont., Maynord Knorr kept Preston from collecting a solitary safety, but lost 4-0 as his mates errored and kicked the 'gong around. It just ain't no use.

Cubs Lose Eleven In A Row To Cardinals

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Chicago Cubs are headed for a major league futility record, unless they do better in the next 11 games against St. Louis Cardinals than they did in the 11 times they've met. The results: Cards—won 11, lost 0.

The Cubs have not fared so poorly against one team since 1902, when they dropped 17 of 20 games to the Phillies.

Manager Charlie Grimm used six pitchers and six pinch-hitters against the Cards yesterday, but lost 6-4 and 7-2. George Munger won his ninth against one defeat, in the opener, although he needed late help from Mort Cooper. Harry Brecheen took his third straight from the Cubs in the finale. The double win increased the Cards' lead over Pittsburgh to 8½ games, their biggest margin of the season.

New York Giants drubbed Brooklyn 11-2 for their 18th triumph in the last 24 games, to take over third place in the National League. Bill Voiselle gained his ninth triumph, holding the Brooks to six hits. Mel Ott scored his 1,741st run to break his tie with Hans Wagner and set a new National League record.

After eight scoreless innings, Cincinnati scored in the ninth, but Pittsburgh Pirates counted two in their half to take the game, 2-1. Babe Dahlgren's single scored Tommy O'Brien with the winning run.

Philadelphia Athletics made it three in a row over Boston, 5-2, as Dick Siebert drove in three runs with a double and single.

New York and Washington divided a double-header, the champions taking the first 4-3, after trailing 1-3 until the seventh. The Nats took the second 6-4, with a five-run first inning at the expense of southpaw Joe Page. Milo Candini held his former teammates to six hits to win his third game for the Senators.

St. Louis Browns increased their American League lead to 2½ games over Boston's Red Sox by trouncing Chicago White Sox 11-2.

Rookie Paul O'Dea hit four for four as Cleveland defeated Detroit in a slugfest, 9-7. Rudy York of the Tigers and Mickey Rocco of the Indians blasted home runs.

Embree Likely Strike-out King

By The Associated Press

Baltimore's Red Embree is making up for lost time in the strikeout contest being waged between Hank Oana and Walter Wilson of Buffalo and himself.

Embree joined the Orioles May 28, more than a month after the start of the season and showed he would have to be reckoned with for the strike-out leadership, when he fanned 11 Newark athletes. He followed up with nine victims in his next start. Including his 13 of last night when he pitched Baltimore to an 8-3 victory over Rochester, Embree has 49 whiffs in 53 innings. He still trails Oana, who owns 61 strikeouts, and Wilson, who fanned 55, but if he continues his pace, Red may take the league leadership.

Buffalo and Syracuse divided their twin-bill, the Chiefs breaking a three-game losing streak to win the first, 2-1, behind the pitching of Veteran Hod Lisenbee. The Bisons came back to take the nightcap, 3-0, as Oana blanked the Chiefs with five hits, striking out five.

Newark and Toronto split their two games, the Bears winning the first via the shutout route, 6-0, and the Leafs taking the finale, 4-2. Mel Queen hurled two-hit ball in the opener, while Nick Rhabe, recent acquisition from the American Association, paced the attack with three hits. Woody Crowson scattered nine hits in the nightcap to hang up his fifth win. Jimmy Gruzdis made two of the Leafs' six hits and scored three runs.

Henry Decisions Greek Fighter

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—Henry Armstrong, one of the biggest little men in ring history, said again to-day he would continue fighting "as long as I can win—and make money out of the game."

"I like boxing, and apparently the fans like me," he said. "Im going to stay in the game until they quit paying to see me. When the gate receipts drop, then I'll know it's time to quit."

Henry decisioned Nick Latsios, an almost unknown Greek-American lad from Alexandria, Va., over a 10-round route last night. About 8,000 spectators paid to see the bout. In previous appearances here and elsewhere he's attracted far more of the ring faithful.

Armstrong, the only man who ever held three world championships at the same time, currently is campaigning to regain the welterweight crown he once held along with those of the featherweight and lightweight divisions.

"Marie," was the answer. . . Fred Allen won't return to radio in the fall but will make movies for a year. . . Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers, who have a couple of adopted children, intend to add four more to the family. . . When Dinah Shore finished "Belle of the Yukon" she threw a party for the workers on the set and Robert W. Service, the author of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," recited that poem. . . After Irvin S. Cobb died it was found that he had willed a large white sombrero and a pair of silver spurs to Leo Carrillo. . . Marion Hutton, sister of Betty, just signed a film contract and will appear first with Abbott and Costello.

Mae Clarke, star of some years ago, will appear in "Here Comes the Waves," which will star Bing Crosby, Betty Hutton and Sonny Tufts. . . Behind the scenes: Ginger Rogers and Shirley Temple are tiffing over camera angles in "Double Furlough". . . Lou Costello's illness gave him an idea. With Abbott he will build a home for rheumatic fever patients. . . Most startling film of the year is "The Hitler Gang". . . Andy Devine will play a priest in "Bowery to Broadway." I hope he doesn't preach in that voice. . . In the silent film days they played music to put the star in the mood to act. Jean Arthur still insists on it. . . You don't have to be young to make good in the movies. Leon Errol is near 70, Charles Coburn 65, Sir Aubrey Smith 80, Albert Basserman 75 and S. J. Sakall 69. . . Betty Grable was angered by the report that she and Harry James would separate. They're the happiest couple alive. . . Last Thorne Smith comedy to reach the screen was "Topper." Now Elmer Rice will make a screenplay from "The Stray Lamb". . . Newest young star is 14-year-old Jane Powell, who appears in "Song of the Open Road."

Owners Move Strings To Hamilton Track

TORONTO, June 22—With the closing of the Long Branch meeting at Dufferin Park this afternoon there will be a general exodus of stables to the Hamilton Jockey Club track for the opening Saturday.

The largest stable to ship to the Ambitious City track Thursday will be the Four Oaks Stable of Toronto, owned by Harry and Jack Addison, numbering 17. Included in the shipment will be Big Head, star of the outfit, which will be seen in action in the feature and allowance races. Trainer Lloyd Gentry is in charge.

Another large stable that shipped to Hamilton Wednesday was that of the Parkwood Stable, in charge of Arthur Brent, numbering 16. Huelwen and Talipat, best of the Canadian-breds in this stable, has been nominated for the $1,200 Niagara Handicap opening day.

The list of stable applications that have been approved by the H.J.C., shows over 80 owners will be flaunting their silks during the Hamilton session.

Owners are patiently waiting the release of weights today, for the $3,000 added, Hamilton Handicap, to be decided on the opening-day's program.

There is no doubt that Shepperton will go postward favorite for this important feature. If Shepperton should win the Hamilton Handicap the chestnut son of Sun Craig-Chatwater will be the second favorite to take this event since its first running back in 1940.

In 1940 Conny Smythe's Second Helping won the $3,000 added, purse and paid off at $4.70. In 1941, Silvos, owned by J. E. F. Seagram, was the winner and paid $7.20 for a $2 ticket. The last two years has seen outsiders winning, with the Chris Stable in 1942 paying $70.15, and Flying Giant, owned by Harry Morden, the surprise winner in 1943 paying $63.10.

Germans Shoot 13 Canadian War Prisoners

LONDON June 22—(CP Cable)——A charge that the Germans had been shooting Allied prisoners and that the bodies of 13 Canadian soldiers were found in the grounds of a chateau in the village of Audrieu, south of the Bayeux-Caen railway line, was published to-day in the Daily Mirror.

The assertion was made by George McCarthy, Daily Mirror war correspondent with the British armies in France, in a dispatch dated June 19.

McCarthy said it was clear that the Canadians "had been lined up to die" and died of head wounds. Photographs of "their loved ones, their wives, sweethearts or children" were clenched in their hands.

"A French woman who has lived in the chateau during the German occupation confirms the news that the Canadians were marched out and shot," said the dispatch published on the Mirror's front page.

"British troops who followed the Canadians into the area heard of the shooting from a Frenchman who testified that altogether 25 prisoners of war were shot by Germans," the dispatch added. "No trace has been found of the remaining 12.

"One German prisoner brought into the British lines from the Panzer Lehr division denied vigorously his unit was guilty of this outrage. He said it must have been the work of a SS Panzer division on his flank."

German Panzers Blown To Bits By Hand Bombs

By LEONARD MOSELY

Released by the British Information Service and Distributed by The Canadian Press.

WITH THE BRITISH 6TH AIRBORNE DIVISION, Normandy, June 22 — When British paratroopers holding a vital sector of the Orne Valley in Normandy the other morning saw a massive Tiger tank and two self-propelling guns rolling down the road toward them they thought they were done for.

Since dawn that day they had been cut off from the rest of the British forces in the area.

They had little hope of survival when the Tiger tank advanced. But Pte. Michael McGee from one of our paratroop regiments decided that somehow he would stop the tank. McGee is a fighting Glasgow Irishman from Kelvinside and he has a couple of fighting pals as recklessly courageous as himself. He called Cpl. Tom Killeen of Wigan, Eng., and Pte. John Sullivan of Navan, County Heath, and said:

He Stopped the Tank

"Look, boys, if these Jerry Panzers get through this road and among us we're all goners anyway, so we may as well die trying to stop them. I've an idea. Are you game to try with me?"

They agreed. McGee armed Killeen and Sullivan with anti-tank bombs, told them to hide inside a house 100 yards up the road and said:

"Now wait in there till the tank stops outside the door, and then throw your bombs and throw them straight."

"Don't talk daft, lad," said Cpl. Killeen. "How are you going to make the tank stop outside the door?"

McGee replied: "You leave that to me."

Then the Tiger tank rounded the corner and came into view. Already heavy shells from its 150-mm. gun were blasting among them. With hearts in their mouths, they saw McGee leap over a wall and dash to the middle of the road.

A Brave Man

"It looked a crazy thing to do," said one paratrooper afterward. "For all he had in his hand was his Bren Gun and you know how little good that is against a tank.

"But Michael put the gun to his hip and opened fire. He sprayed the front of the tank and you could see bullets bouncing off it as it advanced. And what Michael had promised happened. The Tiger tank, as if astonished at the impudence of this lone soldier with his little gun, stopped. It stopped, moreover, right outside the house where Killeen and Sullivan were hiding, and those boys did their stuff.

"We saw the bombs hit the tank and there was a terrific explosion, a sheet of flame and a great billowing of smoke. Then there was one less Tiger tank in Field Marshal Rommel's 21st Panzer Division."

Twice more that afternoon Michael McGee dashed into the road with his Bren Gun and peppered the attacking armor. The Nazi Panzers—self-propelling guns, this time—stopped in utter astonishment, just long enough to be destroyed by skilfully flung bombs.

Teacher Makes Plea For Special Pupils

LINDSAY, June 22 (ENS)—"Academic students are retarded in schools where there are no arrangements made for non-academic students," said Oliver Flint, a teacher at the Lindsay Collegiate Institute, addressing Kiwanis Club Tuesday. The speaker recently resigned his Lindsay position to accept a position on the staff of the Vocational School at Chatham.

Following an introduction by Past President J. W. Deyell, the speaker continued in part:

"All schools should be arranged for non-academic pupils to obtain a knowledge of subjects that will be useful to them in their future lives."

"A non-academic student may be scholarly, logical and practical, but in many respects the curriculum does not appeal to him or apply to him. There are a large number of these students in all areas who are up in mentality normally but not able to carry on or do his best in some subjects of competition. It's not fair to have non-academic students at the foot of the class when they perhaps have worked harder than those at the top of the class. They take some subjects that will never be of use to them in after life, particularly French and Latin. In this respect these students are wasting their time. There are other subjects also, besides history, which are taught now, but which are useless to these non-academic students.

"There should be an attempt made to give them something that will fit them for the post-war period.

"Often these non-academic students are berated at home by their sisters, mothers and fathers for not being at the top of the class. Sometimes these actions tend to make the non-academic student become a nervous wreck. Some times they are even called 'quitters.' This has a tendency to develop an inferiority complex."

The vote of thanks was moved by Past President Alleiy. During the luncheon Miss Croxall sang, the accompanist being Gilbert McPherson.

Towers Favors Easy Credit In Commons Talk

OTTAWA, June 22. — (CP).—Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada said before the Commons Banking committee today that if a banking system was unable to earn enough so that it could afford losses, then the system was no good.

"If a banking system has sufficient earnings to afford losses, then it can take risks in extending credit," he said.

The governor was answering questions about banks' credit policies as the committee continued examination of Bank Bill provisions.

R. T. Graham (L-Swift Current) said it appeared that when banks had outstanding loans like the $50,000,000 owing by the Beauharnois Corporation in the 30's there was a tendency to curtail loans for other borrowers such as prairie farmers.

Mr. Towers said he did not think it was necessary now to fear a situation where loans to one borrower would curtail those to another. He believed the point had been reached where legitimate needs, large or small, could be met. The machinery existing in the depression period was unsatisfactory and there had been some "pulling in" of credit to keep the position of individual banks as satisfactory as possible. This condition was unfortunate and should not be repeated.

Ontario County Shows Tax Increase

WHITBY, Ont., June 22 (CP)—A budget of $292,491 to be raised by direct taxation for all county purposes in 1944, was passed yesterday afternoon by Ontario County Council.

It represents an increase of $5,842 over last year. The only increase in the levies for the year is an additional quarter of a mill for the county home to provide for improvements adopted by the council to relieve overcrowding and furnish more adequate fire protection.

The budget includes a levy of one mill for patriotic purposes, to be distributed to patriotic organizations in the county operating under the War Charities Act of 1939. There will be a special levy of $63,373 for education. The road and bridge budget is $110,000.

Council adopted a recommendation made by a special committee that a building program to cover a period of years be inaugurated to provide ample accommodation for aged men and women for years to come.

Gets 2 Years

KITCHENER, Ont., June 22 (CP)—Pte. Thomas Emmerson of Camp Borden today was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary by Magistrate H. R. Polson on a charge of breaking and entering with intent. A year concurrent was added for theft of a truck. Floyd Lehman of Waterloo, who also pleaded guilty to the charges, was remanded in custody pending medical examination at request of his counsel.

The charges arose out of an attempted safe-cracking at an Elmira creamery, June 5.

LONDON, June 22—(CP)—The Norwegian government to-day announced recognition of Gen. de Gaulle's Committee of National Liberation as "the body qualified to conduct and lead the French war effort within the framework of Inter-Allied co-operation and also preserve and protect all French interests."

Meanwhile, the London Daily Star predicted that after Cherbourg has been captured Britain and the United States will recognize De Gaulle's organization as the French provisional government.

Bumper Crop

TORONTO, June 22—(CP)—Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy said last night indications are that Ontario this year will have the most bountiful crops in many years. Col. Kennedy has just returned from a three-week tour of eastern and southeastern parts of the province. During the second week of July he will visit the Haileybury area. He warned, "Expected heavy crops will pose a tremendous manpower problem in harvesting" and "we'll need 15,000 boys and girls instead of the 5,200 we now have helping on farms."

Suggest Change In Operating Uptown Centre

At a joint meeting of the Citizens Co-ordinating Committee and the Executive of the Canteen Workers of the Servicemen's Recreation Centre Wednesday night it was decided to ask the Salvation Army Auxiliary War Services to take over the management of the Canteen, previously operated by the Red Shield.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Charles Saunders and Mrs. A. Turner that the former resolution be rescinded. This resolution had requested the Canadian Legion to take over the operation of the Centre. Those present agreed to request the Department of National Defence to have the Salvation Army Auxiliary Services take over the operation of the Centre. It was also suggested that when they take it over, they make plans to secure an adequate building on the ground floor.

Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society were hosts to over 50 members of Omemee Horticultural Society on Wednesday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in visiting some of the beauty spots of the city, and the visitors from Omemee left Peterborough with some interesting views of beautification. The highlights of the afternoon were visits to two beautiful and interesting gardens. The party first made a visit to the home and gardens of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Miller, 161 Douro Street. This garden, with its pool, rose garden and rockeries, created great interest for the visitors. Then a tour was made of the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Biddle, Mark Street. Mr. Biddle's knowledge of flowers and the wide variety of perennials, shrubs, and rock plants gave the visitors new ideas.

The president of the Gladiolus Society, H. B. Ball, welcomed the visitors to Peterborough, and expressed the opinion that if more of these friendly visits were made from one society to another it would help a great deal in post-war planning of beautification. After the tour a picnic was held in Nicholls Oval, where several members of the Gladiolus Society were on hand to welcome the Omemee visitors. The tour was conducted by H. B. Ball, president of the Gladiolus Society.

Toronto Youth Given 9 Months

Joseph A. Robinson, 19, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, who was sentenced to three months definite and three months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on June 10 for breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Martin McManus, Douro township and stealing a sum of money, appeared in police court here today charged with breaking and entering three summer cottages in the Algoma district.

The cases were tried here at the request of the Sault Ste. Marie crown attorney and Robinson pleaded guilty on all three counts this morning.

He was sentenced by Magistrate Langley to not less than nine months and an indeterminate period of six months in the reformatory on each charge, the sentence to run concurrently but to commence at the expiration of the three months definite sentence already imposed on Robinson for the Douro housebreaking.

"Eleven cottages were broken into in the Algoma district," said Provincial Constable Price Morris in giving evidence this morning. "Robinson has admitted being in eight of the places but has only been charged with three."

Constable Morris said that after being warned Robinson had been questioned in the county jail here and had admitted breaking into the places mentioned in the informations. In one case a radio and a dress suit had been stolen and then thrown away. The stolen articles had been recovered.

Magistrate Langley said it was hard to believe that there was anything vicious about the accused but warned Robinson that if he did not mend his way he was headed straight for the penitentiary.

"It is just that I don't stop to think," said he accused in explanation of his conduct.

Canadians Get Wonderful Air Support Cpl. Bertram Howden Writes Of Invasion

The Canadian troops who invaded Normandy have been and are getting wonderful support from the R. A. F. and R. C. A. F., according to a letter from Cpl. Bertram Howden, son of Mr. and Mr. Bert Howden, 201 Romaine street, written June 10.

The young soldier, who was sitting in an orchard, wrote that there was seemingly endless stream of planes patrolling the skies so that the German fighters and bombers could not stage a break-out on unprotected units.

Although attached to the Provost Corps, Cpl. Howden has several duties among which are caring for the wounded and keeping an eye on Nazi prisoners. He said that when the Canadian first went in, it was terrible, but that the fighting wasn't the severe as now.

"There may have been some talk about us wanting things over here, but that is not true. We are well cared for and have plenty of guns and other equipment. We have also collected a lot of German material. One of the biggest difficulties we have encountered are the cunningly contrived booby traps left by the enemy.

"It has been one good old fight and when it comes to sleeping, we just drop wherever we are in the open. I have not had any mail since I landed in France, but expect we will be getting some soon. There is another Peterborough boy went into action with me, but I am not allowed to release his name."

An intimation was given that Canadians in some sections were not finding French civilians too friendly, and that they had to be watched carefully for subversive activities. He described some of the Nazi prisoners taken, as thinking they were super men.

Although it is more than three years since Cpl Howden enlisted, he has been overseas one year. Prior to joining the army he worked at the Raybestos.

Peterboro Men Mobilized Highland Unit

Although censorship has shrouded the activities of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in secrecy since the outbreak of the invasion, it can now be told that this unit, news of which affects many Peterborough families, has been in action in France since the opening of the new campaign.

When formation of the unit began away back in June of 1940 it was decided to recruit a Headquarters company here. Headquarters staff and many of the officers for the other companies. Two companies were recruited in Cornwall, one in Brockville and one in Kingston. The original officer commanding the Highlanders was Lt. Col. W. J. Franklin, M.C., V.D.

When it was announced that the Highlanders were being formed, recruits flocked to enlist. On June 28, 120 men were reported to have signed up in the Peterborough company, and recruiting had been so active in the Brockville company, that the Brockville Rifles (Reserve) were almost depleted of men and had to start a separate recruiting campaign. Many of the Rangers here went active with this unit.

In June of 1940, in addition to Lt. Col. Franklin, Lt. Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, commanding officer of the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) was named second-in-command of the Highlanders. Other officers appointed were: Major James Turnbull to command Headquarters company; Major Allan R. MacNab and Major Herb Mason to command No. 3 and 4 Companies recruited in Cornwall. Capt. J. G. Armstrong was adjutant, Capt. R. J. Hoard, quartermaster. Major C. Cockburn of Kingston, commanded the Kingston company. Major Graeme Faulkner, who was later killed in Africa, was one of the original officers. However a few weeks later Col. Hicks-Lyne was named to command and Major Turnbull the second-in-command.

The S.D. and G. Highlanders went to Kingston in August and remained there until the early part of the winter. The remainder of the winter was spent at Lansdowne in Ottawa. Before going overseas in July 1941, the unit was stationed at Debert.

This Highland unit, in which many Peterborough boys are serving waited a long time to come to grips with the enemy, and it has acquitted itself with glory according to despatches from the front. During the past two weeks, several casualties have been reported from its ranks.

Youth Elects Summary Trial

Gerald Pinch, 17, who elected trial by judge and jury when charged in police court Wednesday with breaking and entering the store of Mrs. Nellie Brady, Douro street, with intent to commit theft, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. this morning.

"I did not understand what I was doing yesterday," said the youth.

He elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to the charge. In giving evidence Detective-Sgt. W. E. Meagher said that a window at the rear of the Brady store had been torn out but that Pinch and a juvenile who was with him did not go inside the store.

"They were lying in the long grass, fifty feet south of the place waiting their chance to go in when they were arrested," said Detective Sgt. Meagher who added that a posse of police had surrounded the building when word of the break-in had been received.

"This boy has a fairly good job and would be all right if he worked at it," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. Pinch was remanded for sentence.

Memory Songs

LONDON, June 22.— (AP).— A United States Army band topped off 53 appearances in England with a serenade for invasion troops in a marshalling area on the eve of D-day and the numbers the men wanted were "Stardust," "Mary," "Tiger Rag" and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." "Hit parade numbers didn't mean a thing to those kids," the leader of the 86-piece ensemble, Capt. Thomas Darcy, Jr., said today. "They wanted songs that brought back memories of the happiest moments of the past."

Fairview Social Brings Aid To War Victims

Social events are first and foremost intended to give pleasure to those who participate, but when in addition to this they are also planned with a view to giving pleasure to others, and specially other people in difficulty and need, they take on an added importance which should react to give a double pleasure to all those taking part in an active way.

In the spring of 1941 such a social event was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown at Fairview, from out of which was born an assistance to the sufferers from enemy air raid attacks through the local and district fund operating for that express purpose.

From it a group known as the Fairview War Workers came into active being which since that time has gone on from strength to strength until this small sparsely settled community has raised and given the splendid sum of $365.40 to this one fund alone, a feat which will ever stand to their credit in the days that are to come.

Good Secretary Means Much

While no regular set of officers for the group was selected, to Mrs. W. Fowler who acted as their secretary much can be ascribed, for all enterprises of a welfare nature succeed only to the extent of the interest taken by those on whom the mantle of leadership rests, and Mrs. Fowler has been one of the spark plugs ever working in the good interests of the cause, among this one group.

Continuing the good work on behalf of the cause, a social evening was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fowler recently when games of euchre and crokinole formed a major part of the entertainment, with five door prizes being drawn for by Batty Coburn, Mary Milburn, Doreen Fairbairn, Mary Coburn and Thelma Bulmer.

These were won by Mrs. R. Harrison, Master Allan Bell, Mr. J. H. Lewis, Master Gordon Bulmer and R. Harrison from among the 83 people who were in attendance, and the proceeds of a silver collection amounting to $16.50 is credited in today's receipts per Mrs. W. Fowler, and raises the total they have now given to the splendid sum of $381.90.

From a community standpoint this is a splendid example of how people in one place can unite in a common cause for good, from out of which a fine local spirit would be engendered, and their work in this direction as far as this fund is concernedo is of quite an outstanding character.

Evidence of a personal interest which could stand repetition in a very widespread manner is evident in the personal gift of $1.00 from "A Friend" who had saved this amount in small change to assist the good work the fund endeavors to carry on, and since a much greater need is at the moment very much in evidence through the new type of bombings that are taking place in increasing numbers, there surely are large numbers of citizens who could duplicate this in a marked degree.

Court Frees Girl Charged As Vagrant

A vagrancy charge against Rita Charron, Toronto, was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, thus disposing of the last of the cases arising out of the arrest by the police of three Chinese waiters and three white girls at the Locks Bridge recently.

"All the elements needed for a conviction have not been established by the Crown," said Magistrate Langley in giving judgment this morning "and therefore there will be a dismissal." The two other girls similarly charged had been convicted but in the Charron case His Worship reserved judgment after hearing the evidence and this morning dismissed the charge.

Uncertain Trend Is Very Evident In Britain's Political Scene

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA June 22 — (CP) — Behind the imposing front of the National government British politics revolve in a whirlpool of uncertainty. It is no merely uncertainty as to which parties will contend for office and who will be the leading figures in them.

Britain has not had an election for seven years but it is freely predicted one will come soon regardless of whether the war ends. One member of parliament put it this way:

"If the Second Front succeeds and the war ends the government will be on top of the world and will probably win. If the Second Front fails the government is finished and there will have to be an election."

The government is composed of Conservatives, Laborites and Liberals. Conservatives constitute the largest party in the House of Commons, Laborites the next and Librals a small group.

There are different opinions as to whether the coalition should split up before an election. The more common view is that the Labor ministers will withdraw but there is a strong group in the Labor party, particularly in the trade union element, which believes the national government should continue into the peace period and should face the electors as it stands.

Want Coalition Retained

These people argue that the tasks of the post-war period, demobilization, peace-making, social and economic reform will call for a government of all parties, no less than the task of winning the war—that they cannot be carried out by a party government faced with opposition.

Another element in the Labor party represented by the independents who do not support the government believes Labor should sever its connection with the government at the earliest moment. They look to the Labor party opposing the Conservatives at the next election.

The longer such men as Labor Minister Ernest Bevin and Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, both key men in the trade union organization and the party as well, remain ministers the weaker will be their position when they attempt to criticize the government and bid for power on Labor's own account.

Recent Labor party internal troubles have revealed a sharp cleavage between the element supporting the government and Labor party ministers and those opposed. Mr. Bevin and Arthur Greenwood, parliamentary party leader have taken a firm stand against the most ferocious of their opponents, Aneurin Bevan. The latter's unwillingness to make an open break with the party is taken by some as an indication of a desire on the part of all elements to keep the party together.

On the Conservative side, the question is less complicated and revolves mainly around leadership. There are divergencies of viewpoint between the "young Tories" who are out for extensive reforms and some of the older men of the party who have the point of view of business.

Leadership Unquestioned

On all sides Prime Minister Churchill's position as leader of the nation in war is unquestioned. The Conservatives, however, are not sure he ought to remain at the helm even if his health permits after the crisis is over.

Anthony Eden, the foreign secretary, is regarded as a probable successor to Mr. Churchill as Conservative leader and as heir to the headship of the national government, should that combination continue. Mr. Eden's popularity in the country is rated very high.

Sir John Anderson, the chancellor of the exchequer, who has impressed his colleagues with solid administrative ability is favored by many insiders in the party.

Should the Labor ministers elect to remain in the national government and should a split develop in the Labor party as a result the Conservatives might possibly accept Mr. Bevin as prime minister.

In the Labor party itself there are clashes of personality and groups. Two ministers, Morrison and Bevin, because of their wartime jobs have taken the limelight away from the pre-war parliamentary leaders, Clement Atlee, deputy prime minister, and Mr. Greenwood. Opposing the government the leading figures are Aneurin Bevan and Emmanuel Shinwell. In the cabinet, but not a member of the official party, is Sir Stafford Cripps.

Some regard Cripps as a potential leader, one able to unite the official trade union faction represented by Bevin and Morrison with the more independent thinking and radical elements of the party.

German Attempts Fails To Budge Commando Unit

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN NORMANDY, June 12.—(Delayed).—(AP)—The story of the green-bereted daredevils who scorn battle helmets and fight German armor with small arms was told to-day by their leader, Lord Lovat, a 33-year-old brigadier.

(Lord Lovat was wounded in Normandy and is in a British hospital out of danger, it was disclosed Wednesday in London).

Lord Lovat, standing erect on a hilltop fanned by a cool easterly breeze in which sniper bullets frequently whizzed, related how his Commandos stormed the beaches on D-day and jog-marched nine miles inland weighed by rucksacks weighing up to 150 pounds.

The Commandos fought through machine-gun nests and pillboxes to a dramatic junction with airborne forces across the Caen canal.

"I'm proud of them, really proud," the tall Commando chieftain said. "They knew they had a terrific job to do and they did it."

Use Small Arms.

I had come ashore with the Commandos, landing at 8.45 a.m. or 60 minutes after zero hour on D-day. I had lived with them for several days in a camp before the cross-channel embarkation on the night of June 5. Many of them had been at Dieppe on that bloody venture in August of 1942 in which the majority of the attacking force was Canadian, and I knew how they felt about getting another crack at the Germans.

If ever men were itching to tear an enemy apart with their bare hands, it was these magnificently trained young fighters.

From the Caen canal, the Commandos stormed and captured a vital hill and since then, without relief or reinforcements, they have held it against all comers. For the first four days, they fought without a wink of sleep in 48 hours on field rations.

Only 2,000 strong at the outset, they beat off an attack by a German battalion and subsequently smacked back a brigade equipped with self-propelled guns still using only the weapons they carried in on their backs.

Finally the enemy decided they were too hot to handle.

Serious Fire

TORONTO, June 22—(CP)—Two men were seriously burned and 10 others less seriously injured today in an explosion and fire in the oil heating plant of the McColl-Frontenac Co., Cherry and Commissioner streets. Most seriously burned were William Hill and N. Halenda, both employed by the Company. Doctors are performing an emergency operation on Hill in an effort to save his life. The plant fire department put out the blaze in a few minutes.

Charge Laid Over

TORONTO, June 22—(CP)—Preliminary hearing of a charge against Margaret P. Austin and the Joy Oil Company with a breach of Defence of Canada Regulations in connection with a newspaper advertisement was set in police court yesterday for June 28. The charge concerned publication of an advertisement by the company last May 30 under the heading: "An appeal to the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King to stop the 'gas' black market."

Wins Appeal

TORONTO, June 22—(CP)—An appeal of Gerald Moore, 16, from a sentence of 18 months definite and five months indeterminate for breaking into cottages at Trout Lake, Ont., was altered to one year definite and one year indeterminate by Ontario Appeal Court yesterday. He had appealed in writing.

Faces Serious Charge

MONTREAL, June 22 — (CP) — Judge Omen Legran yesterday ordered Andre Bouchard, 29, for voluntary statement on two charges of attempted murder which arose out of a series of street battles recently here between members of the armed forces and youths. Bouchard was arrested after two merchant seamen were injured.

Fair Exchange

WINDSOR, June 22—(CP)—Two occupants of a rooming house here reported their rooms ransacked by a burglar. The thief, who made off with clothing and personal effects valued at more than $275, had left a pair of pants and an old suit coat behind, apparently, as an afterthought.

It Didn't Work

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY, June 22—(CP).—A burly-looking peasant with his cap pulled over his forehead and a sack over his shoulder slouched up to Pte. James Leary of London, who was checking the return of French civilians to a village captured by British troops. Leary felt suspicious about the man. "He spoke to me in French," Leary said, "but I jerked open his blouse. Underneath was a German uniform."

KING VISITS INVASION BEACHHEAD — King George VI is shown on the bridge of the H.M.S. Arethusa, chatting with Sir Allen Lascelles, Left, on the way to visit the invasion beachhead in France. His Majesty toured the British sector of the front and conferred decorations on Royal Navy and Army officers in the field.

Churchill Talk On General Franco Followed By Bitter Comment

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, June 22 — (CP). — Bitter words were used in criticism of Prime Minister's kind words to Franco during the foreign affairs debate and none were more bitter than those of the Economist, highly-regarded weekly with a reputation for weighing its words carefully.

The Prime Minister's Spanish references caused such an outcry that Brendan Bracken, his ace trouble shooter, took the unprecedented step of holding a special press conference to explain Mr. Churchill's position.

As it turned out, the press conference might better not have been held. The Economist's comment typified the original reaction and A. J. Cummings' acid remarks generally reflected the feeling over Bracken's stressing of the "consistency" of the Prime Minister's attitude toard Spain. To do this Bracken quoted a speech Mr. Churchill made in 1941.

The Economist said: ".....Can anyone maintain that this is the time to praise and double praise a neutral and hostile European government?....Was it really right to devote so many words to Spain and none at all to the sacrifice and devotion of the resisting peoples?

"If Mr. Churchill had addressed to France and the French Committee one tithe of the effusions he devoted to Spain every Frenchman would have faced the coming of British troops with warmer hopes and readier friendship. Of all the peoples in Europe at this decisive hour the Spaniards are probably the least important.

The country, however, was strongly in Mr. Churchill's favor as Prime Minister. The latest gallop sampling of public opinion showed 88 per cent of the people polled supporting him, not necessarily his Spanish policy but his Premiership. He had regained all the ground lost in the early months of 1944.

W.M.S. Observes Jubilee At Millbrook

The semi-annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and the fiftieth anniversary of the W.M.S. Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook, were jointly marked Tuesday, in Grace church, Millbrook. The meeting was an all-day session, beginning with business in the morning, adjourning for lunch, and continuing in the afternoon.

Mrs. R. Moynan, Toronto, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Jonathan Goforth and Mrs. Goforth, who were missionaries for many years in China, was guest speaker during the afternoon. Mrs. Moynan, who was born in China, gave a forceful and inspiring address an the theme of the memories women leave behind them, using as illustrations, different women of the Bible. She mentioned Bathsheba, David's wife, as an example of superficial beauty only; Jezebel and Delilah were memorials of evil; while others, such as Hannah and Ruth, left memories of good only. She urged women to take these latter women as examples, and to be examples themselves to following generations. Mrs. J. D. Smart, Peterborough, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Foote of Port Hope, gave an interesting report of the Young Women's Conference in Hamilton; Mrs. J. O. Ralston of Campbellford, reported for the C.G.I.T., and Mrs C. E. Blewett, of Peterborough, gave an outline of the Provincial W.M.S. meeting. Other reports given during the day included finance, by Mrs. A. A. McIntyre, Peterborough; and treasury, by Mrs. J. Storie, Campbellford. Mrs. F. M. Galbraith, of Bowmanville, read the minutes of the previous executive and annual meetings.

Greetings were brought from the Anglican and United churches in Millbrook, and congratulations were extended to the Millbrook Auxiliary, on their fiftieth anniversary. The history of the group was given by Mrs. J. Thompson, and the presentation of bouquets of flowers was made to four charter members and a life membership certificate was given to another member.

Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Millbrook, took the morning devotional period, and Rev. William Patterson, of Millbrook, conducted the service of song and prayer which opened the afternoon session. Mrs. James Dutton of Peterborough offered the dedicatory prayer and Mrs. Harold Tate of Millbrook, president, offered a prayer for those in the armed forces. Mrs. Moynan led in the closing prayer.

Mrs. Tate, in her closing message, said that "what we have and what we are, we owe to the past. But, what we give, we owe the future, and our gifts must not be only of our substance, but of service, and of ourselves." Mrs. H. W. Morgan, Peterborough, moved the vote of thanks to the women of Millbrook for their hospitality to the soloist, the organist, the guest speaker, and all who had helped in any way.

Dinner was served to the delegates at noon by members of the Millbrook Auxiliary, and refreshments were served at the conclusion of the afternoon session, from a table beautifully decorated with lighted candles and flowers, and centred with a birthday cake.

Cobourg Girl Is Promoted In Halifax Unit

KINGSTON, June 22. — Capt. Dorothy Adcock, of Cobourg, district recruiting officer (C.W.A.C.), M.D. 3, has been appointed second-in-command of No. 17 Administrative Unit, C.W.A.C., Halifax, Nova Scotia. Lieut. M. ## Mrs. F. D. Kerr Hostess For I.O.D.E. Tea

Mrs. F. D. Kerr, Rubidge street, opened her lovely home for a garden tea Wednesday afternoon, sponsored by the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. The spacious rooms were decorated with peonies, lavender, lemon lilies and other seasonal flowers, and were delightfully cool and refreshing. Receiving with Mrs. Kerr were Mrs. B. Jackson and Mrs. G. A. Borland. The wide grounds were also open to guests, and a great many wandered about the lawns, admiring the gardens.

The long tea table was centred with a huge bouquet of flowers and gracefully set with silver and crystal. Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. B. W. Harvey and Mrs. D. E. Bell. Mrs. H. C. Sherwood extended the invitation to the tea-room. Assisting were Mrs. F. Mowry, Mrs. J. Baird, Mrs. F. Gray, Mrs. W. D. Clare and Mrs. B. MacLean.

Several diversions and interests were provided for the guests. Among these was bridge with Mrs. F. L. Robinson convening the tables played during the afternoon. Draws for prizes were made by Mrs. Robinson, Miss M. Rogers, Mrs. F. D. Kerr and M. B. Chenhall, with winners being Miss M. English, Mrs. Percy Hooper, Mrs. A. Whitehouse and Miss Ruth Robinson. Draws for a cake and a lamp were also open, with Mrs. J. Arthur Robinson in charge of the former, and Mrs. S. Pearson of the latter. Mrs. Pearson was the winner of the cake, but the draw for the lamp will not be made until September.

Fortune tellers were also in attendance and sought to read the future either by cards or cups. Mrs. J. J. Craig and Mrs. Isabella Hunt were Sibyls for the afternoon. Mrs. C. W. Nicholson sold tickets for the fortunes. A delightful bit of entertainment was enjoyed when Mrs. R. H. Bennett and Mrs. F. Board, accompanied at the piano by M. B. Chenhall, sang several duets.

General conveners for the tea were Mrs. W. A. Burrell and Mrs. D. J. Hall, assisted by several committees. Mrs. W. A. Davern was treasurer.

Easton, J. A. Rosenburgh, A. Strong, C. M. King, J. Smith, D. A. MacIver, S. Brockley, A. Jones, F. Meiklejohn, T. Smith, E. Mahood, A. Rudd, W. Simpson, G. Simpson, A. Powers, A. A. MacIntyre, W. Howson, R. Ross, G. Coleman, Sr. and G. Coleman, Jr.; and Misses A. Little, M. Finnie, E. Allen, Easton and Beth Meiklejohn. Mrs. George Coleman, Jr., moved the vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Simpson for the use of their home and their hospitality.

V.O.N. Heads Congratulate Peterboro Order On Work

A splendid and gratifying report by Miss Mary Ferguson, who recently made a five-day supervisory visit to Peterborough, was read by the secretary, John A. Bradshaw, at the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Wednesday. The report, submitted by Miss Elizabeth Smellie, chief superintendent of the V.O.N., who visited Peterborough some time ago, reviewed the work accomplished in the first quarter of 1944, in comparison with that of the same period in 1943.

Miss Ferguson was well pleased with the Peterborough branch, and paid tribute to the untiring work of Miss Mary Ross and her staff, and to the interest of members of the Board in the welfare of the branch. Mention was made of the enlarging of the district to be served by the V.O.N., and the report stated that the staff of the Peterborough branch would be increased to four nurses. Arrangements will be completed for the employment of the fourth nurse in the near future.

The efforts of Alderman James Dutton, chairman, on behalf of the Order, also received special mention, and the publicity committee was given high praise for the sponsoring of a series of four 15-minute radio plays. The report stated: "These (plays) were exceptionally well received by the public, and were a splendid means of publicity according to the many favorable comments made. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson Davies, who were responsible for writing and directing the plays, are to be highly commended for their work and time so generously given, an all others who assisted in making the broadcasts a success."

Diphtheria Menace

A joint account of three conferences, with a review of discussions on two important and far-reaching dangers—a new type of diphtheria, and careless use of sulpha drugs—was given in the report of Miss Mary Ross, superintendent. Nurses from the Department of Public Health and the staff of the V.O.N., took part in these discussions.

The spread of a new and more virulent type of diphtheria which has lately been found in Canada, resulting in deaths in some cases in Halifax, was discussed as an item of vital importance. From observations, it was learned that this new type does not respond to the treatment of anti-toxin although toxoid does help to reduce the severity of the disease. Arising from this discussion, the report continued, was the increasing value of health education, and educational visits by the V.O.N. It was felt that the need for initial protection as well as step-up doses of toxoid for those who have not recently been protected, both children and adults, was ever-present, and that theV.O.N. nurse, in her daily visits, could do much to promote a nawareness to the danger.

In view of the recent news of deaths from the improper use of sulpha drugs a great deal of consideration was given to this problem, the report continued. Again the value of the visits made to homes by the Victorian Order nurse was stressed, since it was felt that she had an excellent opportunity to explain that the danger was not in the drugs themselves, but in the use of them. A great many doctors prescribe the use of theses drugs, and, when taken according to instructions, there is no danger.

It was pointed out that the danger lay in the fact that patients often took the drug unknown to the doctor. Explaining the reason for the fatalities from the use of sulpha drug, the report said that, through constant use, the body built up an immunity to the drug, and, when, in an emergency the drug was administered, the body could not absorb any more. Another case which might occur was a change of doctors, and the second doctor might not know that previous sulpha treatment had been administered.

Make 558 Visits

A total of 558 visits in May was reported, with medical and surgical cases forming the greater part of the bedside nursing work. Four hundred and fifty-nine cases have been admitted to date during 1944, and 2,555 visits have been made in the same period, showing a substantial increase over the figures for 1943. Four night calls, three of them home confinement cases, were answered, and six new families in the Armed Forces were served with 50 visits. Four cases were referred to the V.O.N. by the Department of Health, and 10 to the Department by the V.O.N.

Miss H. McGeary read the report, in the absence of Miss Mary Ross, who is at present on holidays. Miss McGeary also displayed a newly completed basket, somewhat like an incubator, for prematurely born infants. The basket is large, well-made, and equipped with electrical heating equipment, and special pockets which can be packed with hot water bottles. It is for use in rushing babies to hospital or for incubator cases in the home. All work on the incubator was voluntary, and the basket was especially made for the V.O.N.

The problem of extending V.O.N. service to surrounding districts was again discussed in some detail, and members expressed regret at the indifference of the groups which were approached by the special committee named at the May meeting. The decision of the Board at that time had been that the districts availing themselves of the service should contribute in some way, at least, to its maintenance. However, the sum offered was so small that it was greatly less than the nominal sum mentioned by the Board. Members felt that when the service extended by the V.O.N. was realized, the districts would be willing to contribute to the maintenance of the Order. Several plans were offered and discussed, but the matter was again left in the hands of the committee, to continue inquiries, since it was felt that the request for V.O.N. service could come from the people, through their council, and thus to the Board.

The $25 in war savings stamps which was won by the Peterborough branch at the recent countrywide competition, was turned into cash, and placed at the disposal of the nurses, to buy text books which they needed in their work.

In connection with the shortage of nurses, Miss McGeary said that the services of Miss Ruth Smith, a graduate nurse with several years' training, had been secured for the summer months, but that she was leaving at the end of August to take a university course, leaving the Order short-handed again.

This June meeting is the final meeting for the season, and the Board will not meet again until September, alderman James Dutton presided.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

BRIGHT AND BRIEF

Peterborough stores are definitely blossoming forth with new summer styles, versatile, sturdy, and smart. Jaunty jumper dresses with cute little frills placed at the shoulder or bareback pinafore dresses, cool and bright, are making a great hit with girls with an eye to vacation time, since they can be dressed up sufficiently for street wear, with blouses, toppers, scarves, jackets or the new button-on yolks. These wardrobe-, space- and money-saving suits are proving their worth in the long wear and adaptability, as well as catching the eye of many a male.

BACON FOR BREAKFAST

Here's a tip about fixing bacon which will be useful to the housewife who often cooks bacon for breakfast, or to the man of the house, who prides himself on getting breakfast on Sunday morning. The secret, of course, is keeping an eye on each strip, so that edges are not allowed to curl, or some spots to remain uncooked. For best results, warm the frying pan, and lay the bacon on in strips. Cook over a low, even heat, turning to cook evenly, and draining off surplus fat as it accumulates.

Since the ban on long dress for bridesmaids is still in effect, a real problem has been presented to a great many girls, who want to look fussy and feminine for a friend's wedding, but can't indulge in a new gown, because of restrictions. Dainty and useful suits, and suit dresses in light crepe, with self frills, little tucks and pockets are just the thing, since they are wearable afterwards for many occasions. The colors are just as varied and pretty as the styles, ranging from pink, through light blue, violet, and lime green. With a small flowered or ribbon hat, and a dainty bouquet, the outfit will be just as smart as a long dress.

FOOT PROTECTION

Girls who go stockingless during the summer months for coolness and economy, should remember that foot care is also important. It is always wise to wear the handy foot protectors when going without stockings, since the sole of the foot should be protected.

Speaking of feet and their protection, it is natural to think of shoes and sandals, and the smart styles being shown nowadays don't need any encouragement to be right in the limelight. Bright, colorful sandals, in varying styles, are worn everywhere, and the sandal, made of woven leather or heavy cloth is becoming increasingly popular. These are only available in a neutral shade, but, since it goes well with any color, and does not soil as easily, the demand has not been decreased.

Summer time is not the signal for any lessening in the care of the skin, since, on the contrary, some skins need even more care during hot weather than in the cold. A good rule, which applies to the average skin, is to wash the face thoroughly with a soap that agrees with the skin, and warm water, at bedtime. After patting dry, apply as much nourishing cream as the skin will absorb, massaging it in thoroughly with an upward movement and wiping off the excess cream.

In the morning, splash cold water vigorously on the face (incidentally a good waker-upper), pat dry, and apply powder base and make-up. For a quick daytime clean-up, remove dust and powder with cleansing cream, then apply the powder base and make-up before. Fresh make-up should never be applied over old, since it is hard on the skin, and a really "professional look" cannot be obtained.

GIFT SUGGESTION

Need an idea for a prize for a bridge party, or a "different" gift for a kitchen shower for a girl friend? Here's something which not only helps a truly Canadian handicraft, but also makes an excellent gift. Buy an Indian shopping basket, and fill it with groceries, or small kitchen utensils. The bright, hand-woven basket will certanly make a hit with the recipient, and can be used long afterwards.

COOKINGS TIPS

Chopped meat spoils very quickly and should be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator. It is even better to chop the meat just before it is used.

Never cool boiled ham or any other meat in the broth in which it has been cooked. Drain the broth away as soon as the meat is done and cool and store separately.

CITY SLICKER ROOFTOP—Several scores of the smart girls who were the graduation class of Tobe Coburn fashion school this Spring, chose this frock as the best shown in the school fashion show. It deserves a second look from the rest of us, therefore, as who should have a better notion of what smart young things really like than girls whose life work such opinions are to be? The choice here is sound beyond the prettiness of the frock, for the model is not perishable, will not go out of style soon, if ever, and is equally fashionable in a city or country setting.—By Prunella Wood.

Special Dishes Planned For the Summer Season

By MARY MOORE

Some "specials" keep pushing themselves to the front of my desk and have won the weekly debate entitled "What Shall I write about?"

Sometimes I think I know how to make a perfect Potato Salad; and then my ego is punctured by one that hasn't enough salt or mayonnaise or grated onion or crispness. Those four points are all of major importance in a potato salad; try making one without enough of one of them. It will be a soggy flop.

Emem's Perfect Potato Salad To Serve Six

Three cups ½" potato cubes from slightly undercooked potatoes which have been boiled in their jackets in very salty water (1 tablespoon salt to 1 pint water to boil 4 medium potatoes in jackets is not too much); 1 teaspoon onion juice or grated onion or 2 tablespoons chopped chives, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¾ cup genuine mayonnaise (not boiled dressing), 1 cup crisp ingredients: celery, or radishes, or cucumber or hearts of lettuce or dill pickle—use all of one of these or a mixture of any of them (I prefer a mixture). Mix these together and taste for salt—you may need as much as a teaspoon.

Serve on plenty of well-cupped lettuce leaves and garnish with radish roses, wedges of tomato, and slices of hard-cooked egg and a sprinkling of paprika.

There is a hotel in Pennsylvania that features potato salad with hot sausages or Frankfurters. Try baked sausage or weiners with this one of mine and you'll have something to remember me by.

Strawberry Pie a la Emem

I know I'm a weak woman but you'll have to put up with me. I print this recipe every year with little variations sometimes, but the end result is the same—pie at the peak of perfection; luscious strawberries in a sweet clear syrup, topped with cream or ice cream or Devonshire cream (how I go on), and bottomed by your flakiest pie crust.

One quart fresh strawberries, 1 cup sugar, 1¼ cups hot water (this would be strawberry juice if berries were normally priced), 4 tablespoons cornstarch, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, few drops red food coloring are nice, 1 baked pie shell, top cream from Jersey milk for whipping.

Wash berries, hull them and drain and cut very large ones in halves. Sprinkle ¼ cup of the sugar over the berries, but do not mix or they will crush. Place remaining ¾ cup sugar in saucepan with the cornstarch, mix and add hot or boiling water stirring. Cook over low heat until thick, then cook over double boiler 20 minutes. Add salt, lemon juice and red coloring if desired to make bright red shade. Put berries in baked pie shell, pour hot mixture over, being sure some of it covers all the berries, then cool. Garnish with rosettes of whipped cream in border around edge.

Chef's Pullman Souffle

This is not the sensation that the above two dishes are, but it's a pip of a concoction for those who want to save leftover porridge. Scald 2½ cups milk with ½ cup leftover cereal and 1 teaspoon salt, beating to break up all lumps, and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 cup grated old cheese, 3 tablespoons butter or bacon fat, and 3 egg yolks. Beat well, fold in 3 stiffly beaten egg whites, bake in buttered casserole or ramekins for 25 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Berries and cherries here they come. Fresh fruits which are available from now until late fall will make our meals more interesting more healthful, more inviting than at any other season of the year. Today we will have some recipes in which we can use the fresh fruits as they come in season.

Cream Pie With Strawberries

Make a rich pie paste and bake. For the cream filling use following recipe: 3 cups of milk grated rind of ¼ lemon, ¾ cup granulated sugar, ⅓ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon butter. Put milk and lemon rind in the top of a double boiler, place over boiling water and heat until milk reaches scalding point. Strain, mix sugar, flour and salt, then gradually stir in scalded milk, return to top of double boiler and cook, stirring constantly until smoothly thickened, continue to cook covered, with occasional stirring until no raw flavor remains. Beat eggs slightly, slowly stir in hot mixture, return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly for one minute, add vanilla and butter. Turn into baked and cool pie shell and chill. For serving cut pie in six or eight sections and arrange on a large round dish, separating sections, mound sweetened strawberries in the centre, and between sections. Other fruits such as raspberries cherries, or peaches may be used in place of strawberries.

Berry Sherbert

1 cup granulated sugar, 2 cups boiling water, 1 cup crushed, fully ripened strawberries, — cup lemon juice, 1 egg white. Cook sugar and water together 10 minutes. Cool. Add thoroughly crushed berries and lemon juice. Turn into freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator which has been turned to "very cold," and freeze until a mushy consistency. Beat egg white until stiff but not dry, scrape berry ice from freezing tray, and using a folding motion, combine the two. Return to the freezing tray, and continue to freeze until firm, stirring after the first half hour.

Prune Biscuits

1 cup sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup whole wheat flour, grated rind of 1 lemon, 4 tablespoons shortening, 2/3 cup milk, 8 to 12 chopped stewed prunes, ¼ cup brown sugar. Sift together, flour, baking powder and salt, add whole wheat flour and lemon rind. Cut in shortening until mixed, add milk to make soft dough. Roll out about ⅛ inch thick spread with chopped prunes, sprinkle with brown sugar. Roll as for jelly roll, cut in 1 inch pieces, stand on end in well greased pans. Bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes.

GIRLS MUST HAVE PURPOSE
Day of Incompetent Woman Past; Real Aim In Life Alone Will Bring Success

GIRLS, have you a date with life? Most of you have not. Not one out of a hundred of you has any set purpose in life. Beyond a vague, romantic dream that some day you will have a swell wedding and that you will make a lovely bride in white satin and orange blossoms, and live in a state of ecstatic bliss ever after, you have taken no thought of the future.

If you were going to have a date with Tom, or and Harry, you would spend a lot of time and energy in getting ready for it. You would put a fresh wave in your hair and manicure your nails. You would press out your dress so it would look spick and span. You would think up some subject in which the boy was interested to talk about and you would scheme how you could inveigle him into taking you to some swanky place to dance, or to a popular movie.

But when it comes to making a date with life, you don't even give it a moment's consideration. You leave everything to chance. You don't bother to plan out what you are going to do in the world. You don't even know what you want to do. If you teen-agers had a theme song, it would be: "Where do we go from here?" And the answer would be: "We haven't the slightest idea."

Girls Drift Haphazardly Into Jobs

It is because girls so seldom have an objective in life to which they are straining to attain that so many of them are failures. Most of them don't even choose their occupation when they have to go to work. They drift haphazardly into the first job that comes handy, without taking the trouble to find out if they have any talent for it, or if it is something that they will be interested in doing. Still less do they think it necessary to prepare themselves for it, because they do not expect to do it long. Only until they marry.

Undoubtedly every girl in the world hopes to get married, and none of them is so dumb that she does not know that her own happiness and that of her husband and the children she brings into the world depends upon her making a success of her marriage, but she has formulated no plans for doing this. She is leaving it all to Lady Luck. She marries without knowing how to cook, or to run a budget, or how to get along with her husband or to bring up children, and her marriage ends in failure.

What I am trying to tell you, girls, is that the day of the incompetent woman, who got away with murder just because she was a woman, is over. And this goes for everything from a career to marriage. In the world that you will have to live in you can't just be drifters. You have got to be women with a purpose, who know where you are going, and which road to take, and all the short cuts to success. Many of you will not be able to marry. Many of you who do marry will have husbands who will have to be helped to support the family. Get ready for it. Plan for it.

Have your blue print for your campaign ready.

Make a date with life. And keep it.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, June 23

WHILE THERE is sign of great excitement and activity, possibly in a determined effort to take advantage of a suddenly presented opportunity, yet there may be need for precaution in forcing issues on long range objectives. There is need for prudence, precaution and a keen analysis of current events rather than an erratic or impulsive grasp of situations governed by emotions rather than reason and common sense. There may be undercurrents of idealism and confusion rather than reality to be reckoned with, so keep activities to safe and sane platform and policies.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a lively and exciting year, in which a sudden or unusual opportunity may arise, and while this may be grasped or developed with speed and keen acumen, yet there may be dangers of overshooting the mark or being carried away by idealism or erratic impulses rather than safe and sane policies and tactics. There may be subtle dangers or intrigues to be manipulated to advantage by wise consideration of hidden factors. Shun strife or wrangling, especially with feminine relations, although there may be promise of much personal or romantic happiness.

A child born on this day should have much intuition and ingenuity, with talents to attain unusual success in alluring fields. Perhaps it may be in the arts, science, drama, music or poetry. It should be industrious and ambitious in its chosen career.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I hope you will pardon a quick note—I want a chicken salad jellied for a week from next Sunday night and would be glad if you can get it in next week's cookery column—just chicken and maybe peas in a clear chicken broth jelly— and maybe a suggestion for garnishes from you. Thanks for the past help.

LAURA B.

ANSWER: I think this will be in time.

Jellied Chicken Salad (Enough for 6)

Three cups diced cooked chicken 1½ cups chicken broth, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon onion salt or 1 teaspoon onion juice, ½ to 1 cup peas, fresh cooked or canned drained mayonnaise. Heat well-seasoned chicken broth; add the gelatin which has been soaked in the cold water, the chicken, lemon juice, onion salt, and peas. Pour into moulds which have been oiled and place in refrigerator to chill and set. Serve on cupped lettuce leaves, or shredded lettuce and pass mayonnaise. Pickled peaches or pears or a small bunch of white grapes make a nice garnish. If the salad is to be a main supper course it is nice to add half a hard-cooked egg and a piece of apple jelly in an attractive shape.

QUESTION: I have promised myself and family we would have some pickled beets this year, and they are beginning to come in nice now and I want your beet recipe for making them—not too sour though.

Min. McF.

ANSWER:

Pickled Beets

Select Beets of Uniform size, cut off tops, but allow at least 1 inch of the stems to remain so that beets will not lose color or sweetness. Wash and cook until tender in enough water to cover. Young beets need about ½ hour—older and larger beets longer. When tender plunge into cold water, remove the skins and when cool, slice or cut in dice or leave whole. Pack into sterile jars, to each pint add ½ teaspoon salt, and fill with boiling hot mixture of vinegar, water and sugar, in proportions of 4 cups vinegar, 4 cups water and 3 cups sugar. Stick cinnamon and whole cloves may be added to this pickling syrup to add spiciness to the flavor if desired.

QUESTION: I like cooking so much I can't keep quiet so am sending you my peanut butter salad dressing which I concocted because it is so hard to buy salad oil.

Peanut Butter Dressing (Contributed By Barbara Wood)

One teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, dash of cayenne, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 egg yolks or 1 whole egg, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons peanut butter, ¼ cup lemon juice. Combine dry ingredients. Add egg yolks, mix well and add milk. Cook over boiling water or slow heat until thickened. Stir in peanut butter—add lemon juice slowly. Chill. Keep covered in refrigerator. Delicious with all lettuce, cabbage and green salads—I think it's nice with fresh pear salad too.

B. W.

ANSWER: I think this will find a need many of us felt—all we have to do now is persuade our grocers to save us the peanut butter—when they get two or three jars.

Outboards Whip Woollens 17-8

Outboard Marines polished off Woollens 17-8, in a fast-played Industrial League game at Bonner Field Wednesday evening.

Fast double plays popped up from both teams, and the match was highlighted by some sensational fielding turned in by Marines' Simpson and Woollens' D. Hillier. Coughlin, gunner for Woollens, gave some tricky tosses, and except for a couple of wild spells, played a nice game. Outboard Marines' hitting stars were Simpson, McQue and Stuart, while Woollens' Armstrong made a long double on a lusty smack.

Marines took the lead in the first inning 5-2. Woollens made a single run in the 3rd, followed by another in the 4th, and 3 in the 5th. Marines counted one in the 5th, and topped their score with 6 more in the 6th frame.

Marines cinched the match with a 5-run rally in the ninth.

The teams:

Woollens—McCarroll 1b, D. Hillier ss, P. Hillier lf, Caravaggie c, Doxsee 1b, Armstrong 2b, McMillan cf Cheel 2b, Coughlin p.

NEW MOVES LOOMING IN PACIFIC — New moves are looming in the Pacific with latest reports indicating that there is a big sea battle now raging between giant battle fleets of the U.S. and Japan, in the area between the Philippines and Marianas. Palau Island is thought by some to be the Japs' main central Pacific naval base. Major moves, said to be looming in the Far East theatre, are shown on the map: (1) Drive from the central Pacific to key bases on the China coast. (2) Air attacks on the Philippines from New Guinea. (3) Following the successful unified attack on Surabaya, Java, drives on Singapore, via the Dutch Indies, are expected. (4) Air and sea attacks from India via Malaya and (5) thrusts from Burma to unite with Chinese; open roads for heavy supplies and drive on the east.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Just a reminder about Friday night's tournament. It's for men's rinks. Draw from the board at 7:30 p.m. Be on time and bring 25 cents.

Wednesday night was just about the finest night for bowling so far this season. It was ideal. Some of the boys said that they could have kept on bowling all night. The weather was good, the bowling was good and nobody suffered a very heavy defeat. And that is the way it should be.

Mr. R. F. Downey has asked us to remind the boys about the Dominion Day men's tournament. You can read the particulars up on the notice board.

The ladies are making great preparations for their big day next Wednesday. It's their annual rink tournament for the J. J. Duffus Trophy.

Harold Freeman and Bill Saunders from our club won first honors at Lindsay's open doubles tournament yesterday afternoon. They each received a blanket.

They were the only local pair of twelve to get in the money. Altogether 24 pairs from all around the district took in the tournament. We have no report from the Campbellford tournament.

U.S. Distilleries Resume Output

TORONTO, June 22—(CP)—Attorney General Blackwell said today that action of the United States War Production Board in permitting distillers to resume manufacture of beverage alcohol in August "indicates a common sense and realistic approach to the question of production and distribution of liquor in wartime."

The Ontario Government has protested to the Federal Government against methods of distribution of whisky in Canada.

Mr. Blackwell said it was to be hoped that the Canadian Government will make known the facts and act accordingly on the liquor question "instead of imposing artificial restrictions in an air of mental fog and lack of realism."

"The people of Canada will support restrictions in the matter of liquor as in other matters that are necessary for the war effort. But they have understandable objections to being led up and down the alley."

C.C.F. Holds 44 Seats Across Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 22 — (CP) — The C.C.F., led by Premier-elect T. C. Douglas, was certain today of a majority in the next Saskatchewan Legislature of at least 33 in the 55-member House, with prospects of it being greater when final returns are in.

Late returns from Meadow Lake constituency in last Thursday's civilian vote increased the C.C.F. membership to 44. Counting of the service personnel vote in the province was also completed but it failed to affect the standings. The Liberals won five seats and the Progressive Conservatives did not elect a member.

Only 51 seats were at stake in last week's election and the two seats still in doubt — Gravelbourg and Turtleford—showed C.C.F. nominees well in front.

Police Intervene

VALLEYFIELD, Que., June 22 — (CP)—Valleyfield police last night prevented a fight between 125 members of the International Union of Textile Workers and a crowd—estimated at more than 500—when the crowd started hurling bricks and stones through the windows of the union local's headquarters.

Police said they could not identify the persons who attacked the union headquarters and added that no one was arrested.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

28—Setting Up a Suit

IN THE PLAY of every bridge hand, either the declarer or his opponents—often both—will try to set up a suit. That is, will endeavor to get the other side out of cards in the suit, so that one or more small cards will become trick takers. The simplest way to do it, when it works out that way, is to find the opponents' cards in the suit so evenly divided between them that the establisher does not have to worry about losing any trick in it.

Things do not always work out that nicely, however. It is frequently necessary to resort to one or more of several devices which aid in suit establishment. Here are four examples of some of the most important:

| | Declarer | Dummy |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | ♠ 8 4 | ♠ A K Q 3 2 |
| | ♥ K Q 6 | ♥ 7 2 |
| | ♦ K 10 5 4 | ♦ A 7 3 |
| | ♣ A 9 6 3 | ♣ 8 5 2 |
| 2. | ♠ 8 4 | ♠ A K Q 3 2 |
| | ♥ K Q 6 | ♥ 7 2 |
| | ♦ A K 10 5 | ♦ 7 4 3 |
| | ♣ A 9 6 3 | ♣ 8 5 2 |
| 3. | ♠ 8 4 | ♠ A K Q 3 2 |
| | ♥ Q J 6 | ♥ 7 2 |
| | ♦ A K J 10 2 | ♦ Q 4 3 |
| | ♣ A 9 6 | ♣ 8 5 2 |
| 4. | ♠ 4 | ♠ A Q J 10 2 |
| | ♥ Q J 6 3 | ♥ 7 2 |
| | ♦ A K J 10 2 | ♦ Q 4 3 |
| | ♣ A 9 6 | ♣ 8 5 2 |

In No. 1, the declarer at 3-No Trumps, after winning the second heart trick, counts up. Two tricks in that suit, plus two in diamonds and one in clubs—total five—leaves four which he must get in spades. So he takes three spades and, if one defender discards on the third trick showing that the other had four, he then leads a fourth spade to that opponent. This sets up the last spade for the trick which gives him his game.

In No. 2, also at 3-No Trumps, the declarer uses a play called the "duck," to assure his ninth trick. This time the dummy does not possess the diamond A as a side entry. So the declarer, after winning the second heart trick, leads a spade and plays low from dummy, letting the defenders have the first spade trick. When he is back in the lead, he has a small spade left to put him in the dummy and runs the three high spades. This protects him against one opponent having four spades and gives him the last trick in the suit with a small card. On rare occasions, the "duck" is used twice in a suit, giving up the first two tricks.

No. 3 presents a 5-Diamonds declarer's problem which is solved by what is called "ruffing up a suit." He loses two hearts, wins the club return with the A, scores the diamond A and K, takes in the spade A and K, ruffs the spade 2 with the diamond J to protect himself against four spades held by one defender, leads to the diamond Q, then scores the spade Q and the established 3 for discards of the club 6 and 9.

No. 4 shows another problem of a 5-Diamonds declarer, solved by a "ruffing finesse." After losing two hearts and taking the club A on the return, he scores two top trumps, leads to the spade A and then puts forth dummy's spade Q. If the first opponent uses the K, declarer ruffs, goes to dummy with the diamond Q and discards his clubs on spades. If the first opponent plays low, declarer discards a club, hoping the first opponent had the K, and in case he did, he repeats the play. Of course, if the opening leader had the spade K, the play fails.

There are many variations of all these plays, but understanding of their principles can help you to work out your own problems in many cases.

French People Friendly; Want Freedom

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 21.—(AP).—The battle for the liberation of France now is a fortnight old and the best judgment based on reports from Normandy — from correspondents, army information services and the interior of France through underground channels—is this:

The great majority of the French people are friendly and helpful toward the Allies and want them to stay until the final victory over the Germans; the French are striking blows for their own freedom and will do so increasingly as the liberation progresses.

It is unwarranted, however, to form snap judgment of France's 40,000,000-odd persons on the basis of isolated incidents in Normandy; and even to judge all of Normandy's reaction without sampling its biggest city, Cherbourg, is premature.

A reporter in Bayeux wrote that "I've not yet heard one Frenchman here who talks of getting out of the war—as the Italians did. They want to get into it actively and they're volunteering."

He found the population growing friendlier as the success of the invasion became assured and the Normans realized this is not just "another Dieppe."

Talking with escaped Parisians and people from the south of France he is convinced the Allied welcome will be even greater inland.

INCREASED PRESSURE—It's two-way traffic across the English Channel now as men and supplies continue to pour onto the coast of Normandy to keep up constantly increasing pressure on the German forces, and, as the battle over for them, wounded Allied and German prisoners are borne back to England. In this picture, taken in England on June 10, 1944, wounded Canadian soldiers and German prisoners are carried down the ramp from U.S.S. L.S.T. 60. (RCNVR Photo)

Maj.-Gen. Keller Lauds 3rd Division After Battle

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 22—(CP)—Seven words summed up to-day reasons advanced by Major.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, C.B.E., commander of the Caladian 3rd Division, for the success of the division in breaking through with other Allied invasion forces the Germans' tough Atlantic wall defences and advancing inland to make good the Normandy bridgehead: "The will to win, guts and initiative."

Sitting in his caravan at Division Headquarters yesterday, enjoying the current comparative lull in the fighting on the Canadian sector of the invasion front, Keller reviewed for this correspondent the Canadian part in the great Allied amphibious operation. He had warm praise for all ranks of the division that was in the thick of stiff fighting before the beachhead was made secure.

Intense pride in his troops was apparent as this tough, 43-year-old professional soldier from Kelowna, B.C., spoke of "my" division, "my" artillery or "my" assault engineers. He singled out for special mention but did not identify a young officer and a sergeant who led a daring night patrol into enemy lines and brought back what the General termed invaluable information.

Of the last two weeks' campaigning by the Canadians, Keller said: "The will to win and the guts and initiative displayed by all ranks of my division in this assault have exceeded my wildest dreams." Of the strategic phase of the operation, he said: "We achieved a great deal of surprise and in many cases on our front the Boche definitely was caught off balance."

Trained Three Years.

The 3rd has been called Canada's best-trained division. Spent three years in England prior to the invasion and, the general disclosed, since the spring of 1943 was engaged exclusively on preparations for the assault on France. As he described the stiff training, the extensive amphibious manoeuvres, it became apparent why the division became known as the best-trained in the Dominion.

But the best training in the world couldn't prevent what Keller termed "painful casualties to assault craft and personnel" as the division fought its way through underwater obstacles, mine fields and heavy enemy fire from all arms. The 3rd's commander added: "as casualties occurred, their places were taken and the assault went gallantly through as I knew it would."

Describing the extensive preliminary operations that led to the great attack June 6, Keller told how sections of beach similar to that on the French coast were reproduced on the English coast and then were assaulted by the Canadians. It was there that the lessons learned at heavy cost at Dieppe in 1942 were applied and Keller said "the experience gained from that reconnaissance in force was of the highest value in tackling our current problem."

Complex Defences.

The commander admitted that German's defences inland from the beaches were a "revelation" to him and said they must have been a "surprise" to the assaulting infantry. He described "complex, intricate and very well concealed and strong defences, connected by underground tunnels and equipped with great reserves of food and ammunition."

But on D-day, despite weather that was "far from ideal" with an extremely heavy sea running, the Canadians, along with their British and American allies, fought their way up the beaches and made secure a beachhead to a depth of 1,000 yards. They since have consolidated their gain, have advanced to the perimeter of Caen's defences and have turned back several strong German counter-attacks.

Keller termed "particularly heavy" the German blows delivered against the Western Infantry Brigade in the Bretteville area on the Caen-Bayeux highway and it became necessary to launch tanks and "a very distinguished Central Ontario Infantry battalion" to break up enemy preparations for another enemy assault on the Canadian positions.

New Buzz Bombs Worry Allied Soldiers

BY CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY, June 22—(CP Cable)—The first thing the bridgehead soldier says when he sees a new face from across the Channel is "what about these buzz bombs?"

When I landed for a conference with Ross Munro and William Stewart, Canadian Press War Correspondents with the Canadian troops, on problems of coverage of the British-Canadian front that was top-priority of interest from work parties on the beach to officers of a forward brigade just back of the line.

It is about the only instrument of warfare they have not had something to do with and they naturally are curious as soldiers. Many also have wives and close friends in the area where the pilotless planes or flying bombs are thumping down and they show some anxiety as does the friend or relative back home for the man at the front.

Some, apparently through high-voltage rumor, perhaps are regarding this particular Hitler weapon with more apprehension for the home folks than warranted on the facts so far. About all a newcomer can tell them is that you only know a certain amount of damage and casualties have been caused; together with some worry about the loss, the same as is caued in ordinary air raids.

Looks Like Lindsay

The most amazing thing about the Normany coast now is the fact that it is a crowded roadstead as far as the eye can see along the invasion strip. For anyone who has been brought up around saltwater ports it is even more impressive than for any inlander who just sees lots of ships without perhaps realizing fully the amount of manpower, oil, coal, labor, skill and seamanship required to put them there and the hundreds of thousands of tons of cargo they are bringing to back up the front.

As you go inland, there are lush fields of grain and a sprinkling of bright poppes, poignant reminder of another war. The country is flat, rather than sloping valleys. It reminds you somewhat of some stretches along the Upper St. Lawrence around Cornwall, Ont. with gullies and belts of woodlands,

Bayeaux, well back of the line now, is an attractive town remindful—making allowancese for the high-shouldered Norman architecture and the narrow, cobbled streets—of places like Lindsay Ont., or Amherst, N. S., and plenty of faces one saw in Lindsay or Amherst years ago now are familiar in Bayeux.

Minister Bevin Favors A New Epoch

LONDON, June 22.—(CP-Reuter).—Labor Minister Bevin promised work for all and an end of unemployment when he opened the debate in the House of Commons yesterday on the government's recently announced full employment policy.

"We are turning our backs finally on past doctrines and conceptions about unemployment and are opening a new epoch," he said. "Unemployment is a social disease and must be eradicated from our social life."

It was now proposed both to diagnose and propose a cure, he added.

Bevin said that when, with Prime Minister Churchill he saw the troops embarking for Normandy, they asked him: "Ernie, when we have done this job for you, are we coming back to the dole?"

"It hurt, it stung," the Labor Minister added. "Both the Prime Minister and I answered, 'No, you are not.'"

Dealing with long term proposals, Bevins said the total expenditure on goods and services must be maintained at a level necessary to prevent general unemployment.

"Our policy is directed to the deliberate ironing out of slump and boom. That will involve more economic control by the State than had hitherto been experienced."

"I certainly was in bad condition if anybody ever was," said Mr. Holding, 47 Edgemont Avenue, Hamilton, Ont. "I had no appetite, couldn't get restful sleep at night, and lost so much weight that I hardly had enough energy to carry on my work. I was troubled with constipation and would get awful headaches and dizzy spells. I also had a lot of gas and bloating in my stomach and intestines and I felt so sluggish and tired-out that I actually thought I'd have to quit entirely.

"But it wasn't long after I started taking Syntona that I began to feel better and now after a couple months I believe I'm the happiest man because this medicine has given me REAL results. I've gained back several pounds of my lost weight, I have a good appetite for hearty meals with no trouble from gas, bloating, or distress in my stomach. My sluggish bowels are regular now and the relief this gave from headaches and those sickening dizzy spells is wonderful. # Commando Leader Suffers Wonnds

LONDON, June 22—(CP-Reuters).—Lord Lovat, dashing Commando leader, has been wounded in the Normandy fighting, it was learned to-day. He is in a hospital in England and was reported out of danger.

Reports from the hospital to-day added that he was making as good progress as could be expected.

Meanwhile a dispatch from a correspondent in Normandy reported a typical Lord Lovat action:

"Before His Lordship was wounded we were holding our position until the Commando troops could come and join us," the correspondent wrote. "We had had hard fighting but presently we saw Lord Lovat swinging up the road to the bridges we had captured with a Scottish piper playing on either side of him and looking as casual and carefree as if he were strolling down Piccadilly. We were much relieved to see him."

RUSSIANS LAUNCH HUGE OFFENSIVE

Germans Get Taste of Total War in Cherbourg

ALLIES ARE NOT PULLING THEIR PUNCHES IN VIGOROUS DRIVE AGAINST HUNS ACROSS FRENCH COUNTRYSIDE

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 23—(CP Cable). — The Cherbourg Peninsula, first major American battlefield of the war in France, is full of evidence of the violence with which the Germans were cut in two and part of their defence forces pushed back into the port of Cherbourg.

The towns they attempted to defend have been virtually obliterated. The wrecks of German tanks, guns and vehicles sit on charred spots along the roadside. Reinforced concrete telephone poles have been smashed and broken, roads torn by bomb craters and marked by shell explosions.

The greatest devastation appears in towns such as Montebourg and Valognes which the enemy wanted to defend. Most of their buildings were pulverized.

Many isolated houses between such towns likewise have been wrecked. The Americans haven't pulled any punches in the attack on the German defenders, which is the reason for the enemy fallback into Cherbourg.

Spread over several acres of small green fields along the straight Cherbourg highway near Valognes, are abandoned gliders which brought in the air-borne American invasion troops. The area for the landing was well chosen because in many other parts of the peninsula fields were planted with wooden posts as a defence against air-borne attack.

The Americans have had to contend with snipers even in the rear areas. The doughboys seem always to keep thheir rifles handy. Negro American linesmen work with rifles slung from shoulders; Military police directing traffic also have theirs.

Bombings have made some civilians homeless and you see them being transported in big, American vehicles. Despite the thoroughness of the air attack which struck their homes, civilians wave to passing soldiers and French tricolors hang along the way.

In many places the Germans tried to block roads with a barbed wire steel gate. The obstacles rest crookedly in ditches as though they had been suddenly flung aside by passage of the American offensive up the peninsula.

The American forces have brought total war to the Germans trying to keep their hold on France.

Tank Attack Starts At Mogilev

Long-Awaited Drive Believed Timed With Allied Invasion

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 23 —(AP)—Just over three years from the day they struck into Russia, the Germans reported today the opening of the Red Army's long-awaited summer drive, an offensive which may be combined with the American-British invasion from the west for the crushing of Hitlerdom.

Ernst von Hammer, chief military correspondent for the International Information Bureau, German propaganda agency, said in a Berlin broadcast that the Russians had made "small local advances" between Mogilev and Vitebsk on the White Russian front—the most direct route from Moscow to Berlin. The announcement of the new Russian drive also was made by DNB, the official German news agency, and Transocean, another German news agency.

No Confirmation

While making the usual claim that the Russian gains were sealed off promptly, Von Hammer said the Red Army was using artillery and tanks on a grand scale.

There was no confirmation from Russian sources concerning the reported offensive and London military men adopted a wait and see attitude. Three days after the Allied landings in Normandy the Germans announced the opening of a new Soviet drive which did not materialize.

However, in the past German reports of Russian drives almost always have preceded those from Moscow, which is inclined to wait for substantial results before putting out communiques.

An offensive developing along the Mogilev-Vitebsk line could be aimed almost straight west at Berlin, southwest of Warsaw about 420 miles away or northwest to lop off the Baltic states by cutting 256 miles to Riga.

95 Mile Front

It is certain the Russians are employing only a small percentage of their rested and re-equipped forces against Finland, and that the Red Army is in a position to strike anywhere it chooses along the front from the Black Sea to the Baltic.

Transocean said a "big attack with very strong forces" was made by the Russians on the third anniversary of the war along a front of about 95 miles from just south of Mogilev to just north of Vitebsk, and that fierce fighting continues there.

There was a possibility that the operations reported by the Germans merely were masking attacks for a main Russian blow which would fall elsewhere later. It seemed likely the Russians were satisfied that the Finnish clean up was in hand and were moving into the main battle in co-ordination with the Allies.

Use Many Tanks

In its broadcast, the International Information Bureau said:

"While the Russians did not go

Eden Says Prison Slaying Nothing But Plain Murder

Gestapo Airmen Claim Prisoners Had Same Status As Civilian Captives

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 23—(CP Cable).—A story of cold-blooded murder by the Gestapo of 50 Allied air officers, including six Canadians, who were prisoners of war in Germany was given the House of Commons today by Foreign Secretary Eden.

The Foreign Secretary called it "cold blooded butchery" and promised "exemplary justice" eventually for the murderers. The slaying followed recapture of the airmen after an escape attempt at Stalag Luft 111 last March. The murdered men, according to information given the British Government by airmen repatriated from the camp since the escape attempt, were last seen leaving the grim Gorlitz prison, handcuffed and in charge of tommy gun-carrying Gestapo men.

"The explanation now put forward by the German government is in fact a confession of an odious crime against the laws and conventions of war," Mr. Eden said.

Civilian Rating.

The recaptured men were placed five or six to a cell in Gorlitz, he said, and were told by the Gestapo: "We have got you here. Nobody knows you are here. To all intents and purposes you are civilians, wearing civilian clothes and we can do what we like with you. You can disappear."

After interrogation and after some men had been taken back to the cells, German officials picked out a number.

"Those picked out," Mr. Eden said, "were seen from the prison being driven away handcuffed and in charge of Gestapo officials who were armed with Tommy-guns while the remainder were handed over to the Luftwaffe and brought back to

Believe Caen Now Evacuated

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 23—(CP)—American assault troops have stormed over one of the three fortified peaks dominating Cherbourg's military harbor, Supreme Headquarters announced today, and speedy fall of the city is expected.

The announcement came after headquarters told of enemy formations having been "pinned down" in the eastern sector of the invasion front where British and Canadian troops are engaged.

Meanwhile, a dispatch from William Stewart, Canadian Press War Correspondent, said the Germans because of terrific bombing, may have evacuated Caen, eastern pivot of their Normandy Line and dispersed their forces around the city, which is in the British-Canadian sector.

Describing Cherbourg's defences as "fairly formidable" a headquarters announcement said a "prolonged siege is unlikely now."

Attacking with a storm of artillery fire, and a huge array of instruments of destruction, the Americans captured a height at Tourlaville, four miles from the sea southeast of Cherbourg. The Germans had been reduced to machine guns, small arms and light artillery in defending their pillboxes and prepared defences.

Americans and Germans were so closely interlocked in the grim battle that Allied air forces were unable to give the close battle-front the support that marked the opening of the all-out attack yesterday.

British and American planes concentrated on the battle area, hitting rail and road communications in a semi-circle 100 miles deep in France as the Americans clamped a vise on Cherbourg and smashed at the other two remaining hilltop bastions.

Three Divisions Caught

These were at Nouainville, 2½ miles southwest of the port and three miles from the coast, and at La Mare a Conards, 1½ miles directly to the south of the city.

Commandos Keep Pledge, Relieve Paratroopers

By LEONARD MOSLEY
Released by the British Information Service and Distributed by The Canadian Press

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY, June 23.—This is one of the stories I have been aching to tell ever since I landed with the British 6th Airborne Division by parachute in Normandy—the story of a small group of daredevil men to whom most of the airborne troops owe their lives and safety today. It is the story of tall, handsome Brigadier Lord Lovat and the group of tough Commandos under his command and how they fought, were wounded and killed in order to keep his pledge to the airborne forces, "We won't let your paratroops down."

Lord Lovat gave that pledge to the general commanding the 6th Airborne Division at a conference which the two men held somewhere in southern England just before the invasion began. He had just heard what the airborne troops were expected to do—how they were to descend by glider and parachute upon vital bridges spanning the River Orne and the Caen Canal and were to hold on until help arrived.

Ten Mile Hike.

"Yours will be the first help we shall get," the General said. "You'll land on the beach 10 miles from us.

Happy Canadian CWAC's Serve With Army In Italy

By BILL BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 23—(CP Cable).—The first detachment of C.W.A.C. members assigned to the Mediterranean theatre has arrived after a pleasant trip from Britain. The girls will shortly relieve the same number of men at the Canadian section of general headquarters, making them available for duty with forward units.

It was a return to Italy for Capt. Cynthia Oakley, a Toronto skier who was here in 1936 studying Italian in Florence.

A seven-room apartment, formerly a sergeants' mess, has been vacated and renovated and will be their quarters.

Special plumbing and hot showers have been installed but "just the same they will be treated like ordinary soldiers," said Capt. Edmond B. Corby of Victoria, B.C., the camp commandant.

"They will eat with their fellow ranks at the headquarters' men's mess, while Sgts. Campbell (Jean Campbell of Saint John, N.B.) and Joan Allan of Winnipeg will eat at the headquarters' sergeants' mess," he added.

Feather Pillows.

Unlike the soldiers at headquarters, however, the C.W.C.A.'s will have spring beds, mattresses and feather pillows.

The superintending clerk at headquarters, SSM. Howard Thomas of Ottawa, is in charge of the switchover and the girls will be responsible to him for duty.

Girls joining his staff included: Cpl. Kathleen J. Torrance, London, Ont., and Pte. Ruth Charlton, Ilderton, Ont.

C.W.A.C. switchboard operators in the party were L.-Cpls. Marguerite Hughes, Sudbury, Ont., and Dorothy Hollingsworth, Cornwall, Ont.

They left England recently beneath a mountain of kit bags, sore in the arm from inoculations, excited and just a bit apprehensive about it all.

They didn't know where they would be before they see England again so into their luggage was stowed clothing for every kind of weather—cool tropicals for a Mediterranean summer, rubber boots and raincoats for the rainy season.

Army service has vaccinated the wanderlust into the blood of these girls in uniform and like Pte. Carol Thompson of Carnduff, Sask., they all said "it's good to be on the move again. England has been fun, but we want to see new places."

Many of the girls came here with the first contingent of CWACs to arrive in the fall of 1942. A large number of them were N.C.O.'s like Pte. Jerry Mumford of Halifax who took down a stripe to go to the Mediterranean.

Officer in charge was Capt. Cynthia Oakley of Meadowvale, Ont. and Toronto, a versatile young woman who speaks French, Italian and Spanish fluently.

At one time she was skiing instructress at Club Mont Gabriel, Piedmont, Que. She was secretary to the curator of the Toronto Art Gallery, and when war found her in England she served in the Women's Land Army as a tractor driver.

As they boarded their ship the girls had music. Cpl Betty Caesar of Winnipeg swung it out on the accordion she has carried everywhere with

Andaman Isles Hit In Raid

KANDY, Ceylon, June 23.—(CP).—An Allied carrier task force raided Port Blair, capital of the Andaman Islands, and scored hits on a powerhouse, workships, yards and a seaplane base, where an oil fire was started, Headquarters disclosed to-day.

One radio location station was destroyed and another heavily damaged, a special communique said. The Japanese made no attempt to attack the warships and the planes encountered no enemy fighters. Two enemy planes were set afire on the field.

Vice-Admiral Sir Arthur John Power directed the operation, which was carried out on Wednesday. Heavy bombers followed up the attack, striking in a night raid at the number one airfield of Port Blair. Visibility was poor, however, and results were not announced.

The radio-location station was demolished first, thus opening the way for an undetected approach for long-range land-based planes.

Japs Threaten Hengyang City

CHUNGKING, June 23 —(AP)—Thousands of Chinese civilians were reported fleeing from threatened Hengyang today as the Japanese reached a point only 33 miles away in their southward drive from Changsha to cut China in two.

Chinese quarters here made no attempt to conceal belief that the situation was immensely grave. Some felt the fight for Hengyang, a strategic rail junction in the path of the Japanese driving southward toward Canton, might well become a virtual battle for China.

Union Workers At Borden

Guests Of Army To View Equipment

OTTAWA, June 23 — (CP) — Eight Union workers employed in war plants in Windsor, Ont., and Oshawa, Ont., will go to Camp Borden, Ont., Saturday to spend two days there watching equipment they have produced through its paces, it was announced here today.

Six of the workers are from Windsor and two from Oshawa. All members of the United Automobile Workers of America (C. I. O.), they are: Michael Kennedy, 36, Osiase (Bill) Dupuis, 39, William Kerr, 48, Fred Arnold, 44, Robert Grant, 53, and Benjamin Murphy, 36, Windsor, and R. H. McEvers, 30, and J. Wallace, 31, Oshawa.

The invitation was extended by Lt.-Col. G. S. Currie, Deputy Defence Minister, and accepted by George Burt, Canadian Director of U.A.W.

As guests of the Army the workers will be quartered by the forces and will take their meals in camp. Five of them have served in this war and another is a First Great War veteran.

Round-the-Clock Attacks Smear Rocket-Bomb Coast

Crammed Rail Yards At Reims And Laon Battered By R.A.F. Heavies During Night

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 23—(AP).—Italy-based bombers smashed the Romanian oil installations at Ploesti again today while heavy bombers from Britain stabbed through clouds for the eighth straight day of smashes at the Pas de Calais "rocket coast."

The blows followed followed R.A.F. night attacks on the targets in France.

The Italian force—of probably more than 500 heavy bombers—also attacked Giurgiu, Danube port where Romanian oil is transhipped to river boats. The assault coincided with a British Ministry of Economic Warfare estimate that Germany's yearly output of oil has been reduced about 65 per cent. by aerial bombardments of the last three months. A Ministry spokesman said the German army is getting less than half the gasoline it needs. The spokesman said German liquid fuel output has been cut from 14 or 16 million tons yearly to about five million.

8th Army Nears Chienti River

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 23 (AP) — Allied forces in Italy have made progress along both coastal sectors, but the Germans apparently are planning a determined stand along strong positions between Lake Trasimeno and Lake Chiusi and north of Perugia in the central sector, Allied headquarters indicated today.

The British 8th Army is encountering "strong resistance" north of Perugia, and southwest of Lake Trasimeno, where a number of German counter-attacks have been repulsed, the communique said.

An Algiers radio news roundup said Allied forces on the Adriatic were 25 miles from the important seaport of Ancona. The communique said troops in that sector have continued their "rapid advance and are now approaching the Chienti river." The Chienti is about 25 miles south of Ancona.

On the west coast the Allied 5th Army, despite strong resistance, has pressed forward astride Highway 1, leading through Livorno to Pisa, and is approaching Folonica, some 55 miles south of Pisa, believed to be an anchor of the next major German resistance line.

50 Jap Ships Sunk In June

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP).—American submarines, dealing another heavy blow to the Japanese merchant fleet, have sent 16 more enemy vessels to the bottom of the Pacific.

The Navy, announcing this today, held to its policy of secrecy in submarine operations, giving no hint of when or where the latest bag was made.

The new report of sinkings shows that the rate of destruction by the subs now is better than one vessel a day, because it raises to 50 the number of Japanese craft announced as sunk by submarines alone this month.

French Leader Changes Plans

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 23 — (AP). — Gen. de Gaulle, reversing his previous stand, has agreed to allow French representatives to serve as liaison officers and governors of freed sections of France, under control of Supreme Headquarters.

A reliable source said to-day the arrangement was made without any formal agreement, or even a meeting between Gen. Eisenhower and de Gaulle, and is on a day-to-day basis.

For some months de Gaulle's representative, Brig.-Gen. Joseph P. Koenig, has been working informally with SHAEF in preparing a group of French officers to administer civil affairs in France on a liaison basis. Similar agreements were worked out with the Dutch and Norwegian Governments.

Eisenhower lacked directive from the British and American Governments for dealing with the French and Koenig did not possess full power to enter into any binding agreement, so the negotiations were carried out informally.

Johnson Bags 30th Plane

Spitfire Wings Get Six Out Of 8

WITH THE R. A. F. IN FRANCE, June 23 — (CP Cable) — Wing Cmdr. "Johnny" Johnson of the R. A. F., Commander of a Canadian Spitfire Wing, destroyed his 30th German plane in the air yesterday to bring him within two of the record held by the R.A.F.'s leading ace, Group Capt. A. G. (Sailor) Malan.

Malan, a South African, now is off operations, as is Flt.-Lt. George (Buzz) Beurling of Verdun, Que., who accumulated a score of 31 planes before returning to Canada.

Johnson's kill came when the Spitfire wing shot down a total of six to augment its already impressive toll.

F.O.'s John Marritee and James Fleming of Toronto and P.O.'s William Weeks Loggieville, N.B., and F. B. Young of West Virginia accounted for one each yesterday while F.O.'s William Brown, Edmonton, W. R. Chowen, Agincourt, Ont. and Flt.-Sgt. R. A. MacMilland of Toronto shared the other kill.

The fight occurred deep in France when Johnson and his mates met a mixed formation of Wocke Wulfes and Messerschmitts.

"There were eight of them and we got six," Johnson said.

beyond local attacks on the southern sector, they started a big attack south of Mogilev up to the region of Vitebsk, with heavy artillery and tanks on a wide front."

Vitebsk is in northern White Russia, and Mogilev is approximately 90 miles to the south.

Meanwhile, on the Finnish front, Russian troops pounded the Finns on three fronts in savage fighting yesterday, scored new advances and took a heavy toll in enemy killed and captured, Moscow announced.

From the northern tip of Lake Onezhskoe Onega, Red Army units rolled 10 to 15 miles westward in the direction of Lake Ostero and cleared a section of the Leningrad-Murmansk railway by capturing three important stations.

To the south along the Svir river the Red Army expanded its bridgehead to a depth of at least six miles on the river's north bank, and captured Podporozhye, a district centre on the Leningrad region.

Tali Captured

North of Viipuri on the Karelian isthmus Marshal Govorov's conquering army captured Tali, five miles north of the fallen seaport, as well as several other places.

Govorov's right flank with hitting toward the rail and highway centre of Lapeenranta (Villmanstrand), 30 miles northwest of Viipuri. Capture of Lapeenranta would sever the Finns' main communications with their forces, estimated at 100,000 men, in the area of Lakes Ladoga and Onezhskoe, far to the northeast.

The Finnish communique yesterday acknowledged a withdrawal as a result of attacks in the north, but claimed violent Russian assaults in the Viipuri sector were repulsed.

The B.B.C. quoted its Stockholm reporter, Norman McDonald as saying a German pocket battleship and the heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper "are now off the Finnish west coast port of Abo." The broadcast, recorded by C.B.S., said the Germans were believed risking the ships "either to prevent Russian occupation of the Aaland Islands between Finland and Sweden, or to get the Germans away from Finland."

"As far as can be judged so far, the focal point of the attack lies on both sides of the Smolensk-Orsha railway, where the German reconnaissance units observed large artillery concentrations."

All attacks were repulsed by the Germans, Transocean said, and small local advances were immediately offset by counter-attacks.

The Smolensk-Orsha highway, which starts at Moscow and runs to Minsk and northern Poland, cuts the Vitebsk-Mogilev railway about half-way between the latter two towns.

Claxton States Everyone Can Have Job

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 23 (CP)—Members of the Commons yesterday peered anxiously at the shape of things to come as they set forth their proposals for reconstruction in Canada after the war.

Their discussion—on a bill to set up a department of reconstruction—ranged from work projects in the Maritimes to financing by the issue of currency; criticism of gloomy forecasts; the need of joint Dominion, provincial and municipal action; major grants for education and export trade in post-war years.

Debate on the reconstruction bill will continue today.

Speaking on the reconstruction bill, Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Mr. King, said that if new capacities and skills developed during the war were used in reconstruction, "we can produce jobs for everyone, jobs at wages that have never been known before."

The war had brought a change in the Canadian spirit "and no longer shall we be willing to face anything like the 1930s. We will not stand it, and there is no reason why we should."

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said the ministry of reconstruction should be associated with a joint Dominion-provincial-municipal reconstruction board so that plans could be correlated, and rights protected.

No Pessimism

Mr. Graydon said there must be no reactionary thought and progressive ideas must be kept to the fore. It was not appropriate to look on the future as being dark, and the state should be prepared to underwrite the prosperity of the nation.

Canada had to guard against monopolies whether they came from big business or in the "form of state monopolies which can be just as dangerous," said Mr. Graydon.

Rational reform was necessary. It could not be achieved if every plan put forward was belittled and attacked without careful examination.

Woolly and impractical, radical revolutionary thinking was to be expected, he said, but out of it he hoped would come a united and a better Canada, going into the battles of peace.

J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) said the reconstruction program should include Federal grants to education—$40,000,000 annually to raise teachers' salaries to a decent standard; $40,000,000 to give equality of educational opportunity to students in rural schools and in poorer provinces; $40,000,000 by way of capital expenditure over seven or eight years to build schools and replace outworn buildings; $3,000,000 for scholarships for gifted children.

Assistance should be given higher education also. A Federal grant of $5,000,000 would allow Universities to put their financial affairs in order and reduce student fees. Adult education should be assisted by grants for library facilities and other community services.

Mr. Rose said that even if Canadian Armed Forces were kept at a level of 200,000 men after the war, there still would be 1,500,000 men and women in need of jobs. The present national income was $10,000,000,000 and to give employment to the additional 1,500,000 persons an increase in that income of at least $3,000,000,000 would be needed.

CRUISER INVALUABLE

U.S. Casualties Total 178,677

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson reported Thursday that United States Army casualties through June 6 (which would include D-Day) totalled 178,677, an increase of 7,319 since his report on June 8, which covered the period through May 21. The U.S. Army dead now total 31,289, an increase of 2,337. The new announcement reports 71,432 wounded, 39,976 missing and 35,980 prisoners.

A Navy casualty list announced today reports an overall figure of 46,705, an increase of 932 since a list published two weeks ago. Those killed total 20,004, an increase of 242. Wounded amount to 12,906, missing 9,295 and prisoners 4,461.

Powerful Air

The Italy-based bombers, escorted by fighters, met a "considerable number" of fighters over Romania, an announcement said, and several were shot down. The rail yards at Nis, Yugoslavia, also were bombed.

Occasional rocket-bombs continued to zoom toward England, but Home Secretary Morrison assured parliament that they had done "little damage of national importance."

Today's attack came after a night in which R.A.F. heavies struck at the Nazi reinforcement-crammed rail yards at Reims and Laon, bringing to a climax one of the greatest days of aerial operations since the launching of the Normandy invasion.

Seven bombers were missing from the assault on these key rail points, both about 80 miles northeast of Paris. The yards are in the network of lines leading toward the battlefront from Germany and the Lowlands, and both now are jammed with Nazi reinforcements struggling to get through.

British light bombers hit rail targets at Lesieux, Dreux and Evreux last night while fighters and intruders destroyed seven German planes over northern France. The night blows came after at least 6,000 Allied planes dumped probably more than 8,000 tons of bombs on targets from Cherbourg to Paris from dawn to dusk yesterday. More than 6,000 sorties were made, compared with the D-Day record of approximately 10,000 sorties.

The aerial assault yesterday supported at pistol range the advance of ground troops at Cherbourg. Coordinated blows were struck at German headquarters, first-hidden fuel dumps, railroad and highway traffic as far inland as Paris, and at the Germans' rocket-hurling bases in the Pas de Calais.

In the Cherbourg operations low-swooping fighter-bombers first drove the Germans under cover, and then medium bombers came in to hammer the enemy.

The big British aircraft took up the assault as darkness brought the Germans the only period around the clock that they now dare move forces in any considerable amount.

Southern England today received one of its heaviest flying-bomb assaults since the Germans launched the robot attacks a week ago. New incendiary types of robots, along with the now-familiar high-explosive winged bombs, were used by the Nazis.

During yesterday's titanic Allied daylight operations, ground troops in Normandy received the best air support since the invasion began, and powerful blows were scored against robot launching-platforms in the Pas de Calais area.

Lose 23 Planes

With reports on some missions still unannounced, it was disclosed that 23 Allied planes, including 11 heavy bombers and two mediums wer lost and six German planes were shot.

These were the highlights of yesterday's operations:

1. More than 1,000 U.S. medium and light bombers and fighter-bombers pounded the last wall of Nazi fortifications separating American ground troops from the Cherbourg waterfront. Attacking planes swept over the German lines every five minutes for two hours, and were only 500 yards away from frontline troops. So closely were these operations coordinated that many pilots were in the air over the target area before operating final radio orders from advanced posts on exact objectives.

2. A force of 250 U.S. heavy bombers and hundreds of big British counterparts blasted the Pas de Calais rocket-bomb emplacements. British heavy bombers, normally used in night operations, flew out in mid-afternoon for the first time since 1942.

3. Some 750 U.S. heavy bombers escorted by 500 fighters made an evening attack. While some of these planes were delivering the day's second punch at rocket bomb emplacements, others struck at airfields, bridges, transformer stations, railway workshops, siding and fuel tanks over a wide area. Railway yards at Lille, France, and Gent, Belgium also were hit.

4. U.S. 9th Air Force medium bombers raided Alderney Island, eight miles west of Cape de la Hague, near the tip of the Cherbourg Peninsula, and also hit German Field Headquarters, fuel dumps and railroads behind the Normandy front.

20 U.S. Carriers In Action Rout Jap Imperial Fleet

Enemy Admits Loss of Aircraft Carrier Two Oil Tankers And 50 Warplanes

PEARL HARBOR, June 23—(AP).—Twenty thousand Japanese, apparently abandoned to their death by a routed Imperial fleet, were hit high and low today on Saipan by an Allied invasion army which now outnumbers the foe.

Sensing almost certain victory in the distant Marianas as the aftermath of a one-sided sea triumph, the reinforced invaders scaled the heights and probed the flatlands of that island gateway to Japan, China and the Philippines.

The scales were tipped heavily in favor of the Allies Monday by Task Force 58, a newly-disclosed fast and mighty armada with perhaps 20 of the nearly 100 U.S. carriers in action against Japan.

Saipan's potential naval support was sent scurrying between Luzon and Formosa into the far China Sea by carrier planes of this specialized group which sank one Japanese carrier, heavily hit three others and damaged a battleship and cruiser. In all, four enemy ships definitely were sunk and 10 others hard hit.

Task Force 58, which Navy officials in Washington said has been assigned "the entire Pacific Ocean to the gates of Japan as its stamping ground," thus paved the way for a stepped-up drive on Saipan itself. Last night, Admiral Nimitz reported that the invasion of that island, 1,500 miles from Tokyo but 3,800 miles from Pearl Harbor, was going well.

Japanese Imperial Headquarters acknowledged today the loss of a Japanese aircraft carrier, two oil tankers and 50 planes in an engagement with an American naval task force west of the Marianas, and admitted that the Japanese had been "unable to inflict a decisive blow upon the enemy."

In a broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, Tokyo said part of the Japanese combined fleet had participated in the action which began June 19 Japanese time and continued until the following day.

The Tokyo communique asserted the Japanese had sunk or damaged five Allied aircraft carriers and one or more battleships, and asserted that 100 Allied planes had been destroyed.

The Japanese said their battle fleet had carried out "a forestalling action."

"Those shot included all officers of European Allied nationality who were recaptured. These were taken away on different days in small parties, with one larger party of about 20."

They had been told that those in civilian clothes would be without protection of the prisoners of war convention.

Physically Weak

"It previously had been reported that some of the men were shot and killed while making a second escape attempt after recapture but Mr. Eden said it was known now that, owing to physical exhaustion and ill treatment at Gorlitz, the men were incapable of any such attempt.

It was known also, he said, that all the officers knew the futility of attempting to resist if recaptured and at no time have British prisoners of war been ordered to take part in any subversive action in the event of their escape, as the German government alleged.

Mr. Eden reassured the House that the government has no reports of mass killings except the one involving British and Allied officers.

A German note claimed that serious mass-escapes in March endangered public security and forced adoption of stern counter measures.

The Germans in a communication sent to the British Government claimed the officers were shot while resisting capture after their escape from a war prison camp near Dresden March 25 or while attempting to make another getaway following their capture, Mr. Eden said.

This was the same explanation the Nazis previously offered Switzerland, the protecting power.

Flatly rejecting this answer to the mass killing, the foreign secretary said: "The explanation now put forward by the German government is in fact the confession of an odious crime against the laws and conventions of war."

Declaring the British government would never cease its efforts to collect evidence "to identify all those responsible," Mr. Eden said the government was resolved "that those foul criminals shall be tracked down be and when the war is over they to the last man wherever they may will be brought to exemplary justice."

Americans Gain

Three German divisions, mixed with German naval units and a defence garrison, were believed caught in the American clamp.

There was no confirmation at Supreme Headquarters of a German radio report that new Allied airborne landings had been made at Gavray east of Granville on the peninsula's west coast 60 miles south of Cherbourg.

The Germans were making a desperate bid to hold the strategic port as long as possible. Everywhere fierce resistance was encountered, and a particularly vicious battle was being fought for control of the big airfield at Maupertus, five miles east of the city.

On the Canadian sector, a four-day stretch of bad weather abated yesterday, Ross Munro, chief CP war correspondent in the field, said last night, and the Canadians resumed patrol activities.

Close-In Fighting

Close-range fighting continued through its 12th consecutive day in the British Tilly-Hottot area, Roger Greene, Associated Press war correspondent, said last night, but added elsewhere in this part of the front activity was slight.

In special communique No. 2, also issued today, Supreme Headquarters told how French underground forces have harassed the Germans since June 10, "in accordance with Allied pleas."

The announcement said in many places the Germans have been forced to use "considerable forces" to combat increasing acts of sabotage and resistance.

On the Cherbourg front, American infantrymen rocked the German defenders with continued powerful attacks to-day, and an official announcement reported "strong indications" that the enemy had withdrawn from the eastern tip of the peninsula to the city for a house-by-house stand.

Lt.-Gen. Bradley's all-out offensive, now in its second day, struck fierce German resistance at every point. A particularly vicious battle raged for control of the big airfield at Maupertus, five miles east of Cherbourg.

Inside the besieged port, the German garrison stood up stubbornly under yesterday's 1,000 plane assault on the forts and pillboxes comprising the city's defence. Allied ground troops had to fight for every inch of their advance.

Small gains were registered around the port itself, but progress was made on both the eastern and western sides of the peninsula.

Only slight German resistance was reported by American troops which cut off the eastern tip of the Peninsula by capturing the road junction of St. Pierre Eglise and then driving two miles westward to Carneville.

A report from the 21st Army group headquarters said this advance provided "strong indications" the Germans had abandoned that tip of the peninsula despite strong fortifications in the St. Vaast la Hougue area on the eastern coast.

Cuts Off More Huns

On the western tip of the peninsula, the Americans went forward in the area of Beaumont Hague against scattered resistance, cutting off whatever Germans are in that area.

Allied bombers and fighters attacked German gunposts and barracks on Alderney, one of the Channel Isles only seven miles west of the tip of Cap de la Hague. This indicated some of the trapped Germans might be attempting to flee there.

The Allied prisoner bag, meanwhile, was described at supreme headquarters as "well over" the 15,000 announced a few days ago for the period since the June 6 landings.

Despite the biggest Allied air effort in more than a week, embracing more than 6,000 sorties, Gen. Bradley's attack on Cherbourg made only a little success. A mixed German force of three divisions of garrison troops, marines and sailors fought with the stubborness of Stalingrad in the French-built fortifications protecting the harbor.

The Americans drove a wedge south from St. Lo-D'Ourville in the direction of La Haye Du Puits, widening the corridor across the peninsula, for the only other gain on the American side of the Normandy front.

A special communique said the Germans had been forced to use "considerable forces" against the French resistance movement, which is now operating in accordance with Allied High Command plans.

"Elements of several German divisions and a large number of local defence troops are estimated to have been contained inside France by the action of the resistance forces," the communique said.

Maquis Active

The Germans attacked Maquis at Vercors and again with armored forces, artillery and aircraft, the announcement said, and the French "seriously delayed" two enemy armored divisions in Southwest France from reaching the beachhead. Numerous cuts also were made in France's interior railroads.

"Systematic disorganization of enemy transport by French forces of the interior has contributed directly to the success of the Allied operations in Normandy," the special communique said.

An American airman said he saw a naval engagement in the channel last night with two fleets "going at it hammer and tongs," but there was no immediate official announcement of such a fight. If true, it might indicate the Germans were trying to evacuate some of their trapped troops from Cherbourg.

Last night's communique announced that the Germans were rushing new forces to Normandy and that Allied planes "swarmed over Northwestern France from dawn to midday to harass enemy reinforcements moving westward from the Paris area."

So far as reported here, there has been no increase in the enemy's front strength—14 to 15 divisions—in the past week and a half.

The wind dropped and the weather improved off the Allied beachhead, permitting the Allies to resume, after four bad days, the unloading of supplies.

Tactical aircraft, ranging over a wide territory north of the battle area, attacked rail lines and bridges, motor transport, roads and other targets. A night attack on the rail yards at Vado Ligure in Northern Italy capped the operations.

Commandos Keep

I want you to fight your way across country, reach the bridge we are holding and pass through to aid us in fighting the Nazis in the country beyond, and I want you to be there on time. You land on the beaches sometime after 8 a.m. on D-Day. I want you to be at the bridges by 12.15, 4¼ hours later. Do you think you can do it?"

Lord Lovat said: "We may be a bit pressed now and then, sir, but at 12.15 we shall be there."

It was a promise that could not have been made good had not he and his men been of such calibre. For the Nazi opposition in the bridge sector was fiercer than we might have expected. Though the Germans defending the bridge were taken by surprise at first, their reaction was swift. All through D-Day morning from 1 a.m., when our paratroops and gliders landed, the Nazis counter-attacked and re-attacked our defenders on the bridges, and guessing that we were expecting help from the sea they massed men, tanks and guns between our airborne troops and the roads to the beaches. As attack succeeded attack the paratroopers looked at their watches gloomily and began to feel that help would not get through.

At 12:14 a paratroop officer said, "They'll never make it now."

Skirl of Pipes

Even as he spoke amid the noise of exploding shell and mortar bombs and the rattle of machine-gun fire there was the wailing of pipes in the distance and grins cracked the sweating, painted faces of the weary paratroopers. From mouth to mouth the message passed, "the Commandos are here."

That skirl of bagpipes was the recognition signal. If the bridge were cleared we were to send back the Reville signal by trumpet. But the road wasn't clear and instead we sounded "Defaulters" to give Lovat the hint that he must find another way round. He found it. It was just 17½ minutes past 12 when a tall slim man in a green beret, with a rifle slung over his shoulder, scrambled up the bank of the Caen Canal.

Behind him came the sweating piper, 21-year-old William Millin from Sandy Hills near Glasgow, and in the rear a line of green-bereted Commandos stretching as far as I could see.

The British brigadier was waiting. He smilingly shook Lord Lovat's hand and said: "We really are most pleased to see you."

"Thank you," said the Commandos' leader. Then, glancing at his watch, "Sorry, we were 2½ minutes late."

He and his men had fought their way through some of the fiercest opposition the British troops had encountered in the landing. They had come the whole 10 miles afoot.

Bouchard Talk Brings Comment Flood

OTTAWA, June 23—(CP)—Additional comments and criticisms of the speech made in the Senate Wednesday by Senator T. D. Bouchard, Liberal member from Quebec, were expected to be heard today.

In the Senate, Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt, another Liberal member from Quebec, was scheduled to reply to Senator Bouchard, who said in his maiden speech that a secret order, known as the Order of Jacques Cartier, was plotting to set up an independent Catholic and French state in Canada. Senator Bouchard said the order had the "blessing of the clergy."

Before entering the Senate chamber, Senator Vaillancourt said "If there had been no revolution or any trouble in Quebec it is because we had had a clergy that gave us proper formation of character."

If French-Canadians were as bad as depicted by Senator Bouchard they would not have fought in 1812 to save Canada from the Americans for the British, said Senator Villancourt. He was one of many commenting on the speech.

Should Place Question

In the Commons yesterday, Fred Rose (Lab.-Prog.—Montreal Cartier) asked if Justice Minister St. Laurent would make a statement on steps to be taken by his department to investigate charges a secret organization was plotting to create a separate corporatist state within Quebec and parts of Ontario.

The minister replied that Mr. Rose should place his question on the House order paper, but later issued a statement in which he said that one might have gained the impression from Senator Bouchard's speech that the Order of Jacques Cartier was quite an important body.

"My information is that it started out as a group of a few French speaking civil servants on the basis of 'you scratch my back and I will scratch yours,'" he said.

"The group may have spread somewhat but even the Senator discounts the claim that there are 18,000 of them and says that more than three quarters of those are good sound Canadians who do not realize the ends for which they are being used by the other 25 per cent.

Prone to Exaggerate

"A group of from one-tenth to one half of one per cent. of the population should not be taken too seriously. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police do not let any subversive movements go unnoticed and should any such movement be uncovered at any time it will be dealt with promptly and vigorously."

"I have just read Senator Bouchard's speech of yesterday in the Senate," said Mr. St. Laurent. "Knowing him as I do I can well imagine that the tone of his delivery may have been quite as vigorous as his choice of words. For those who do not know him as well, it is unfortunate that he was so sweeping in some of his assertions. They might get the impression that he was speaking of all Canadians of French descent. Of course that would be quite an erroneous impression.

"Senator Bouchard is of those who assert that a spade should be called a spade, but sometimes in his bursts of oratory he is apt to refer to such an implement as a 'steamshovel' or a 'bulldozer.'"

Senator Bouchard said in an interview before leaving for Montreal, he was unperturbed by the criticism of his speech.

Under the chairmanship of L. W. Copp, the gathering enjoyed a variety of races for all ages, folk-dancing, a delicious supper, and a ball game in the evening.

News Briefs From Cobourg

COBOURG, June 23.—(ENS). — Renovation of the police court room has started in Cobourg town hall. The room was badly in need of cleaning and a new paint treatment for some time. During the recent session of counties council some uncertainty was expressed as to whom was responsible, the county or the town, but the old lease has been found and as a result the town council property committee has undertaken the job. While the work is going on, the magistrate is holding court in the room adjoining the county court clerk's office.

As soon as the necessary labor and materials can be obtained, new sewer pipes will be put in John street and an open ditch closed in. A recent petition of residents on John street requested this work of the town council. Another job to be done when the men and materials are obtained is the construction of a sidewalk from the Purser residence to the home of O. Calhoun on Walton street.

Sum of $269 was raised for the Kinsmen Milk for Britain Fund by a canvass sponsored by the Cobourg Kinette Club members. Mrs. Keith Caldwell was convener. Prize for the best canvasser was won by Jacqueline Navin.

Made a Captain.

Word has been received of the promotion of Lieut. Fred Drewry, now in Italy, to the rank of captain. His parents, Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Fred Drewry are former Cobourg residents.

There was a good turnout last night for the mixed jitney at Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club, with warm weather prevailing. The summer schedule, as announced by Norman Kingsbury, games committee chairman is made up of men's rink games, following regular schedule, on Monday nights; men's rink games on point system on Tuesday night and mixed jitneys on Wednesday afternoons and Thursday nights.

G. Maton's entry won first place in the pigeon race from Cornwall to Cobourg, in the senior class. Distance was 186 miles and the winning bird flew at the rate of 1,140.01 yards per minute; G. Rawlings was second and E. Hie was third with 1,135.28. Junior results were: E. Johns, 111.23; J. Jamieson, 976.25 and W. Jamieson, 837.33.

Catholic Labor Denies Charge

MONTREAL, June 23 — (CP) — Catholic Labor and St. Jean Baptiste Society officials today denied that their organizations were "under the influence" of the Order of Jacques Cartier which, Senator T. D. Bouchard said yesterday in the Senate, hampered the improvement of relationships between French and English speaking Canadians.

Alfred Charpentier president of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, parent body of the National Catholic Syndicates, said "I utterly deny such accusation... Our unions are independent of all outside organizations and open to French, English, Jewish and all other workers."

Roger Duhamel, president of the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society, said "our Society is not under the influence of the Order of Jacques Cartier and our members are entirely free to express their personal opinions. Mr. Bouchard's address is entirely contrary to facts and politeness alone prevents me from calling him a public liar."

C.W.L. Meeting Held At Cottage

MARMORA, June 23.—(ENS). — The summer home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A McNally at Crowe Lake was the setting for the well attended June meeting of the Catholic Women's League this week

The Holy Name Society, as guests of the League was also well represented. These members enjoyed themselves at games on the lawn while the business portion of the meeting was in progress. Mrs. E. D. O'Connor, president, occupied the chair. A letter was read from the Diocesan convener regarding lay retreats to be held at Notre Dame Convent, Kingston in August. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. N. McDonald. Arrangements were made for the different groups to join this summer in holding bake sales and bingos.

It being the 30th anniversary of Rev. Father Farrell's ordination to the priesthood, the league presented him with a gift of money, the presentation being made by Mrs. E. D. O'Connor. The Holy Name Society also presented him with money, the presentation being made by the president, Eugene Brady and William Shannon. Mrs. James Black presented league pins to the members of the group who had made the largest amount of money during the vacation months of last summer, the group being that of Deloro, whose convener is Mrs. John Doyle. The president also presented Past President Mrs. James Black with a beautiful Sacred Heart statue.

Rev. Father Farrell then addressed the meeting thanking the members for the gift. He spoke of his ordination in Ireland thirty years ago and his return trip to Ireland some years after that. He wished all a happy vacation during the summer months.

The president gave the hostess a gift as a token of appreciation in placing her summer home each year at the disposal of the League for the June meeting and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McNally for their kindness. Mrs. Rose Johnston gave a reading entitled "Mr. Parker Steps Out," followed by the recitation of a poem, "My Lesson" by Mrs. James Black.

Members of the Holy Name Society joined the League members and some games of bingo were enjoyed. Harold Auger was the winner in a draw for $5 sponsored by the Holy Name Society for the cigarette fund. Miss Mary Hughes handed out sewing for members to take home. A social hour was spent and a lunch served.

Gigli Hurt By Allied Ban

ROME, June 22—(AP)—Beniamino Gigli, former Metropolitan Opera tenor forbidden by Allied authorities to sing at a concert because of his alleged Fascist connections in the past, declared last night he had never been an active Fascist and attributed opposition to his to "the jealousy of mean people."

Apparently greatly distressed by the ban, Gigli said: "Yes, it's true that I sang for the Fascists and I sang for the Germans. Now that the Americans and British are here I would like to sing for them, too.

"But I am an artist, and I never had any interest in politics. I never wore a black shirt or a Fascist badge. My only connection was an honorary membership card they gave me, just as they did to Badoglio (Marshal Pietro Badoglio).

"This action is not due to the Allies, but to the jealousy of mean people among the Italians who are saying false things about me. "I'll sing for the British and Americans anytime they want, but I'll never sing for the Italians again."

Need Comfort Bags

MARMORA, June 23 (ENS) — The regular meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. was held at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bleecker, Crowe Lake, and took the form of a supper party with Miss Miriam Savage as hostess.

Items of general business having been discussed, letters from I.O.D.E. headquarters were read in which the need for Service Women's Personal Comfort Bags was strongly stressed. It was decided that each member would fill two bags during the summer.

"Doodle Bugs" Beaten By Canuck Pilots

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN R.A.F. STATION IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, June 23 — (CP-Cable)—It's tremendous the way the young pilots at this fighter station have adjusted their methods of attack to counter the menace of the Germans' pilotless plane, which the pilots call the "Doodle Bug."

As it happens, Britain has come up with a new weapon to counter the Nazis' new stroke. The new British weapon is the latest fighter—the Tempest—the fastest thing with wings. It is the nemesis of Germany's winged bomb.

I watched yesterday while these Tempest pilots scrambled into the sky, chased and knocked down Doodle Bugs headed into Southern England. The pilots told me they are getting a high percentage of all the Doodle Bugs they see and a large number of all the Doodle Bugs which cross the Channel.

One key man in the fight against the robot planes is Wing Cmdr. R. P. (Bee) Beamont, D.S.O., D.F.C. with bar. He is the leader of this RAF unit which includes two Tempest squadrons.

Beamont watched the first Doodle Bugs come over and suggested quietly to his men that they would have to take some steps to cope with the new weapon. He doped out the tactics. Then he sent his men into action. In one period of an hour and a half they knocked down seven out of seven they saw and yesterday before breakfast I talked to a young pilot who was doing an early dawn patrol and testing a plane at the same time. He got two—the only ones he saw.

The ace of this short robot campaign to date is Flt. Lt. R. Moore of Reading, England, who shot down his fifth over the Channel this morning.

Beamont said the squadrons maintain constant and intensive patrols over the area where the robot planes come into England.

One of the leaders is FO. Lefty Whitman of Montreal and Belleville, Ont., with four shared and one destroyed single-handed.

Usually the flying bomb comes in at 2,500 feet and the Wing Commander told me he and his men started attacking them at 400 yards but now have got it down so that they creep up to 100 or 150 yards then blast the robot plane out of the sky.

Ignorance Is Bliss

ADDY, Wash., June 23 — (AP).—Four-year-old Eddie Staeheli nonchalantly twirling a snake by the tail, inquired: "Where did this thing come from?" At his mother's horrified shout, Eddie gave the snake a toss and his father killed it. It was a rattlesnake.

White Feather Movement Affected Italy

LONDON, June 23 — (CP Cable) —The House of Lords was told yesyesterday Prime Minister believes believes the passing of the "white feather" resolution by the Oxford University's Union in 1933 had a "decisive influence' on Mussolini's decision to take Italy into the war

The resolution pased by the University's famous debating society said "This house will in no circumstances fight for its King and country."

Maj.-Gen. Lord Mottistone said Mr. Churchill told him:

"The effect of the resolution was shattering on the Continent—shattering to our prestige. We have actual proof now that Mussolini was so affected by it that he definitely came to the conclusion that Britain might be counted out. It is probable it had a decisive influence on his decision to bring Italy into the war on the side of Germany."

Lord Mottistone commented: "The yonug men at Oxford who passed that resolution very nearly decreed the downfall of Britain and her Empire."

He made the disclosure of Mr. Churchill's asserted belief in moving an amendment to the Education Bill that children should be taught "the right and duty of a citizen is to defend his native land."

Election Coming

EDMONTON, June 23—(CP)—The Edmonton Journal in a newspage story yesterday said "political circle here were stirred today by a strong rumor that a provincial general election will be called, possibly in August." The newspaper said "dates mentioned are Aug. 17 or 24."

4 Servicemen Kinsmen Guests

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — (ENS).—The second regular meeting of the newly formed Kinsmen's Club with nearly a full attendance of members, was held at Villa Trent with President Forrest Dennis in the chair.

The club was honored in having as their guests Chief Petty Officer Nadoo Reynolds of the Royal Navy, Sergeant James Russel, who was wounded in Italy on January 5 and invalided home, Pilot Officer J. J. Kelly, who has just returned from overseas and Frank Smith, who for medical reasons, was released from active service.

A goodwill communication to the new club from the Campbellford Rotary Club was received and a motion passed stating that the brotherly spirit between the two service club was mutual.

Kinsman William Callaghan suggested street dance on July 22 and it was thought that a July date could be arranged. Kinsman Ron Hagell reported on the proposed wading pool for children and Kinsman Roy Barnum and Kinsman Dr. Ward Baker will interview the Board of Health and have the water tested. Difficulties in regard to immediate installation have been met, as permission must be obtained from Ottawa re placing stoplogs, but it was felt these are only temporary and the work can be started soon.

With the monthly objective about accomplished in two days, Kinsman Robert Anderson reported on the 'Milk For Britain Fund.' Kinsman Harold Dorher reported for the sports committee and Vice-President Jack Fink spoke on the proposal to hold charter night in the near future.

President Forrest Dennis declared the charter membership closed at thirty-three members. He made returned service men especially welcome and announced that the next meeting will be held on July 5 at 6.45.

Free France And Freed France

It is now almost three weeks since United Nations forces invaded the Normandy peninsula, and as it is obvious that they are not going to be driven out again, the French people in that district are beginning to show signs of unequivocal friendship toward them. Many people were surprised that our troops were not greeted with wild enthusiasm by the Normans; the explanation lies partly in an aspect of the situation which we in this country have not fully grasped, and partly in the Norman character. For anything that the Normans knew to the contrary the invasion attempt might simply have been another Dieppe, and if they had declared themselves too strongly they might have been harshly punished by the Germans. And the Normans have the reputation of being the glummest, most suspicious and most phlegmatic of all Frenchmen; they do not commit themselves readily to anything, even to liberation.

They were stirred, however, by the visit to their shores of General Charles de Gaulle, and they made it clear that many of them, if not a majority, look upon him as the French fighting leader. It is equally obvious that General de Gaulle has cast himself for that part, and is determined that he will not allow his authority to be questioned by anyone. He has always been a hard man to deal with, and now that armies of liberation are actually on French soil he is more thorny than ever. He apparently wants to minimize two points which are perfectly clear to Britain and the U.S.: first, that he has no army fighting in France, and second, that France was utterly defeated by the Germans and must be rescued bodily, as a defeated nation is. He claims privileges and jurisdictions which have no firm foundation. It is obvious that his intentions are for the good of France, but he makes no attempt to work closely with those who are actually giving France back her liberty.

When de Gaulle visited France he took members of his Committee with him, and left them behind to set up a political control of civil affairs. This was cool, to say the least of it, but as he got away with it we must count it as a coup d'etat. The de Gaulle group plans to name key men for political affairs in each region as it is liberated, and these representatives will be appointed by the 'provisional government'; they do not expect to elect any officials until all France is free.

The men whom de Gaulle has left behind in Normandy have shown themselves anxious to co-operate with the army of liberation in every way possible, but so far they have not run counter to Allied Civil Affairs; when Cherbourg is in our hands it will probably be necessary to make clear exactly what de Gaulle's men are to do, and what is to be left to our own organization.

Clearly it is desirable that the invasion should not suffer any embarrassment from General de Gaulle's unwillingness to recognize any authority but his own. The British Government has begun talks with de Gaulle's French Committee of National Liberation, and Washington—which has not recognized de Gaulle officially—is being kept informed of what goes on. Let us hope that these talks will clear up the matter before the confusion becomes dangerous.

A World Police Force

Last week this paper reported the death in Wales of Baron Davies of Llandinam, who was well-known as one of the great coal-owners of the British Isles, and also as an indefatigable worker in the interests of public health. Lord Davies and his two sisters founded the King Edward VII Welsh National Memorial Association many years ago to fight tuberculosis in the Principality, and this was the direct forerunner and model for the Public Health Tuberculosis Act in Britain. By a tragic coincidence it was tuberculosis which killed Lord Davies himself. Early this year he presented a mobile X-ray unit at Cardiff, and offered himself as the first person to be X-rayed. The specialists who were watching this demonstration were surprised to find a serious condition in one of his lungs which he had not previously suspected, and it was too late to save his life. Thus the man who did much to wipe out the great scourge of Wales fell a victim to it himself at the last.

But Lord Davies was even better known for his work in behalf of an international police force than he was as a public health enthusiast. It was in 1919 that he first put forward this idea, and his suggestion was that each nation should have "a sufficient army to maintain internal order and furnish its quota when the League of Nations should require it". He also insisted that no nation should employ a new weapon of war, and each should provide the league with an adequate force for immediate use. He worked on this scheme for many years, sometimes with hopes of success and sometimes through periods of profound discouragement. The gradual disintegration of the League made the realization of this plan even more unlikely, but Lord Davies did not entirely lose heart In 1932 he published a full account of his work and his beliefs in this matter, which was called The Problem of The Twentieth Century; in that book he said of the international police force ideal: "It conforms with the natural course of human development. It is obviously the next step in the evolution of the international system. It is the road mapped out by human experience toward the haven of security, and the only safe path to the Elysian fields of disarmament and peace". It is not impossible that some of Lord Davies' ideas on this matter may be put into action in the post-war world, for force may show the wisdom of his advice where reason failed.

An Imported Prejudice

There is very little prejudice against coloured people in Great Britain, where men and women of all races and from all parts of the Empire have long been accustomed to meet for business, or as students, or as travellers. The coal-black African and the Indian in his turban attract little attention there, and are treated precisely as everyone else is treated. It will be recalled that Paul Robeson played Othello in London fully ten years before he played it in his own country, and at the time there was an outcry in some sections of the American press against his acting with a white cast. Now, it seems, the great number of Americans in England has infected some English people with American snobbery.

Leary Constantine, a coloured man who is well known in the West Indies as a cricketer, has been in England for some time working for the Ministry of Labour; he supervises the work of a large group of his countrymen. Last July Constantine made a reservation for himself and his wife at the Imperial Hotel in London, and after he had stayed there for some time the management asked him to leave The management explained to the Ministry of Labour, which enquired into the matter, that it had a large number of American guests, and they "did not want niggers in the hotel". The matter is now being investigated in court, and Sir Patrick Hastings, one of the most brilliant counsel in the United Kingdom, is appearing for Constantine.

It is always a great pity for one country to import the prejudices of another. Every nation has its foolish and unjust ideas which are desperately hard to root out of the native soil. When they appear elsewhere, they should be crushed before they have time to establish themselves.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Nylon rope, we read, is 60 per cent. stronger than the hemp kind. Good news for the cigar trade.

Herpetologists report a scarcity of snakes in Ontario this summer There is a scarcity of snakebite cure, too.

The Ottawa Journal reassures us that "the Rev. Mr. Douglas, who will be Saskatchewan's new ruler, is no Robespierre". We challenge this. He is certainly very green, and his supporters have assured us that he is incorruptible.

A contemporary says that the Republican Party in the U.S. has been in disrepute ever since Herbert Hoover promised the nation a chicken in every pot and gave them a pretty kettle of fish instead.

Says the Ottawa Citizen: "One of the linguists reports that in Eskimo 'I love you' is 'univiggsterntuinalfina juanjuarisguijk'. Perhaps that's how it sounds from an Eskimo lady who is chewing the hide for a pair of boots".

Early Schools In Peterborough

By FRANK DOBBIN
(Part 2)

LARGELY as a private enterprise a building was built for use as a school on the ground afterward used for the Central School, Murray street. Built of hewn logs and comfortable for many years it was the representative school of the district. In it the higher as well as the rudimentary branches of education were taught. It was conducted by Rev. S. Armour, the first Episcopal clergyman in Peterborough. Afterwards it became the Grammar School of the district and a sum of public moneys was donated for its support. Rev. R. C. Taylor, afterward taught this school, and he was familiarly and affectionately known as Parson Taylor.

At that time the governing bodies of the schools were the Grammar School Trustee Board and the Peterborough Common Schools Board. At the beginning of 1852 these were united in the Grammar and Union School Board and the men set about improving the facilities and accommodation.

The English Wesleyan Methodist Society had some time before built at the corner of Hunter and Sheridan streets a rather important church in its dimensions and accommodation. Used for some time as place of worship and meeting but the denomination seemed not to attract to its fold a large number, and eventually the building was purchased by the school board and fitted for purposes.

Being a frame structure, it could be readily altered. An additional floor was built in the auditorium, which with the basement gave three floors. The upper floor was devoted to the highest flights of the Grammar School. The two lower floors to the Common School pupils. There are men living today, who gained such education as they acquired within the shelter of this old building.

IT is within the recollection of many that the principals of this school, in his best days, were John and Thomas Gordon, two brothers. The first had charge of the Grammar School and the other the Common School. Both were excellent teachers and systemized the rules of studies and classes and brought order into what had been a rather desultory routine.

From its roll of scholars came many of the professional and business men of the town and who were prominent in its affairs. The writer of this article also passes under the rod within its hallowed walls.

Early in 1857 the inevitable had come about. Too many pupils for the space at disposal. Besides one or two fires that started in the building from stoves and other causes made people fearful of the possibilities that might take place. Agitation began for the betterment of the schools. Public discussion was held and ultimately it was decided to erect a new school to be known as the Central School, (the most easterly of the two buildings now on the site on Murray street). It was at first proposed to place the school at the corner of Water and Murray streets, opposite St. Paul's Church but wiser council prevailed and the park was saved from the instrusion. The building was opened in 1860, being, as was admitted, the very finest school in the whole Midland District, and a source of pride and satisfaction to the town.

To provide the money two town lots were sold, realizing about $800. The Clergy Reserve money appropriated to the town for 1856, nearly $5,000 was used and a credit opened in the old Commercial Bank for the necessary balance. The entire cost of the building fitted and furnished, amounted to $16,258.

A CURIOUS feature of the financing for this building was that, while debentures were issued, no provision was make for a sinking fund, and as the debentures fell due new ones were issued to replace them. The debt was not lessened indeed when a round up was called for, it was found that not only had none of the original debentures been cancelled, but that it required $9,842 to satisfy the original issue of $8,400. Finaly the amount was consolidated with some other obligations and eventually paid. It was the irregularity in the financing of this municipal enterprise that brought about the institution of what was known as the Peterborough Town Trust, continued to this day, and whereby the obligations incurred are financed and dealt with entirely outside functions of the Council. In the breadth of the Dominion only one other city has a similar arrangement.

The transition from the old and shabby church-school was hailed with delight and satisfaction by both teachers and pupils. "Goin' to school" became a pleasure instead of a drudge. Corporal punishment had been a rule, it was now modified and used as a deterrant instead of a punishment. But more of this further on. And as we are considering the school buildings alone, reference need not be made to those who taught from time to time. In 1856 the number of pupils attending the Common School is given as 498. By 1864, (three years after the opening of the new school) the number had grown to 1058, and was taken advantage of. The course of study was simple though varied considering that the school life of a pupil did not carry on but for a few years. In 1868 a further advance was made and the building was heated by steam.

WITHIN recent years certain persons have written to the press stating the horror with which they viewed the whipping of small offenders, by or in the hands of the police—indeed a reluctant police. And as a contrast to the ideas of such benign persons a fact or two may be stated as to the method of maintaining discipline in the local schools fifty years ago. Not that pupils were factious, but that it was the rule to punish for neglect of preparation of lessons and for poorly prepared tasks. Also for any infringements of duty and procedure.

Up to the year 1869 we had a succession of schoolmasters who came, saw and conquered. Two of these were vigorous exponents of the doctrine of flagellation, and practiced what they preached. A J. C. Patterson came to teach the fourth and third books. The position and place in study of any pupil was defined by stating the book from which he studied. The classes running from the First Book, or Primer to the Fourth Book. There were side studies in geography, grammar, arithmetic and a sprinkling of history. That is in the Common School branches. Other and higher flights were inculcated upstairs.

IN the matter of flogging and punishment Mr. Patterson was an artist. The boy who offended was whaled with elegance and precision. None of your rough-and-scramble affairs, but punishment administered neatly and ever thoroughly. He understood, so it seemed, the anatomy of the human body and picked his spots that the work was effective. Boys were thrashed for what they did and oftener for what they didn't. Either offence, it seemed, deserved adequate punishment. He was an ardent politician of the time and surroundings, an admirer of Hon. George Brown, and once indeed, he carried his predilictions into practice. Mr. Brown came to run in the Riding of Peterborough, and while the campaign was on certain local wags made an effigy of the famous politician and hung it by the neck to a tree on St. John's Church grounds, the tree over-hanging the street. Morning after, assembling for school, the boys found the effigy and stoned it to hearts content, literally knocking the stuffing out of it. Thirty of the most reckless were late for school and paid the penalty by a thrashing of phenomenal severity. This teacher, in after years, was known as the Hon. J. C. Patterson, for some time Lieut. Governor of Manitoba. Reproached by one of his pupils for his early severity, he replied that he was sure that where he whipped there must have been deserving circumstances to warrant it.

IF Mr. Patterson were an artist, his successor, Robert Fairbairn was a genius. As a connoisseur he left Mr. Patterson laps behind. His was the motto of the Irish hedge schoolmaster, who said that if the mind wouldn't mark, faith, he'd soon mark the back. A Scotchman, red headed, impulsive and erratic it seemed that he often flailed first and then enquired into the facts afterwards. He brought with him and introduced a tawse, a modification of the Russian knout, wooden handle, and seven or eight stripes of leather hanging from the handle. His favourite method of punishment was to call the offender to the platform, and while towering over the small figure, hold it by the collar of the coat and search with the tawse up and down for the soft spots. The writhing victim yelling the meanwhile. One infraction of class rules always brought severe whipping. An ink bottle with the contents frozen would be placed on the stove, the cork not being removed. Presently the cork popped and the inky contents flew to the ceiling and about the room. The ceiling over the stove was perfectly black with seasons of explosions. On one occasion Mr. Fairbairn whipped the entire class of 28 boys because no one boy would tell who had placed the bottle on the stove. He was familiarly referred to as "Scotch Bob."

It will be plain that such methods for an absence of harmony between teacher and pupil. Indeed was bred strong resentment. On occasion the class rose in rebellion, and slates and books were hurled at the teacher, and a general ruction ensued that was only quelled by bringing up the reserves in the persons of teachers from the upper rooms. The rising was so complete and sweeping that there were too many to whip as a reprisal.

THIS incident recalls the names others of those concerned, the chief Soviet being Fred Winch, Jimmy Harrowman, Charley Niblock, K. Hodgins, Fred Hall, and a sparkling of lesser lights. It was gay while it lasted and its memories haunted the old school rooms for many years.

Flailings were accepted as a matter of course In the many ways mentioned, if a boy did not get at least three threshings every two days he felt neglected and if a week passed without a whaling he was being treated with indifference. And that positively could not be tolerated.

Once, after a particular series of severe whippings, four irate fathers came to the school, called the teacher outside and gave him his choice of abating these punishments to a reasonable extent or taking a bath in the river.

On opening the new school rules were made and adhered to, that punishments would only be administered by the principal. Whippings at once fell off over ten to one. Under and amidst the more wholesome surrounds, the school began to make progress.

Floods Of Talk

(HALIFAX MAIL)

THIS Dominion—in the language of the hustings, "this Canada of ours"—is described by some politicians and not a few non-politicians as a "young and vigorous country". When one studies comparative statistics of achievement and development, however, one is at a loss to understand just where our youth and vigour is displayed.

We speak with tolerance and some pity of the older and "effete" countries—but when we get down to brass tacks we realize that the older countries of this world have far outstripped this "young and vigorous" country in many directions that really matter to the enlightenment, comfort and well-being of the citizenship.

Many people in Canada no doubt believe we have been leaders in the field of, say, social reform. So far from being leaders, we have been followers, trailing the field away back in the ruck. We still trail the field. We are going to go on trailing the field so long as politicians are content to talk social reform and do little or nothing that is really effective to produce it. When the people of this Province, as Nova Scotians and as Canadians, study sets of statistics produced in Government blue books, they are left with the melancholy feeling that both provincially and in the Dominion field their own achievements and developments frequently suffer by comparison with those of other lands.

Look, for example, at the library statistics. Why, this Province—that "intellectual" Province—has not begun to set up anything resembling a commendable library system. We read actually less books per capita per year than any other part of the country, and in the Capital City of the Province we spend "nine cents per person per year for libraries" while other cities of comparable size in Canada are spending all the way from 58 to 79 cents per person per year for these purposes. In some Canadian cities more than a dollar per year per person is spent on library facilities. And even this sum compared with what is spent in certain other countries is not, as Dickens would have said, such as "to justify much national boasting".

Or look at the figures in the field of scientific research. For these purposes—

Russia spends $3.00 per capita;

The United States spends $2.40;

Great Britain spends 70 cents;

And Canada—this "young and vigorous country"—spends the munificent sum of 29 cents!

How under the sun do we expect to prosper, develop and advance in the face of neglect and indifference of that character?

The curse of this country is political tub-thumping and demagogic politics. Talk, talk, talk...incessantly...interminably.

The greatest "industry" in this country is the production of Hansard, the official debates at Ottawa. Never was there such industry in Canada as that displayed by politicians talking to their constituents through the pages of Hansard.

Oh, we have been lavish enough in expenditures on unnecessary projects...if they "paid off" at the ballot-box—but in the "extremities" of this country, in particular, and certainly down here in the Maritimes, projects that should have been carried to completion long ago are not even in the blue-print stage.

To anyone who has travelled a bit over this world, it is humiliating to see what has been done by the old and "effete" peoples and by newer countries that have not anything approaching Canada's wealth and potentialities.

We talk about planning for the post-war period! There are enough necessary, worthwhile projects staring Public Authority in the face in this Dominion to banish unemployment from Canada for the next quarter of a century.

MEMORIAL TO BINYON

(Brantford Expositor)

At Oxford University a movement is in progress for the founding of a memorial to the late Laurence Binyon. This is an appropriate, worthy, and, as it now chances, timely project. The British Museum expert who was also an outstanding poet, who became Professor of Poetry at Harvard, President of the English Association and President of the English Verse-Speaking Association, is deserving of some lasting tangible tribute.

Particularly in these crucial and costly hours do England and the English-speaking world derive inspiration and comfort from his immortal lines:

"They shall grow not old, as we are left, grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun, and in the morning,
We will remember them."

DIG FOR HISTORY

People of Britain are to be asked to dig for history.

Thousands of amateur archaelogists, to act as observers, will be required if the Council of British Archaeology are able to carry out plans they are making for a nation-wide survey after the war.

In a guide to be sent round to local authorities the Council tell observers some of the things they can look for wherever earth is disturbed. Here are some of them:

Any foundations or floors, except of course, those of modern buildings, just destroyed by bombing). They may be only beaten earth, stained black with charcoal, or elaborate mosaics.

Objects, such as tools, weapons or ornaments of stone, flint, bone or bronze. Human, burials, or large number of animal bones. Coins of silver or bronze. And gold objects, which are subject to the law of treasure trove and finders are rewarded by their full value. — London Evening Standard.

C.C.F. RECALL SYSTEM

The most striking thing about the remarkable recall procedure of the C.C.F. party is that it makes the member merely the representative of his own party in his constituency and not the representative of all residents as at present.

It works this way. Before being elected, or even nominated, the member writes out a letter of resignation which he signs and places in the hands of the constituency executive. Thereafter if his actions do not suit 100 members of the party in the riding they can petition that he be recalled. Then a convention is called, at which there must be one delegate from each of 60 per cent of the polls and a two-thirds vote of that assembly can enforce his resignation.

Thus, for example, in a constituency where there are 100 polls, if one delegate from each of 60 polls comes to the convention and if 40 of them vote for his recall the member is automatically removed from the Legislature.

And so, 40 men in such a constituency can offset or undo the votes of several thousand who elected the member.—Regina Leader-Post.

When Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.

He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. (Matt. 16: 13-18.)

BRIDE SHOULD HAVE OWN HOME

Taking Girl To Live With His Parents, Always Grooms Supreme Folly; Ends in Battles

DEAR MIX DIX: I am married and have a little 5-month-old girl whom my husband loves dearly. He loves me, too, and is good to me, but I am so miserable that I am thinking of getting a divorce. The conflict is not between him and me, but between me and his family.

We have been living with them the largest portion of our marriage, except for six months which was the only happy time we have had. His family do not try to get along with me. His mother especially insults me. Often she makes heartbreaking remarks to me and expects me to overlook them.

It is pathetic how my husband wants us to like each other, but we just can't. When we have quarrels, he takes up his mother instead of me. What complicates the matters is than my husband's father and mother are old and really need the care of younger people. We are building a new house and they are determined to come and live with us, but I feel that I just can't stand it. I am thinking of taking my baby and leaving and get a job. What shall I do?

VERY WORRIED

Old and Young Miserable Living Together

ANSWER: The Chinese ideograph of a fight is two women in one house. Until the millennium arrives and all young women are hatched out with their angel feathers on and all old women turn into saints, who enjoy seeing their precious, darling baby boys pay more attention to their chits of wives than they do to them, the supreme folly that any man can commit will continue to be taking his bride home to live with his people. And it will always end in the same way—in a fight between the two women.

You have tried it and you have found out that wife jealousy and mother jealousy spell misery to all concerned. So make some other arrangement for the old people instead of taking them to live in the new house. It will be far better, even if you have to put the old people in some sort of a home. It always seems a cruel thing when parents cannot spend their old age in their children's homes, but we

Mrs. G. Harris Is Hostess To Bible Class

Mrs. G. Harris, Princess street, was hostess to the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School for their June meeting.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. W. K. Sloane, who chose "Prayer" as her theme, "Sweet Hour of Prayer" was a theme hymn, and the Scripture lesson based upon prayer (Psalm 15), was read by Mrs. E. Kent.

"Day is Dying in the West" was sung in duet by Mrs. Cooper and Miss Gwen Cooper. Mrs. Roy Watson in her reading "Lord Teach us to Pray" also followed the theme, while Mrs. George Rowe gave a concrete message in "A Daily Prayer."

All joined in the Prayer hymn "Jesus Took My Burden," and Mrs. Hess brought a timely thought in her reading "Never Be Anxious."

The chair was taken by the president, Mrs. E. Kitney for business, when the class decided to sew on bales to be sent to Russia through the Red Shield. The annual class picnic was planned in detail and will be held at St. Charles' Point, on Wednesday, July 19.

Mrs. George Butcher had charge of the delightful program which followed, when the solo "My Task," was sung by Mrs. Cooper, who responded to an encore with "O Perfect Love." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. James Goldie. The humorous reading by Mrs. Butcher, "A Bad Mistake," was a welcome variation. Everyone joined in and enjoyed the contest consisting of jumbled names of war countries, which was won by Mrs. N. Welch and Miss F. Vickers.

A delicious lunch was served by the social committee, and the meeting dismissed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Craik.

Surprise Party Given Couple

BAILIEBORO, June 23—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Harland Seens were surprised Wednesday evening on the occasion of their fifth wedding anniversary, when a number of their relatives gathered and presented them with a floral tilt-top card table.

A program of community singing was followed by a mock-wedding procession when little Annette Elliott acted as flower girl and Arlene Bateman and Ross Elliott as bride and groom. An address was read by Miss Clara Seens while Miss Sheila Ritchie and Mrs. Arthur Bateman made the presentation. The evening was spent in music and games following which lunch was served.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Based on the first 10 weeks of the major baseball season, statistics published last night show the most effective pitching by the Cleveland Indians in the American League and the St. Louis Cardinals in the National circuit. Cleveland twirlers had held opposing hitters to a mere .219 batting average while the Cards allowed batsmen to secure a .240 showing. New York Yankee hurlers and those of the Washington Senators have been the most yielding in the American League, Yankee moundsmen having been touched for 30 home runs. In the National loop, the Chicago Cub pitchers have been clubbed for a .274 average. Forty-five home runs have been scored in games against the New York Giants.

A big upset occurred yesterday at Chicago in the women's western open golf tournament when 18-year-old Betty Haemerle of St. Louis defeated defending champion Patty Berg one up in 19 holes. In to-day's semi-final round Miss Haemerle faces another test when she meets Babe Didriksen Zaharias the former champion.

Baron Grattan, Jr., owned and driven by F. Hamlin of New Hamburg, won two of three heats to capture the free-for-all feature of yesterday's harness card at Peterson Park, Mitchell, Ont., his best time for the mile being 2:11¾. Milton's Minto Harvester also captured the 2.24 trot.

Outboards Whip Quakers 10-7 At The Bowl

In a close, fast played game, Outboard Marine defeated Quaker Oats 10-7 in a Ladies' Softball league game at Ashburnham Bowl Thursday evening.

The Marines, using some talent new to the league led the attack in the first inning 2-1. Quakers also returned with one more in the 4th, while Marines also gained a run in the 4th bringing the score to 3-2. The Porridge team attacked keenly in the 5th, turning in two counters, and went on in the 6th to register 3 more. Against this, the Marines worked one run in the 6th totalling the count 7-4, with Quaker Oats on top. Marines whipped back in the 7th however, gaining 3 runs, and continued to head Quakers in the 8th, when they completed 3 more, making the final count.

The high spot of the game was Vera Mitchell's slick first base chore for the Marines. Few and far between were the balls that got past her and she played a very neat game.

Maxine Monson, a comparatively new member of the Marines' crew, turned in some smooth mound work for that team, fanning four and walking one.

Gertrude Masters did the firing for the Porridge gals, with 5 strikeouts and one walk.

The teams:

Outboard Marines—Eileen Young c, Ollie Smith 2b, Vera Mitchell 1b, Betty Smith cf, Marjorie Smith 3b, Maxime Monson p, Bertha Phillips ss, Rita Barnes rf, Edna Smith lf.

Hindu Horror Coming

Nanjo Singh, former Indian wrestler and former holder of the British Empire championship will wrestle Killer John Katan at the Tunney wrestling show in the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night. Singh, exponent of the deadly cobra hold and one of the present crop of mat bad men, has been causing a sensation in recent matches in Toronto and this clash with the unruly Katan who has been riding roughshod over all opposition here should be one of the wildest bouts of the year.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Followers of girls' softball, and their number is legion, have a couple of treats coming up tomorrow when the Trenton R.C.A.F. girls' softball team will meet the Aircraft girls at 2.30 o'clock in Riverside Park in an exhibition game and this will be followed by a City League game between Aircraft and Westclox at the Bowl at 6.45 o'clock. The afternoon battle should be an entertaining exhibition by two strong teams. The visiting outfit, all members of the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. hail from all over the country and comprise in its membership girls who have starred in the game in their home towns before enlisting. The Trenton team has won a reputation as a fast-fielding and hard hitting girls' team and they will undoubtedly prove strong opposition for the classy Aircraft who are in second place in the local league and right on the heels of the leading Westclockers. Either Norma Strickand or Marg Selkirk will do the pitching for the Aircraft against the Air Force girls with Annette De Carlo handling the catching duties. The Trenton girls have not announced their starting twirler. The game should attract a big crowd of fans for hte first afternoon battle of the season.

* * * * * *

The evening game to be played at the Bowl between the unbeaten Westclockers and Aircraft is a postponed fixture between the two leading teams and it should be a honey. The Big Bens and Aircraft usually play their best ball when stacked up against each other and the battles between them offer the most attractive softball of the season. They usually run along practically on even terms and the final margin is never large. Both teams want the win, Westclox to strengthen their hold on first place and Aircraft because it will put them up on even terms with the Big Bens at the top of the loop ladder. Aircraft's pitcher depends upon which hurler draws the afternoon assignment against the Trenton R.C.A.F. girls while it is almost certain that Westclox will send Isobel Bullock in against the Aircrafters with Jean Castle as the other half of the Big Bens' battery. The game will be called at 6.45 o'clock and the biggest crowd of the current season should be on hand for the clash.

Good Battle, Tonight

Westclox incidentally have a battle on their hands tonight when they meet Brintons in a Girls' League game at the Bowl. The meeting between the two clubs who won the honors last season, the Big Bens taking the senior title and Brintons the intermediate pennant should produce a lot of good baseball. Brintons always play good ball against the Westclockers and when the two teams met earlier in the season the intermediate champs made it a fight all the way and were only beaten out by a last-moment rally by the Big Bens who have long had a habit of coming through with a Merriwell finish. Both teams expect to be able to field their strongest lineup tonight which is a sign that they are taking the game seriously. Just who will get the pitching call is a bit uncertain but Joyce Withers, young Westclox hurler is likely to do the throwing for the Big Bens and it will probably be Bernice Stinson for the intermediate champs. This clash can be listed as one of the better games of the season and it rates a real Friday night crowd at the bowl.

* * * * * *

And speaking of crowds there should be one at Riverside Park a week from tomorrow when a picked team representing the Toronto Royce Avenue plant of the C.G.E. will meet a team of All-Stars selected from the local C.G.E. works in a benefit game for the British War Victims Fund. The game is set for 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, July 1st, and it is announced that every cent of the proceeds will be turned over to the fund. The Toronto C.G.E. bunch includes a number of crack softballers and their team is said to be decidedly strong in all departments while C.G.E. will be able to field a team made up of most of the outstanding stars of the City Softball League for in addition to the Switchgear team many of the players of the Plazas, St. Peter's and U.E.W. teams also work in the big plant. The result is the Peterborough works should be able to line up an outfit that will give the visitors a busy afternoon. With the proceeds going to such a splendid cause as the British War Victims' Fund there should be a huge crowd out for this attraction, one of the highlights of the season. A draw for a Kenwood blanket will be included in the proceedings.

Race Tightens Up

Recent events in the City Softball League have materially tightened up the race. Switchgear by losing to Soldiers have left themselves in position to be tied for first place by Plazas and the U.E.W. by their win over the Saints last night are now only a game behind the Soldiers and Saints who are tied for the third slot. The standing is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Switchgear | 8 | 1 | .889 |
| Plazas | 6 | 2 | .750 |
| St. Peter's | 2 | 5 | .286 |
| Soldiers | 2 | 5 | .286 |
| U.E.W. | 1 | 6 | .143 |

The program for next week sees St. Peter's clashing with Switchgear Monday night, Plazas tangling with Soldiers Tuesday, the Union and St. Peter's meeting again Wednesday and Plazas and U.E.W. on Thursday.

There was a lot of baseball in the big show yesterday and a number of unusual features. One was that the veteran Jim Tobin got credit for his second no-hit game of the season, although this was an abbreviated affair with action halted at the end of the fifth with the Braves leading the Phillies 5 to 0. Another outstanding event was the fact that Bill Zuber of the Yanks became the first hurler to shutout the Washington Senators this season. Zuber did the trick yesterday, holding the Washington crew to four hits. At that he was due for a good performance for it was his first win since May 2. St. Louis browns lost a little ground by being beaten 10 to 3 by the Chicago White Sox while the Boston Red Sox were breaking even with the Philadelphia Athletics. Whit Wyatt of the Brooklyn Dodgers managed to complete a ball game for the first time this season, holding the Giants to six hits and the Bums won easily by 6 to 4. Pittsburg Pirates found some bats with some hits in them yesterday and had 26 blows in a doubleheader with Cincinnati, beating the Reds twice. One of the wins was a victory for Rip Sewell, his ninth of the season. He has been beaten three times.

Union Outfit Upsets Saints 13 to 8

They are making history every night in the City Softball League. Wednesday Switchgear suffered their first loss after winning eight straight games. Last night U.E.W. garnered their first win after six straight losses. It was scored at the expense of St. Peter's, who were beaten 13 to 8 and beaten all the way at that. And to make the occasion really historical Pitcher Rosy McPherson of the Union team threw out a hitter on a bunt.

There was no fluke about the U.E.W. victory. St. Peter's broke fast from the barrier when Bas Murphy's three-run homer in the first half of the first gave them a nice start. The Union club, however took that in their stride by coming back in their half of the initial frame and bunching hits off Gene Reynolds to drive in seven runs. They were never headed after that.

The Saints did manage to close the gap until they were down only 7 to 6 but U.E.W. put together another big inning in the fourth to score five runs and that about settled the argument. Strangely enough all but two of the runs scored were pushed across in the first four innings.

Big Mac McPherson, without making much use of the slow ball that he featured in his other starts pitched very effectively, and got better as he went along. He struck out five Saints and kept their blows well scattered.

The Union team had their batting togs on and they stepped into Gene Reynolds' offerings with a will, especially in the first frame when they had a cluster of six blows, including a lusty triple by Griffin with the bases loaded.

Running catches in the outfield by Mike Conroy for the Saints and Vic Griffin for the Union were fielding features.

The Saints had a good start. Condon walked, Courneya singled to left and after Conroy had fouled out trying to bunt and Hollingsworth had flied to centre, Murphy rifled a homer in the slot between left and centre, sending Condon and Courneya in ahead of him.

It didn't take Union long to wipe that out. Platt bunted safely and Quigley walked. Doughty popped out but Murduff walked to load the sacks and Girard singled to right scoring Platt. Griffin slammed a triple to deep centre clearing the bases. Isaac singled to centre scoring Griffin. Jackson beat out a roller to third, McPherson doubled past third, scoring Isaac. Platt flied to right and McPherson scored on a high throw to the plate by Hollingsworth.

St. Peter's got two in the second on singles by Caccavella and Reynolds and Jackson's miss of Condon's fly after a run.

Conroy's safe bunt, a sacrifice by Hollingsworth on which Conroy went all the way to third and a low throw home by Doughty gave the Saints another run in the third. U.E.W. got that one back in their half on Griffin's single, a wild pitch and McPherson's single.

Then the winners put the game on ice by registering five times in the fourth. Quigley got a life on Murphy's wide throw. Doughty bunted and Reynolds threw wide to second, the runners pulling up on second and third. Murduff doubled to left scoring the pair and ran home when Girard doubled. Griffin's single to centre, a bad throw by Stewart and an outfield fly sent two more runs over before the side was retired.

St. Peter's got the last two runs of the game in the seventh on successive triples by Condon and Courneya and Conroy's fly to Murduff.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 23 — (AP) — With summer football practice due to start within a few weeks at a lot of Colleges, reports have trickled in here from the south that: (1) Shorty McWilliams, the Meridan, Miss., High School sensation, will play for Mississippi State, not Army which was hot after him; (2) Georgia, which was fined $500 for using transfer players last fall, won't be in danger again. Wally Butts has done such a good job that the Bulldogs will have a "B" Varsity playing a separate schedule; (3) Alabama got that 250-pound prospect Auburn wanted so badly and has plenty of others to go with him; (4) Clemson, V.M.I., and Tulane also have done right well collecting material.

Observation Post

The summer figure skating season is under way at Lake Placid, N.Y., and St. Paul has scheduled a curling bonspiel for July 1-4 . . . and why not? It will be another month before the distillers can make it worth while to put the ice in glasses.

Frank Shimek, who was quite a basketballer at Iowa U. 20-odd years ago, rolled several better-than-600 bowling scores last winter at Burlington, Ia., where he's working at the Iowa Ordnance Plant. And he recently took time off to golf and shot a snappy 66 . . . Bill Doak, the old-time Cards' pitcher, missed a no-hit game in 1920 and another in 1922 by failing to cover first base on infield taps.

Jim Tobin Hurls Second No-Hit Game

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sport Writer

BOSTON, June 23. — (AP).—Pitching two-no-hit ball games in less than that many months is thrilling, Jim Tobin, Boston Braves' knuckleballer admits — but he laments that a total of only 4,003 saw him perform these prodigious feats.

A crowd of 2,556 was almost lost in the vast Braves field stands yesterday when Tobin retired all but two Phillies during a double-header nightcap that was called after the fifth inning because of darkness. April 27, also here, only 1,447 cash customers saw Jim turn back the Dodgers without a hit over the regulation nine-inning distance.

"Where were all the fans, where's the photographers?" the grinning Tobin wise-cracked, when baseball writers swarmed in to congratulate him for his No. 2 no-hitter. They explained that threatening weather probably frightened away many of his admirers and that failing light had sent the photographers scurrying long before his latest epic was halted.

"Never mind how many saw you do it, you'll go into the record book with Johnny Vander Meer, the only other major leaguer to turn in two no-hitters the same season," a consoling writer said. Then he asked Tobin: "Don't you wish you could finish up the last four innings?"

"No," Tobin replied. "Let Vandy continue to be acclaimed as 'double no-hit.' I'm satisfied to be known as 'one and five-ninths no-hit Tobin."

Anyone but this self-effacing 31-year-old right-hander probably would bemoan the act that he did not have three no-hit performances in his 1944 record for Tobe turned back those same Phillies with one hit here April 3.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Black-haired Barney Ross, United States marine hero of the Second Great War, dethroned Tony Canzoneri as world's heavyweight champion 11 years ago to-night at Chicago. Ross won the decision after 10 bitterly contested rounds. He won the welterweight crown in 1935.

SCOUTING HANK?—Captain Henry "Hank" Greenberg, former major league home-run king, now in China doing special service work for the U.S. army, chats with a Chinese laborer. They seem to enjoy the conversation, even though neither understands the other's language. Maybe Captain Hank, with the current diamond situation in mind, is doing a little scouting on the side.

TORONTO, June 23 — (CP). — It's war to the teeth on the soccer front in Toronto, but it looks as though the referee—like papa—is going to pay as usual. Aftermath of the officials' strike for higher fees was a mass, enforced exodus of referees from their posts.

Public opinion, for once, was with the refs, who asked an increase in their fees from $3 to $4, but league officials said they were powerless to raise the ante until the next annual meeting rolls around.

It just goes to show you, the referee has replaced the bison as the most-harried creature on the continent. If they keep getting booted around like this, the day will come when we have to go to a national park to see a member of that rare species—Refereeicus Popbottle Dodgericus.

Life begins at 60:

When a reporter spied aging Jimmy Wright, one-time star centre-half with Beloeil soccer teams in Montreal, he asked him how long he played soccer before retiring. Jimmy, 60 last month, floored him by telling him he hadn't thought of quitting yet.

He started playing regularly in 1897, but had to ease off in 1939. Not because of his age — simply because a guy named Hitler started something that took most of the soccer players away. Now Jimmy can get into only the infrequent game, but he plans to gtt back into it again when the boys return.

Incidentally:

After that triple dead heat in the Carter Handicap, the boys started looking in the record books and found there had been two such three-ply finishes before. The first was at Victoria's Willows Park on September 21, 1940, and the other in Detroit in October, 1942.. ..Red Kress, ebullient Toronto Maple Leaf player, takes on a new role at the Leafs-All Star charity game in August. President Pete Campbell of the club suggested Red might perform the plate umpire's chores that day, since he had seen him on every other spot except behind the plate for Leafs...... They're talking about matching Dave Castilloux and Johnny Greco, two ex-servicemen, in Montreal, but Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick is doubtful it will ever come off. In the first place, he points out, no one has ever been able to determine just who is managing the fighters, there has been so much bickering over them, and a promoter likes to know those things before he gets his fingers burnt.

Toronto Hurler Sixth Victory

By The Associated Press

Alexander Mustaikis of the Toronto Maple Leafs almost became "Alexander the Great" as he came close to hurling a no-hit no-run game last night.

The 32-year-old veteran had a no-hitter until two were out in the eighth, when a single by Jersey City's Mike Schemer not only spoiled it, but his shutout as well. However, Alex notched his sixth victory of the season with a 3-1 triumph over the Jersey City Giants after Toronto dropped the first game of the double-header, 4-2.

Mustaikis helped his own cause with a double and single, batting in a run.

Baltimore increased its first-place lead over the Bisons by defeating Buffalo 6-1, as Bobo Palica allowed the Herd only six hits for his seventh victory.

The Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs batted 14 innings before the Chiefs edged out a 7-6 decision. Trailing 5-0, the Wings tied the score with three in the seventh and two in the eighth, and seemed to have pulled the game out of the fire with a tally in the 13th. But Syracuse tied the count in its hlf, and won out in the next frame when Ben Geraghty and Len Rice singled and Geraghty scored on a wild throw by Catcher Del Rice.

Erie, Pa.—Buster Peaks, 160, Detroit, scored technical knockout over Johnny Seaman, 161, Boston, 6.

Brooklyn Beats Giants Behind Wyatt

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Jim Tobin, after eight years as a major league pitcher, boasted a .503 won-lost percentage to-day, and you can chalk up that .003 surplus to yesterday's no-hitter — his second of the season—against Philadelphia Phillies.

The Boston Brave ace had a tough time hurdling that .500 mark. After losing 21 games in 1942, the most in the league, the veteran knuckleball expert had a lifetime pitching record of 60 wins and 60 losses. Last year he divided 28 decisions to retain his .500 level. Prior to yesterday's game, big Jim had won seven and lost seven for an 82-82 won and lost record.

The hardest-working pitcher in the majors—his 13 complete games is tops for both circuits—allowed only two walks in the abbreviated contest, which as called at the end of five innings because of darkness, with the score 7-0 in Boston's favor.

The Phillies took the opener of the twin-bill 1-0 in fifteen innings on Ron Northey's home run.

Whit Wyatt hurled his first complete game of the campaign, allowing the Giants only six hits as Brooklyn won 10-3 over the New Yorkers.

Pittsburg Takes Two.

Pittsburg took both ends of a double-header from Cincinnati 9-4 and 7-4. Rip Sewell won his ninth game in the opener. Al Rubeling accounted for the second game, hitting his second pinch-hit homer in a week, with two on in the sixth.

Bill Zuber handed Washington Senators their first shutout of the season in their 60th game, doling out four hits as New York Yankees won 4-0.

Philadelphia A's took the second game of a twin-bill 3-2, after Boston Red Sox captured the opener 5-4 to snap the Mackmen's six-game winning streak. Mike Ryba helped himself to his seventh win against one defeat by doubling in the 12th of the curtain-raiser, and scoring on a single by Pete Fox. Bobby Estalella's single with the bases full and two out in the ninth decided the second contest.

Joe Orengo's eighth-inning double which scored Charlie Metro enabled Detroit to edge out Cleveland 4-3 in the fourth one-run margin of the day.

A seven-run outburst in the eighth gave Chicago White Sox an easy 10-3 victory over the league-leading St. Louis Browns.

BRITISH LEARN HOW TO WIN FRIENDS IN FRANCE—British troops, en route to the invasion of Europe, pass the time in transit by studying the booklet issued by the Government and giving helpful hints about France to guide the liberators. These men made their landing at Bernieres-sur-Mer, northwest of Caen, where the fiercest fighting of the invasion has been taking place.

Canadian Tank Soldiers Perform Like Veterans

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN TANKS IN FRANCE, June 23—(CP Cable)—From the beaches at Courseulles and Bernieres to the Caen-Bayeux highway 10 and 12 miles inland, three Canadian tank regiments—the 1st Hussars, London, Ont., the Fort Garry Horse, Winnipeg and the Sherbrooke (Que.) Fusiliers—fought their beachhead battles with the Canadian 3rd Division.

These were their first actions but the crews handled the tanks like armored corps veterans. The support this formation with its Sherman tanks gave the infantry was one of the big factors in the splendid performance of the Canadians in the first thundering week of the invasion when the enemy countered the rapid exploitation of the division with heavy blows at positions northwest of Caen.

Repulse Panzers.

The Canadian tank crews slammed their way through the beach defences at several points, fought German infantry and artillery of the push inland and then bumped good units of German Panzers when tanks battled tanks at point-blank range.

In the assault the most successful landing was made by the 1st Hussars who landed on the beaches at Courseulles where the western Canada brigade—Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Regina Rifles, Canadian Scottish, Victoria—came ashore.

The Hussars came in from a rough sea on time and although the beach obstacles did not bother the tanks much they were practically under the muzzles of German anti-tank and field guns in concrete emplacements and dugouts just back of the beach. They blasted shells at these defences and with the Prairie infantrymen stormed through the sand dunes and worked their way into Courseulles where they helped to clear out the town.

Overcoming elaborate mine fields, they broke into open country behind Courseulles and spread out over farmland with Western Brigade running alongside them or riding on the turrets and hulls. One column struck south-west to Banville and on the Colombiere sur Seulles, four miles inland, and another rode into Reviers three miles south.

Disperse Snipers.

Snipers hiding in the waist-high wheat fields and in woods, hedges and buildings pegged away at them and several batteries of German 88s tried to hold them up. But they took them on one by one with the infantry and as they got farther inland, found some 88s abandoned.

Enemy strong points mainly were in towns like Reviers and Amblie, two miles south-west of Reviers, but the infantry drove out the enemy with fire support from the tanks. The 1st Hussars sped right on to the Bayeux-Caen highway, and with the Western Brigade held a salient for days while the rest of the beachhead formation got into position.

At Bernieres the Fort Garry Horse landed in the assault, but they had tough luck because of a terrible sea and did not make the beach until the first infantry was ashore, but once they got on the beaches they went right to work, striking inland to Tailleville to cut the first lateral road along which were strong German gun positions.

The Fort Garrys supported an Eastern infantry brigade after it had surmounted difficulties it ran into.

The Sherbrooke Fusiliers was in reserve with an infantry brigade when the beach defence was broken and got into the land push about noon on D-day. The infantry brigade was made up of Ontario and Nova Scotia units and the tank regiment carried some Nova Scotia infantry forward to its turrets while others followed on bicycles in the clouds of dust billowing behind the armor.

This joint column went down to the Tailleville lateral road and swung southeast to Beny Sur Mer where it regrouped and started down the Caen road with the tanks fanned out on either side of the highway. Just outside Beny Sur Mer one tank troops knocked out three 88's and a German mortar battery and the column went through Balzy, making contact with a western tank regiment on the left near Augerny.

Held the Line.

For several days there were tank fights along the whole Canadian front as enemy armor bludgeoned the line in what turned out to be main counter-attacks on the initial beachhead. The Canadians distinguished themselves in these encounters and the whole armored formation did well.

The 1st Hussars had several fierce battles on the Bretteville sector as the Germans tried to push back the western infantry there.

On the staff of this formation are Maj. Robert Rothschild, Montreal; Capt. W. Stafford Johnston, Woodstock, Ont., and Lieut. R. B. How, Montreal These three are liaison officers who have been going into battles to get first-hand information despite the fact Headquarters seldom has been more than a few miles from the fighing.

Sgt. Harry Burnley of Woodstock, Ont. is another members of the Headquarters staff doing a good job. He concealed the fact that he had a bad leg for a month before sailing for France for fear he would miss the landing. He'll all right now.

The formation commander is a hearty officer from the west. He is constantly forward in battle and roams around the front in a tank or armored car, both of which are driven by Cpl. O. F. Gammy, Elmira, Ont.

Soldier Manning Gun At Front Asks Father To Pray For Him

In the midst of death and destruction abounding in Normandy at the present time, L/Bdr. Joseph D. Maher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maher, 270 Rubidge street, took time out to write to his dad and ask him to remember him in his prayers.

This is the first official notification Mr. Maher, a member of the Examiner Circulation staff, has had that his son was fighting in France with an anti-aircraft unit.

"I am writing this while sitting on a slit trench and you really need them. The ration truck is here now, but no mail again. Things are really hard here, and I will be glad to get some place where I'm not eating out of cans. I'm afraid I won't know how to handle a piece of bread. I sleep all day, mostly because we are up at night, and you don't dare close an eye on guard now.

"We have been living in a haystack for a while, but there is a town near us and it is very peaceful. The only noise is a machine gun blasting away in the distance. Keep the cigarettes and parcels coming, because we need them."

The young soldier who formerly worked at the DeLaval, wrote that he was sea sick crossing from England to France. He ate his breakfast and began the trip confidently, but half an hour later he succumbed to the malady, which affected many of the invasion troops. He mentioned that he was writing his letter with a captured German pen.

LEND-LEASE PROPOSITION.

The mystery of the missing ladder is still a mystery to the Goodwin Machine Tool Company. When the staff left work Monday night they left a big extension ladder standing against the side of the building. When they came in the next day, there was no ladder and an ad was put in the Examiner. The ad apparently roused the borrower's conscience, for when the staff arrived at work to-day, it was placed innocently in its original position. They are glad to have it back anyway.—J.S.

Mrs. M. Horsfield Passes Away In 95th Year

Mrs. Mary Horsfield, 94, among the oldest women in Peterborough, who until recently has kept interestedly abreast of the international situation, died Thursday at her home, 220 London street, following a lingering illness.

The venerable old lady came from England 60 years ago, and has spent almost 52 in the city of Peterboro. Her wise eyes watched the development and growth of the city and in an interview a year ago, she declared that with the exception of the stores Peterborough had only grown, not changed.

Born in Liverpool, England, daughter of the late Isaac and Jane Jackson, Mrs. Horsfield came to Canada with her husband, the late George Horsfield. They first moved to Stayner.

One of the most vivid things in her memory was a school parade in which she took part as a child. It was held for the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII. Since coming to Canada, she had revisited here homeland six times and told a reporter on her birthday last November that "I'm alive by the grace of God and He'll take me in his own time." Mrs. Horsfield was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss, four daughters and two sons; Jane and Agnes of this city; Mrs. Alice Carveth of Toronto; Mrs. Emily Sindon of Rochester, N.Y.; Charles of Port Hope and Arthur of Cornwall.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from St. John's Church, Canon W. P. Robertson officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

STATIONED IN VANCOUVER—AW.1 Helen C. Moyer, daughter of Mrs. S. Moyer, Omemee, and the late Rev. S. H. Moyer, formerly of Springville, is stationed in Vancouver with the R.C.A.F. (W.D.). She enlisted in July, 1943, and graduated in February as a wireless operator. A graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate and Normal School, AW.1 Moyer taught at S.S. No. 11, Emily, and was later principal of Harwood Public School. At the time of her enlistment she was teaching in Hamilton.

2 Peterborough Fliers Recent Graduates

Two Peterborough boys are among a list of seven airmen from the city and district who were recently graduated at air stations in Eastern Canada. They are Sgt. John F. Lynch, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lynch, 420 London street, who graduated as an air bomber at No. 2, A.N.S., Charlottetown, P.E.I.; and Sgt. R. H. K. McQuade, 56 Third avenue, who qualified as an air gunner at No. 9 Bombing and Gunnery School, Mont Joli, Que.

Sgt. Lynch, who is now at home on a two weeks' furlough before reporting to his new post July 2, is scheduled to take the R.C.A.F. Commando training course on his return to duty, and thereafter will receive his officer's commission.

Sgt. J. N. Darling of Warsaw is another airman to graduate in the same class with Sgt. Lynch; and Sgt. W. M. S. Mowat, 13 Colborne street west, Lindsay, graduated as a navigator at No. 8, A.O.S., Ancienne Lorette, Que. In their air gunners class at Mont Joli the following district men were also graduates: Sgt. A. G. Brett, 18 Cavan street, Port Hope; Sgt. D. G. Joynt, Bancroft; and Sgt. R. A. McKend, 503 King street west, Cobourg.

Fined For Poker

LONDON, June 23—(CP)—A jury yesterday ruled in effect that poker is an illegal game because it contains the element of chance. The jury ruled that the Lyndhurst Club in suburban Hampstead—where police found 42 persons playing poker with some $5,000 in their pockets and 5,400 chips on the tables—had been kept as a common gaming house. The proprietor, landlord, manager and attendants were fined.

GETS NEW POSTING—LAC. Gordon Blackwell has left Peterborough for his new posting at Calgary, Alberta, after spending a short leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Blackwell, 64 Aylmer Street. Joining the R.C.A.F. in May, 1943, this airman, who will be 21 in August, was formerly employed by the Colonial Weaving Co.

Stress Aquatics For Boys' Camp

Camp Kawartha for Boys, operated by the Y's Men's Club, will open on Saturday, July 1, with indications of another enthusiastic season of capacity attendance. Already the camp is pretty well filled up for the month of July, and applications are still coming in. The camp season will consist of six weeks, ending August 12, and accommodation is limited to 50 boys at a time. With certain major items of the camp budget subsidized by the Y's Men's Club and the Y.M.C.A., quality camping at moderate rates is made possible; and the fees for each boy are at the rate of $7.50 a week and $1.25 for extra days.

Last year Camp Kawartha, which is situated 20 miles north of the city on the east shore of Clear Lake, had one of its best seasons under the direction of Mac Singleton, Boys' Secretary of the "Y". This year, its 23rd year of operation, the direction of camping activities will be in equally qualified hands, with N. C. Munro, manual training instructor in the Peterborough public schools and for three years director of the Kingston Y. M. C. A. serving as the special director. Associated with Mr. Munro will be several experienced adult camp leaders in charge of the program, a group of young men trained in camping skills, and during part of the time Gordon Minty, well-known swimming instructor who will give swimming lessons to the boys.

Extensive improvements have been made to the buildings and the equipment, adding to the comfort and pleasure of the campers. For one thing, electric lighting supplied by the camp's own generator, will be in operation for the first time this season; and some of the buildings have been reroofed.

The program has been designed to meet the particular interests of the different age groups, with a major emphasis on aquatics. Regattas and swimming meets will be featured; and crafts and construction projects will offer an opportunity for creative activities. Camp Fire programs will fill the evening hours with variety, and out trips by land and water will introduce campers to the celebrated Kawartha countryside.

Pte. John Allen Passes Away In Nazi Hospital

German authorities have informed Fred Allen, 206 Braidwood avenue, an inspector at Genelco, that his son, Pte. John Allen, died in a German military hospital in Northern Italy, February 13.

Reports which have been reaching the family have been quite confused. The young soldier who was serving in Italy with an Alberta unit, was reported missing October 23, 1943. In March of this year he was reported prisoner of war in a transient camp in Italy. He was said to be slightly wounded but in good health.

No more information was received until May when his father learned he was at Camp Stalag 7A, near Munich. Word was received of his death on June 10 and further confirmation arrived Thursday night. The Germans announced that he has been buried in a civilian cemetery, at Cortina, Danpezzo, Northern Italy.

Pte. Allen was born in Peterborough, but his mother died when he was 2, and a grandmother in the United States brought him up. He returned to Peterborough and spent three years at the Collegiate, later returning to the States. The 25-year-old soldier returned to join the Canadian Army and he went overseas in January, 1941, and was one of the commandos taking part in the Spitzbergen raid.

F. G. Allen, 206 Perry street, is an uncle.

NOW IN FRANCE—Pte. J. Waldron, serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders as a reinforcement, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Waldron, 100 Stewart Street. A letter to his parents dated June 17, and received Thursday, reveals that he is taking part in the invasion. A graduate of the Collegiate, Pte. Waldron is 21, and before enlisting worked for a time in the steel work department at the C.G.E. His father is a veteran of the South African War.

Inspectors Lift Liquor Permits

Inspectors of the Liquor Control Board have been making a check on the Peterborough store this past week with a result that a number of Peterborough citizens have been having a lot of explaining to do. For several months it was learned today by the Examiner the daily purchase slips of the Peterborough store have been going to headquarters in Toronto and as a result of the check on these the inspectors arrived in town early in the week and a number of local permits were lifted.

The offense was that a number of permit holders had been securing more than one purchase in the month; in fact it is alleged several have already purchased their year's supply.

It was only through the purchase slips that the check-up could be made as the permit books would only show one monthly purchase.

After about three days of investigation the inspectors suddenly disappeared, and it is not known whether they will return to complete their work.

Rotary Carnival Set For Tonight

Everything is set for the first night of the big Rotary Carnival, always one of the outstanding events of the summer season, at Riverside Park tonight.

The merry-go-round and other attractions are all set up and the booths and games, gaily decorated, are ready for the crowd of patrons who will undoubtedly be on hand to take part in the opening night of the service club's annual enterprise.

This is the only appeal Rotary makes to the citizens of Peterborough each year for assistance in carrying on its crippled children's work and its war services activities, and for years the response has been a convincing demonstration of the fact that the public appreciates what the club has been doing and is anxious to lend a helping hand.

A June without a Rotary carnival would be like a presentation of Hamlet with the part of the melancholy Dane omitted, in the opinion of Peterborough citizens who will be out in droves this evening to get the event away to a good start. There will be a draw for a $50 war bond tonight and the winner must claim the bond within five minutes.

Tomorrow night the big moment of the carnival will come when the draw is made for the automobile which is the premier prize.

King Edward Pupils Hold Annual Picnic On School Grounds

An excellent attendance of parents and children marked the annual picnic of the King Edward School Thursday afternoon on the school grounds. Two booths, selling hot dogs, ice cream, soft drinks and bars, were set up and did a rushing business. Games and races were enjoyed with tickets for purchases at the booths being used as prizes. Arrangements were in the hands of Mrs. G. Harris, president of the Home and School Association, and her executive.

Since lunch was not served to the children this year, each one received a hot dog as a special treat from the association. Assisting in the booths were Mrs. G. Harris, Mrs. O. Laderach, Mrs. G. Stevens, Mrs. A. Beggs, Mrs. W. G. Gunn, Mrs. G. MacMillan, Mrs. G. O'Dette, Mrs. V. Reynolds, Mrs. A. Ellis and Mrs. E. Chambers. Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. L. Gibson, Mrs. J. Crocker and Mrs. R. Watson supervised the distribution of hot dogs.

Decoration Day Influence Helps Afflicted

One of the city's most beautiful annual events is to be held this Sunday, June 25, when the members of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows will for the 50th time hold their Decoration Day ceremonies, an occasion which finds a responsive note in the hearts of a large number of citizens, and particularly those who have relatives and friends at rest in Little Lake Cemetery.

On the past two previous occasions, this lovely act of remembrance has also been made an occasion whereby a considerable number of people far situated from this peaceful scene, and suffering all kinds of distress have been assisted back to normal life, a most fitting tribute to those who have gone before, there being no finer way in which their memory may be thus honored, than that of doing some good or deeds of kindness for those who are in trouble and tribulation through no fault of their own.

By Divine Providence it may be that this will be the last Decoration Day to be held locally with our kinsfolk across the seas still subject to the cruel fates of bombings from the air, and since these have been accentuated in the past ten days, this coming remembrance would seem to offer an opportunity to spread its influence far beyond something ever thought of when the patriots of the Oddfellows Order first commenced its practice, and again send them help which to them must seemingly come from heaven itself, to honor the memory of the just and good people who in the past lived their lives within the precints of this city.

There are still a few flower holders still available at the office or the green house at Little Lake Cemetery for those who wish to procure them for decorative purposes, and all returns from their sale will also come to the local and district fund operating on behalf of the bomb victims in the British Isles.

Under the leadership of Bob Everitt, a good work in a double way has been done by these club's on behalf of the war effort, their help to this fund alone amounting to $292.00 when the $8.00 listed to their credit to-day is included, and when one realizes that for every single dollar of this amount they have also purchased a war savings certificate of the $5.00 denomination, it can readily be seen that they have done a real good job.

The clubs at the Canada Packers Ltd. and the Kiwanis Club equally share in the amount credited to the clubs to-day, the winners in the former being Henry Foster, Al. Wade, Bob Butchart and Nurse Yelland, while those in the latter were John Troke W. Derry, J. J. Collins and Charlie Spearin.

The assist that they thus give to the sale of war savings stamps is a very important feature in the war effort, and their continued work in this manner will do something towards helping to raise the $4,000 still needed by the end of this month to purchase the Hurricane plane, in the campaign that has been going on for some time.

An item of $1.00 is listed as coming from the sale of bait, and a further 75 cents from the sale of plants form the secretary of the fund's garden.

George St. Juveniles Enter Finals

In a Juvenile Church League playoff game on Thursday night George Street Juveniles defeated Trinity Juveniles 20 to 2 at Nicholls Oval. E. Nicholls was the individual star of the game. He pitched a thrilling game allowing only four hits. He held the Trinity team runless until by an error of a George St. infielder, two runs were scored in the sixth inning. He struck out a total of 18 men, as well as getting four hits for five himself. For Trinity Green and Scott played best and Hinton was relived by Loftus in the 8th inning.

Millbrook Man Damages His Car

A car driven by Kenneth Foottit, Millbrook, was badly damaged in a traffic accident at Charlotte street and Maitland avenue Thursday evening.

Foottit was driving his automobile west on Charlotte street. As he neared Maitland avenue another car, also driven west on Charlotte street by Ralph McDermid, 56 McDonnel street, made a left turn to go south on Maitland avenue and there was a collision.

After the crash the car driven by Foottit skidded in a southwesterly direction, climbed over the curb and came to rest on the lawn of 319 Maitland avenue. The four tires were flat and fenders badly crumpled.

The left rear fender of McDermid's car was damaged and a wheel shifted. No one was hurt.

Wholesalers Report Scarcity Of Berries

The local strawberry crop is expected to reach its peak late next week, according to the city's retail and wholesale fruit dealers.

While the crop for the most part will be light, several growers in the Millbrook and Cavan district are anticipating moderately heavy returns. Most of the berries on sale now were grown in the Niagara fruit belt, and the peak of these will be over by Tuesday.

G. E. Clarke, fruit manager at National Grocers, said an early frost last fall is the cause of this season's scarcity, and advised those who intend to preserve berries, to do it early. He expressed disappointment in the crop, but he said the quality of available berries was excellent.

York Trading noted a heavy demand, and pointed out the weather in the next few days will have a vital effect on the local berries.

Retail stores reported receiving a few local berries, and said the demand was great.

Dorothy Dix

have to face the bitter truth that old people and young people can seldom adjust themselves to each other. Times have changed. Customs have changed. Everything about life has changed. And that makes for continual friction between the old and the young.

Father and Mother cannot change their ways and young people do not wish to change theirs. Mother cannot keep her fingers out of her children's pies, nor Father stop giving advice. And so the fight is on, and there is no way to prevent it except for no two families to try the hazardous experiment of living together.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 17. Have been married two years to a wonderful husband. I love him very dearly and I am sure that he loves me, but I am very jealous. I am always accusing him of going out with other women and nagging him about it whenever he comes home. I don't really believe that he has ever been interested in any other woman but myself, but I just can't help getting wild when I think maybe he might do so sometime.

Please advise me what to do as I am desperate.

UNHAPPY WIFE

Girl Makes Fear Come True

ANSWER: If you have any brains whatever, won't you try to use at least one lobe of them and realize that you are taking the best possible way of making your fears come true. For no man can long love a woman who is nothing but a bundle of baseless suspicions and who nags him to death about crimes that he has never committed.

If you want to keep your husband, you will have to change your technique. Otherwise your husband may conclude that if you are going to treat him as a philanderer he had as well be one.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have met a soldier and I believe we are in love with each other. He wants me to go with him to visit his parents who live in a distant city, but my family do not think this is the proper thing for me to do. He has no special work that he can do when he gets out of the army and will have no way of supporting me. My family are well-off. I have everything I want and am used to the luxuries of life. Also, I have a much better education that he has.

Do you think that I could be happy with this man?

M. J. B.

ANSWER: He doesn't look like a very good prospect, and I would certainly advise you to go and take a long look at his family and surroundings before you marry him. Also, be certain that he acquires some trade by which he could support you. You will have to eat, you know after the duration.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

My little chat with you today is going to be on different ways of cooking and serving vegetables. Now that we are able to secure them fresh from the garden we like to cook them differently from the old ways we have been doing them all winter. Our first recipe combines a number of vegetables cooked in casserole and it is delicious, 1 cup cooked carrots, 1 cup cooked beets (cut fine), 1 cup green peas, 1 cup diced celery, 1 cup shredded cabbage, 1 cup diced potatoes. Put all in casserole and pour over about ½ cup milk, salt and pepper to taste. Cover the top with a rich biscuit batter, put in oven and bake until the crust is golden brown. Serve at once.

Twice-baked Potatoes

Baked potatoes. Cut layer from top. Scoop out pulp from both top and bottom slices. Rice pulp. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg ¼ cup hot milk, then mix and beat thoroughly. Refill large half of potato with this mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) until potato heats, and cheese melts, and browns. Serve at once.

Mint Glazed Carrots and Peas

4 carrots, ⅓ cup butter, 2 cups green peas, ⅓ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Scrape carrots and cut in ¼-inch slices. Cook in boiling water for 15 minutes and drain. Put in a saucepan with butter, sugar, and mint sauce. Cook slowly until soft and glazed. Drain the peas and cook ten minutes in boiling water. Season with salt and pepper. Turn peas on hot serving dish and surround with carrots. Garnish with parsley.

Vegetable Loaf

1 cup cooked potatoes, 1 onion, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon dripping, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 cup tomato juice, 3½ cups diced mixed vegetables, 1 cup carrots, 1 cup peas, 1 cup string beans, ½ cup celery, ½ cup cabbage, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, ¼ teaspoon sage. Put all vegetables and bread crumbs through a food chopper. Add well beaten eggs and tomato juice. Add salt, sage and dripping. Mix thoroughly. Put into well greased dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Grilled Onions

Peel large onions and cut in ½ inch slices. Put into greased baking dish. Season with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Add enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bake 40 minutes in moderate over (350 degrees). Put into broiler to brown before serving.

Nazis Set Up Huge Guillotine

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

IRUN, Spain, June 23 — (AP) — German and Vichy forces have set up a guillotine in the town of Dax, approximately 50 miles north of the French-Spanish border, to execute patriots captured in Southwestern France, advices received here today said.

This information was given by Belgian employees of the German general headquarters for Southwestern France at Mont-de-Marsan and was confirmed by French refugees who crossed the frontier and by two foreign laborers who are working for the Germans in the Dax region. All these informants said many French patriots already had been executed.

Severe repressive measures were begun shortly after open partisan warfare followed the Allied invasion of Normandy. Orders from both Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters and the French National Committee at Algiers are reported to have been sent to the "Maquis" leaders telling them their uprising was premature and would only betray themselves to the Germans.

Since then the warfare has subsided into sporadic but disciplined sabotage activities which, coupled with Allied bombings, are aimed at the German communications system.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday June 24

MANY of the energies and ambitions are under excellent stimuli for quick achievement, especially in all pertaining to writings, publishings, publicity and promotional enterprises, with travel, agencies and communications greatly encouraged. It should be a propitious time for concentrating the energies with force and precision despite trivial setbacks or obstacles. These may be vanquished by shrewd and determined effort. Finances should expand, litigation and all professional and domestic activities flourishing, but beware intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a keenly lively and progressive year, with much stirring in the social, domestic and professional life, in spite of small worries, trifling setbacks and delays. Writings of all kinds should be under excellent stimuli, publishings, advertising, promotions, travel, agencies are quickly advanced, while litigation and credit are safe and sound. In social or domestic affairs there may be celebrations, with proclivities to lavishness.

A child born on this day may have great versatility with creative ability in writing, publishing, advertising, and all professions. Its personal life should be happy and congenial, but with a tendency to lavish outlay.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was another big night for the bowlers. Some were playing their regular schedule games, some playing postponed games and some playing games ahead of time. There were many ladies bowling as well. Almost every blade of grass was in use.

There were many close and interesting games and one of the bright spots about it all is the splendid showing that many of the new skips are making. We'll have more to say about them later. In our column of last night we reported that H. Freeman and Wm. Saunders were the only local pair to get in the money over at Lindsay on Wednesday. Information came to us today that R. F. Downey and N. Routley were high for two wins and they each received a steel bowling measure.

Over at Lindsay on Thursday our lady bowlers took first, second and third. It was the Lindsay Ladies' Club annual tournament, and as usual the Peterborough Club was well represented. Six rinks in all motored over. The rinks were skipped by Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Beatty, Mrs. Staunton, Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. Wilson.

The winning rinks:

First prize—Miss G. Patterson, Mrs. J. Baird, Mrs. J. Cullen, Mrs. H. Beatty, skip Each received a Pyrex double boiler.

Second prize—Mrs. F. Mowry, Mrs. A. Archibald, Mrs. P. Coleman, Mrs. G Coleman, skip. Each received a garden chair.

Third prize—Mrs W. Greenslade, Mrs. A. Gibbs, Mrs. C. Williamson, Mrs. J. Arnold, skip Each received a purse.

And now about tonight It's men's rinks from the board. A good crowd is expected, so be out by 7.30 p.m.

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

29—Entries and Blockers

IT IS OFTEN vital to have the lead in one hand or the other—your own or the dummy—a certain number of times. A card which enables you to obtain the lead where you wish it is called an "entry." Suppose your own hand contains a finessing combination like an A-Q-10. You will probably wish to lead toward it twice, once to finesse the 10 and again to finesse the Q. That is impossible unless you have two entries to the dummy. You also may have in the dummy some suit which can be established, but then will require an entry in order to bring in the set-up small cards of it.

As soon as the opening lead is made, one of the essentials to consider is the number of entries needed in one hand or the other. Perhaps enough will be obviously in sight. But often they will not. Study, however, may reveal a way to develop the entries you wish, or show them already to exist, though somewhat concealed.

If you have the ace of the opening suit in one holding, opposite the king in your other hand, you usually will play so as to leave one of those cards where you need an entry most. But suppose you have something like the J-5 in dummy and the K-Q-7 in your hand, the opponent's lead was a small card and third hand played the A, after you put on dummy's 5. You have a chance right there to make the J an entry to dummy, by playing your K or Q under the A.

There are various possible plays of that nature on the first trick, as well as later ones, if you watch for them. Now let's take a case of doubtful entries. A guarded king is a possible but doubtful entry, depending on which defender has the ace. An ace-queen may prove two entries or only one, depending on how the king is located. Then there are less obvious combinations. Suppose the dummy has a K-10 opposite your A-Q-3. If you positively require two entries to the dummy, finesse the 10 on the first round, and overtake your Q with the K on the second.

Late entries are other possibilities, as when you have the A-K-6-4 opposite the Q-9-8-5. Preserve that 5 carefully if you need three dummy entries. The A will be one, the K will be another and, if you have put the 9 and 8 on these tricks, you can, after scoring the Q, use the 5 to the 6 as another entry.

"Unblocking" is a term used to describe your play of an unnecessarily high card on a trick in order to get out of the way of some lower card in the opposite hand, so that the lower card may become a trick taker and therefore an entry. Here is a case of multiple unblocking, if you needed four entries in the dummy, for purposes of finesses or anything else: A-Q-10-6-2 in the dummy opposite your own K-J-9-5. The first trick of that suit should include both the K and A, the second the Q and the J, the third the 10 and 9, and then the 6 over the 5 could be the fourth entry.

Counting the entries needed can cause you to abandon some plan completely in favor of another. Suppose the dummy has a suit made up of Q-J-10-9-6-2, and your hand contains no card of the suit. If the dummy's only possible entries are two aces, there is no use in trying to set up that suit. One ace would enable you to make a first lead of it, won perhaps by the king. The other ace would make possible a second lead, won by the ace. The suit would now be established, but you could not use its set-up cards because the dummy has no more entries. In that case, find some other use for your two entries in the dummy.

Senator Seeks Draft Change

OTTAWA, June 23 — (CP) — Revision of the Government's Income and Exess Profit Tax policy was called for by Senator John Haig (PC-Manitoba) speaking in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Haig, acting Progressive Conservative leader, also expressed criticism of the Government for its manpower policy and said either conscription for overseas should be adopted or men now available only for service in Canada should be released for work in factories and on farms.

Discussion of Government policies came when the $3,057,000,000 War Appropriation Bill was up for second reading. Debate will be continued on it to-day.

Senator J. H. King, Government Senate leader, said the measure was the most important to come before the present session of parliament and recalled it had received careful study by the Senate in committee.

Senator Haig said he had "violent opposition" to the present Government policy of restricted conscription.

"If the men are not needed at the front conscription should be abandoned and the men called up and in Canada allowed to return to work," he said.

Upkeep of the army that was not available for overseas service was a waste of money.

In the reconstruction period first priority should go to members of the forces and second to workers in war industry, but industry under the heavy burden of Excess Profits Tax could not assure large post-war employment.

The present policy of Corporation Taxes, coupled with a high personal Income Tax, was unfair.

"If I were a C. C. F.-er and wanted to put the Corporations out of business I would continue this type of tax" he said.

Senator Haig suggested the Income Tax exemption for single persons should be raised from $660 to $1,000 and for married persons from $1,200 to $2,000. Those who felt the burden of income tax most severely were those with incomes of $3,000 or less.

Japanese Shells Proving Duds

KANDY, Ceylon, June 23—(CP) — Ouster of the last Japanese from the Kohima-Imphal road in Manipur State, India, is expected within a few days, headquarters reports said today.

Clearing of the road was said to be proceeding much faster than originally exepcted, partly because the Japanese are short of artillery and their ammunition is proving faulty. Recent reports said 60 per cent of Japanese shells are duds.

Today's communique said British forces had advanced southward from Kohima until they were only 10 miles from troops operating northward from Imphal, and that enemy forces caught unaware by the rapid march fled after being shot up. Much equipment was abandoned by the enemy.

In North Burma Chinese troops occupied Mahaung, a mile southeast of Mogaung on the Mandalay-Myitkyina Railway.

At besieged Myitkyina local gains were made by Chinese tunnelling into north and south Japanese positions, and a large party of the enemy attempted to escape from the base by floating down the Irrawaddy River on rafts. Most of the Japanese were shot or drowned, the communique said.

Field Regiment Wins Spurs On Italy Front

BY DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 23 — (CP) — A Canadian self-propelled field regiment, in close contact with the enemy for the first time, supported the infantry and tanks in the Hitler Line attack, blasting out gun emplacements, wiping out machine gun nests, destroying houses and generally making life miserable for the Germans.

On of the first successes and one which earned the crew permission from Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes to paint a Swastika on their gun, was the destruction of a gun emplacement in the Hitler Line. It had a 75-millimetre gun in a Panther tank turret mounted in concrete.

The crew, including Gnr. Lloyd Colborne, Sarnia, Ont., hit the target with their second shot and set it on fire. Two dead Germans were found in the turret and several other bodies were taken from the living quarters below.

Ather crews from this same troop cleared three houses of Germans, rooting 15 enemy from one house, and shot up five machinne gun emplacements.

One crew on this job included Sgt. J. L. Spurgeon, Hamilton and Gnr. D.C.C. McLeod, Listowel, Ont.

In the other crew were Gnrs. D. Wood, Kingston, Ont. and I. J. Mills, Owen Sound, Ont.

Close action after many months of waiting was a welcome break for this troops. They did some "shoots" on the Adriatic front but this was the first time they fulfilled their proper function. Despite heavy fighting the troop didn't suffer a casualty though some of the guns were hit.

Russians Offer Peace To Finns

STOCKHOLM, June 23 — (AP) — The Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said today that the Russians have offered to cease war against Finland if the Finns accept the borders that were settled upon in 1940 and give the Red Army temporary freedom of movement through Finland, certain airfields and bases on the Aland Islands on a temporary basis.

Three demands in addition to the 1940 border arrangement have "been brought to the attention of the Finnish government," the newspaper said, naming them as:

First, the right to pass through any part of Finland for the purpose of concentrating Red Army troops against Col.-Gen. Eduard Dietl's Northern Finland divisions.

Second, the right to operate from airplane bases in Osterbotten so the Red Air Force can attack areas occupied by Dietl's troops and his Baltic communications.

Third, the right to hold bases in the Aland Islands to strengthen the assault on Dietl's supply lines.

After quoting only anonymous "most reliable sources" for the peace conditions named in its first edition, "Aftenbladet" later attributed the story to "information the New York Times Stockholm correspondent has learned."

Manpower Policy Is Under Fire

KINGSTON, June 23—(CP)—John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party yesterday for the second time this week criticized the Federal Government's manpower policy and said "if the government needs men overseas, as it says it does, it should call on the 70,000 men now sheltered in the home defence army at a cost of $150,000,000 a year to the taxpayer."

Addressing the annual meeting of the Frontenac-Addington Progressive Conservative Association at nearby Sharbot Lake, he said the government should call on home defence army men "before proceeding to make demands on the boys now in industry and on farms."

(Last Monday night, Mr. Bracken and C. P. McTague, chairman of the party, criticized the government's manpower regulations in address at Guelph, Ont.)

Speaking of his party, Mr. Brackeni said "the prospects are we shall be called upon to form a government following the next (Federal) election."

The Liberal party, he said, had small success in recent by-elections and had been swept out of power in Ontario and Saskatchewan.

"The province of Saskatchewan," he added, "was the only one in which the C.C.F. could win." He stated there were three provinces in which the C.C.F. was not likely to win a seat but did not name them.

Regina Rifles First Unit To Hit Beach

By WILLIAM STEWART,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 23 — (CP) — The Regina Rifles, a hard-hitting infantry unit, assaulted the Normandy beaches on D-Day and took an island objective, holding off a series of German counter-attacks, it was permitted to be disclosed yesterday.

The Western unit, first component of the Canadian 3rd division to be identified definitely as taking part in the Allied invasion of Western Europe, was engaged in hard fighting for more than a week, during which it was subjected to every form of enemy opposition — from snipers' bullets to bombs from multi-barrelled mortars.

Although none of the German atttempts to dislodge them from their positions in the firefront of the British-Canadian bridgehead succeeded, the Rifles suffered casualties both in landing and during the ensuing fighting.

Commander of the first company to touch down— at 8:05 a.m., June 6—Maj. D. D. Grosch of Regina, was wounded. Both his company and a second which landed minutes later had to fight their way ashore. Half an hour afterwards, a company led by Maj. C. S. T. Tubb of North Battleford Sask., came ashore. An assault craft carrying a fourth company struck a mine and Maj. J. V. Love of Regina was killed.

The Reginas cleared the seaside town of Courseulles and moved three miles inland to Reviers that night.

At noon the next day leading elements reached their objective at Bretteville Lorgueilleuse, about seven miles from the landing point, where the Reginas stood against fierce Nazi opposition.

Second in command of the battalion was Maj. A. S. Gregory of North Bay, Ont.

AMERICANS NEAR CHERBOURG DOCKS

All Britain Determined to Exact Retribution

NAZI EXPLANATION ON PRISONER SLAYING INFLAMES PARLIAMENT AND COMMON PEOPLE ALIKE

LONDON, June 24 — (CP Cable) — Grim determination to exact retribution for what Foreign Secretary Eden called the mass murder of Stalag Luft III gripped Britain today.

The Foreign Secretary told the House of Commons yesterday that he had rejected the German explanation of the shooting of 50 Allied airmen following their recapture, after escaping from the prison camp. He termed the Nazi action "cold-blooded . . . butchery."

London's morning papers today echoed Eden's indictment and pledged, in the words of the Daily Sketch, that one day the retribution "will be swift and appropriate, which means it will be terrible."

It was apparent the people's anger of the indiscriminate use of the Nazi rocket bomb was nothing to that produced by the account of the prisoners' escape, recapture and murder.

"Even by the standards the Germans set for themselves, this latest crime of mowing down defenceless prisoners of war after they have been recaptured is unparalleled," the Daily Express said.

The News Chronicle said: "It takes a great deal to make an Englishman hate but there will be hatred in the hearts of many Englishmen and women today . . . here, caught under the microscope, is an active specimen of the cancer that has been rotting the heart of German youth and threatening the soul of humanity."

The Daily Mail Said:

"We are not animated by hate. That would be a trivial, superficial, ignoble description of the motive which animates us and our Allies which this example strengthens . . . we will remember that not the Gestapo merely, nor any Nazi officials were the 'murder' instigators, but that those responsible as their employers are no less than the German nation."

Bitter Fight Rages In Outskirts

Terrific Barrage From Artillery Rips City Forts

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 24 —(CP)—American troops smashing into the powerful outer shell of the Cherbourg Line drove this morning within 2,000 yards—little more than a mile—of the port on the south and "enemy defences showed signs of crumbling," a field dispatch said, while British forces in the Caen area also advanced.

Tank-escorted British troops took Ste. Honorine la Chardonnerette, four miles northeast of Caen, against the heaviest sort of resistance as Gen. Montgomery lashed out with his first swift attack to break the German hold on that sector.

Associated Press War Correspondent Roger Greene reported that in a day-long tank battle yesterday in the woods between Ste. Honorine and Cuverville, a mile to the southwest, British tanks and anti-tank gunners knocked out 20 of 35 German tanks. British losses were described officially as "very small."

Punctures Pillboxes

In the Cherbourg fighting an American spearhead punctured the stubborn, interlaced Nazi pillbox defences southeast of Octeville, the fortress just southwest of Cherbourg, after a pulverizing air and artillery bombardment, Associated Press War Correspondent Don Whitehead said in a dispatch written at 9:15 a.m.

Headquarters said the Americans fought forward slowly and had all but reached the sea on both sides of the besieged port in hand-to-hand struggle with Germans resisting fanatically. The assault troops are battling "within sight of the docks," Supreme Headquarters said.

Whitehead wrote that 1,200 prisoners have been taken in the last 24 hours, and that the Cherbourg Line had become a "death trap" for hundreds of Nazis who refused an Allied ultimatum to surrender and were forced to fight by German officers holding guns at their backs.

In bitter battle, the Americans have blasted a wedge deep into the German Line, and "Cherbourg is doomed as an enemy stronghold," he added.

British Sector Active

A field dispatch from the British sector at Ste. Honorine declared the German command was moving up reinforcements from deep within France, and even drawing on strategic reserves in Germany itself "to replace forces thrown into the beachhead area."

Clear, calm weather sped the flow of power into Normandy today from hundreds of landing craft, and sky-trains of Allied bombers roared over France.

Cherbourg's elaborate defences buckled under the massive artillery and air bombardment, and so close were the Americans to the Germans in the desperate struggle that Lt.-Gen. Bradley pulled his men back while the bombers came in to soften up the enemy pillboxes and trenches.

A field dispatch said an American breakthrough was made between Mont du Roc and Octeville. Fortified Mont Du Roc is 2½ miles south west of Cherbourg's city limits near

2-Pronged Russian Drive 75 Miles From Latvia State

Early Gains Ten Miles Deep Reported
Russians Advance Behind Wall Of Fire

MOSCOW, June 24—(AP).—The Red Army, in a new central front offensive that was an integral part of Allied grand strategy, rolled westward in spectacular fashion today and reached points only 75 miles from the Latvian border.

The Russians battled swollen streams and considerable mud northwest of Vitebsk, where they pushed upon Polotsk 32 miles away.

Reports from the Finnish front were that the new offensive had detracted nothing from the drive toward Helsinki and the liberation of the Leningrad-Murmansk railway. Progress was reported in all the fighting areas, with the Finns apparently still unable to hold the weight of Russian armor and infantry.

Southeast of Vitebsk on the central front where the Russians have been across the highway from Vitebsk to the German-held fortress of Orsha, the Red Army surged forward and cut the railway which parallels the highway. It moved in the general direction of Minsk.

Cut All Railways

Operations in this sector across the Nazis communciations appeared to be outflanking Vitebsk badly—so badly that the big Nazi garrison has no railways into the city.

(The German radio said the Russians, using 11 divisions, have broken into German positions on both sides of Vitebsk, and that "heavy fighting goes on with the Russians attempting to encircle the town.")

Military observers in Moscow point out this is probably the first phase of Russia's summer offensive, recalling that last winter Stalin drove swift feints in several directions, then struck home with his main blows.

The Red Army has made major preparations for the summer offensive. Numerous trips to frontal areas this spring and early summer have disclosed preparations which indicate Hitler will experience the mightiest offensive of all from the east.

In a series of broadcasts, the Germans said there were at least four major areas of attack along a 240-mile front on both sides of the Vitebsk hinge position, and left no doubt that they regarded the Russian drive as the long-expected big offensive from the east.

Violent Gale Sweeps Ontario

LONDON, Ont., June 24 (CP)—A violent gale swept through central Middlesex County and other parts of Ontario late yesterday killing one man, injuring several others and causing thousands of dollars damage.

Archie Paines of Strathroy, Ont., died in hospital here last night of injuries suffered when he was hit by a timber when his barn was blown down.

Most seriously injured was Robert McGillicuddy of nearby Watford, Ont., who was admitted to hospital with a dislocated shoulder suffered when hit by a barn door flying in the wind.

Scores of barns were destroyed or damaged, many houses were damaged and telephone communication was disrupted.

At Toronto, lightning hit a street car and the motorman, Wilfred McKay, was seared about the neck and arms. He was taken to hospital for treatment, but his condition was reported not serious.

Ron Nelson, flight commander at No. 4 Air Observer School, flew over the stricken region of Middlesex County after the gale had subsided.

"It was the worst mess I ever saw," he said. In one 25-acre woodlot "all the trees had been snapped like matchwood," he reported. At least 25 barns were flattened in the same area along with three or four homes.

Canada Honors Soviet Union on 3rd Anniversary

TORONTO, June 24—(CP).—Air Minister C. G. Power told a rally here last night commemorating the third anniversay of the Soviet Union's entry into the war, that Canadians believe the comradeship-in-arms of war between Canada and Russia "gives us the hope of friendlier relations in the days of peace." Introducing Hon. Gregory N. Zarubin, Soviet Ambassador to Canada, to the gathering of about 7,000 people at Maple Leaf Gardens, the Air Minister added, "We in Canada have been glad to help Russia."

He said that Canadians know what Russia has done to save the world from Fascist slavery.

The Soviet Ambassador spoke of the severe trials the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition has withstood with success, but added: "New and no less serious trials lie ahead."

Face Big Task.

"After the war," he said, "this coalition will face the tremendous task of establishing a stable and lasting peace on new foundations of international relations for the welfare of all people."

Capt. M. P. Tuteur, president of the Ontario branch of the French Committee for National Liberation disclosed the Free French forces took part in the D-day invasion.

He said that two French cruisers, the Lorraine flying squad and French paratroops participated in the move to liberate Europe.

He also told of great sabotage performed in the period immediately preceding the June 6 invasion. French saboteurs destroyed 400 locomotives, 2,000 railway cars and caused 200 train wrecks.

"It is impossible," he stated, "for the French people to accept or even think of a substitute leader for Charles de Gaulle, just as it would be to imagine any other leader in Britain than Churchill.

Report 19 Jap Ships Sunk In Several Pacific Actions

PEARL HARBOR, June 24—(CP).—The toll of losses inflicted this week on Japanese seapower in the Western Pacific now stands at five ships definitely sunk and a sixth probably sunk with nine others damaged. The ship listed as a probable was a new 28-thousand-ton aircraft carrier. Admiral Nimitz has disclosed that an American submarine sent three torpedoes into the Jap carrier last Sunday. That was the day the Japs lost some three hundred carrier-borne planes when they attacked American warships off Saipan Island in the Marianas. The total Japanese plane losses are put at three hundred and sixty.

The Navy also has revised the list of Jap losses in the attack by American planes on Monday. The new list includes a destroyer sunk in addition to the carrier and three tankers previously mentioned. The destroyer is thus removed from the previous list of enemy ships damaged which now stands at nine, including two 19-thousand-ton carriers, a battleship, a light carrier, a cruiser, two destroyers and two tankers. There also is reason to believe that some of the ships on the damaged list never reached their base. One of the three carriers was burning furiously when last sighted by American airmen. Another had received three one thousand-pound bomb hits and a third Jap carrier was hit by two one thousand-pounders.

In addition to these losses. American submarines have sunk 15 Japanese merchant ships and a navy auxiliary. From General MacArthur's headquarters comes word that planes of his command have probably sunk another Jap merchant ship and have destroyed five coastal vessels off Dutch New Guinea.

The blows inflicted on the Japanese naval forces have left the estimated twenty thousand Japanese on Saipan Island without hope of reinforcements or rescue. There was no mention of the Saipan fighting in the latest communique from Admiral Nimitz's headquarters. The latest word from Saipan said the Americans were driving along the coast of Magicienne Bay after clearing the lower part of Saipan of the enemy.

Tokyo radio has announced a new American air raid on Guam. The broadcast asserted that a force of sixty American planes made the raid on Guam. The Japanese dispatch claimed that two tAmerican carriers had been damaged off Saipan by Japanese planes.

The United States navy has announced superficial damage to two carriers and a battleship and the loss of seventy planes in all operations since Monday.

Bombs Pulverize French Targets

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 24.—(AP).— American heavy bombers, ranging over France with escorting fighters which made up a total force of 500 planes, hammered rail bridges, airfields and other enemy installations behind the Normandy battle zone to-day while medium bombers ripped up four German gun positions blocking the advance of infantry into Cherbourg.

The raids followed R.A.F. night blows at Nazi rail bottlenecks and R.C.A.F. attacks on flying bomb installations in France.

The Berlin radio reported U. S. heavy bombers also were heading into Northwest Germany.

The channel skies were jammed with Allied planes of all types which roared back and forth continuously for more than five hours this morning and which were still going strong at noon.

126 Die In Fierce Tornado Which Sweeps Two States

Twisted Trail Of Devastation Left Behind
Thousands Left Homeless—Many Injured

PITTSBURGH, June 24—(AP).—A toll of 126 dead and hundreds injured was reported today in the wake of a tornado which left a twisted trail of devastation and horror through southwestern Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia.

Scores were reported missing from homes demolished by a sudden, swirling wind which last night spent its fury on towns, villages, and farm and coal country from the outskirts of Pittsburgh more than 100 miles into West Virginia.

Authorities feared the list of dead would increase as rescuers battled their way through the wreckage and searched the hills and hollows of West Virginia.

At dawn, 10 hours after a funnel-shaped cloud descended first on Pennsylvania and then in its neighboring state, rescue squads redoubled their efforts to locate bodies.

List Climbs

Every hour brought reports of death and destruction in new sections of West Virginia. The death toll there rose steadily this morning from 53 to 95 victims. In Pennsylvania 31 were reported dead in rural areas from McKeesport, near Pittsburgh, to the state line near Waynesburg. Pittsburgh itself was not hit.

Hundreds were made homeless as whole blocks in some communities were levelled. Hospitals were filled with the injured.

Worst hit apparently was the little town of Shinnston, a coal town of 2,800 a dozen miles from Clarksburg, W.Va. A Red Cross representative reported 56 bodies had been recovered from that vicinity.

The representative, Mrs. Lola Heavner, said possibly 100 persons still were unaccounted for.

Hospitals all over West Virginia sent blood plasma to Shinnston and one allotment was flown to the city from Charleston, the capitol.

Striking last night, the high winds lashed the suburbs of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, a city of nearly sixty-thousands residents near Pittsburgh. Hundreds of persons were left home-

Hun Resistance Grows In Italy

ROME, June 24—(AP). — The Allied 5th Army is continuing its advance along the west coast of Italy, but in general the situation is unchanged, with the Germans continuing to offer resistance in the Lake Transimeno area, Allied Headquarters said to-day.

Hard fighting continued around Shiusi, nine miles south-west of Lake Trasimeno, which the enemy regained by infiltration. New German counter-attacks north of Perugia were repulsed.

On the Adriatic coast sector, 8th Army troops had reached the outskirts of San Elpedro. Earlier reports had placed other units of the 8th Army near the vicinity of Morrovalle and Montecosaro, less than 25 miles from the port of Ancona.

Strong Resistance

Today's Allied communique said the 8th was meeting "strong resistance" both north and northwest of Perugia and at the southwest corner of Lake Hrasimeno, where several enemy counter-attacks have been repulsed.

On the two wings the Allied advance continued though the Americans pushing up the west Italian coast and the French on their immediate inland flank encountered increasingly stiff resistance. Only in the Adriatic sector was the Nazis' flight unchecked. There 8th Army troops crossed the Chienti River and reached the vicinity of

Norwegian Sub Bags 9 Ships

Returns From Fruitful Adventure

By ERNEST AGNEW
Associated Press War Correspondent

AT A NORTHERN BRITISH BASE—(Delayed)—(AP). — Forty-two thousand tons of German shipping and 600-ton German naval vessel were sunk and damaged by the Royal Norwegian submarine Ula during a recent series of operations in Norwegian waters, her captain announced to-day.

The Ula headed into this base cockily flying from her bridge a Jolly Roger of skull and cross bones decorated with eight white stripes, showing eight merchant vessels sunk; one red stripe for a naval vessel and two daggers for two special operations which thus far are a secret.

The captain said the biggest of the vessels torpedoed was an iron-ore vessel. The Ula also scored hits on a 6,000-ton tanker and six freighters of between 3,000 and 4,000. The naval vessel which was torpedoed was believed to be a trawler.

During this operation the Ula suffered virtually no damage despite more than 100 depth charges hurled at her.

Talk Favors Gov. Bricker

Mooted As Vice-President Candidate

CHICAGO, June 24 — (AP). — The Republican Vice-Presidential nomination appears to-day to be going temporarily begging with two of the most-discussed possibilities—Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio and Governor Earl Warren of California — maintainnng steadfastly that they are not considering or expecting it.

So strong had become the pre-convention hotel lobby gossip to the effect that Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York has the inside track for the Presidential nomination that knots of delegates spent much of their time discussing the lack of a hot Vice-Presidential contest.

Other Vice-Presidential possibilities include Lt.-Com. Harold E. Stassen, whose friends say he wouldn't have it; Representative Everett Dirksen (Rep.-Ill.) and Gov. Simeon Willis of Kentucky.

Alf Landon, who once ran for President himself, said there was a great deal of talk about "rewarding" Gov. Bricker with the Vice-Presidential nomination — if he fails to get the first place designation his friends still think will come to him—for the strenuous campaign efforts the Ohio Governor has made as the only avowed major Presidential candidate.

Senator Defends Quebec As Loyal State

OTTAWA, June 24 — (CP). — Quebec Province has its exceptions to the rule as has any other Province, but Canadians need not fear that any subversive movement against the Dominion would have its origin in Quebec, Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt, Liberal member from Quebec, said Friday in the Senate.

French-Canadians had proved and still were proving their love for Canada, and most of them favored the development of qualities of fraternity, love of God, and love of neighbor, said Senator Vaillancourt.

The threat from the exceptions to the rule in Quebec was no more serious than the threat from the exceptions in other Provinces.

"Quebec will remain the last rampart of fidelity to the oath of allegiance," said Senator Vaillancourt, speaking in French during continued debate on a motion calling for a uniform textbook on Canadian history. The debate was adjourned until next Tuesday by Senator Arthur Marcotte, Progressive Conservative member from Saskatchewan.

Catholic State.

Much of what Senator Vaillancourt said was in reply to Senator T. D. Bouchard, another Liberal member from Quebec, who said in the Senate on Wednesday that a secret order, known as the Order of Jacques Cartier, was plotting to set up an independent and Catholic State in Canada. Senator Bouchard who said the order had the blessing of the clergy, left for Montreal on Thursday and was not in the Senate when his colleague spoke.

"You need not fear the Fascism of Quebec," said Senator Vaillancourt. "My honorable friend (Senator Bouchard) has always feared secret societies I have heard him talk about them for 30 years or more. He seems to be well versed in the affairs of these societies."

Senator Vaillancourt said a French-Canadian leader had once stated that if Canada was ever attacked and defence of the homeland was necessary "the last shot would be fired by a French-Canadian."

Act of Courage

Some newspapers had referred to Senator Bouchard's speech as an "act of courage," he said. "I say that it was the reverse."

"Courage means to march forward and build while on the way," he added. "Courage does not mean to destroy. It is not by throwing stones right and left that one can build a house. The same applies to the building of a nation."

Senator Vallancourt said one of the things he admired most among English-speaking peoples was the fact that they settled their differences among themselves and in "family groups."

"You don't wash your laundry in public, you do it in family circles," said Senator Vaillancourt.

Bonne Entente

He said the motion under discussion was aimed at building up cooperation and bonne entente among all peoples in Canada. It was aimed at helping the peoples in various parts of the country to understand each other better.

But Senator Bouchard's speech was not in the spirit of the motion. It was of a character such as would "dig a ditch" between the English-speaking and French-speaking peoples of the country.

Senator Vaillancourt said he was surprised at the importance newspapers had given Senator Bouchard's remarks.

"If he had made the speech at home little attention would have been paid to it, because we are used to his bursts of oratory," he said.

"There are people among us (in Quebec) who exaggerate—and I admit we have some. We have no monopoly on them. They exist everywhere. They are the exceptions to the rule and our laws cannot be based on them."

Senator Vaillancourt, managing director of Les Caisses Populaires (people's banks) in Quebec, said one of his inspectors recently had told him of an incident which proved that "fanaticism" was not all one-sided.

Duty Outlined.

The French-Canadian inspector was spending the night in a hotel near the United States border. Shortly after he retired he heard a meeting called to order in the room directly above him. He overheard the chairman tell his audience that there was in the hotel an inspector of Les Caisses Populaires, which were trying to group all French-Canadians interests together in an effor to gain financial independence for French-Canadians. The chairman of the meeting said it was the duty of himself and his colleagues to prevent French-Canadians from gaining financial independence.

"Fanaticism is not all one-sided," said Senator Vailancourt. "There may be some French-Canadians who go too far. But that is not unuhual. Among all peoples there are always some who go too far."

He said Senator Bouchard's speech sounded like one made on the hustings, and it sounded like a charge against the clergy and religious teaching in Quebec.

Priests as Teachers.

In 1760, when the former leaders of the French colony returned to France following their defeat at the hands of the British, the parish priests wers the only men the French colonists had to look to for teaching in their language.

The parish priests had taught the French to love Canada. This love was proved in 1812 when the French helped save Canada from the United States for the British.

"I wish to pay homage to our parish priests and to our clergy," said Senator Vaillancourt

He said that since the beginning of the war Cardina Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, had frequently appealed to the people to help speed an Allied victory.

Mettle on Battlefield.

French Canadians were porving their mettle on the battlefield. Major Paul Triquet of Cabano, Que., had won the Victoria Cross in Italy; Major Hugues Lapointe, son of the late Justice Minister Lapointe, and other French Canadians were aiding in the liberation of France.

less as whole blocks of houses were levelled. Hospitals were packed with injured. Power and communications lines were blown down. Many families were trapped in their homes as the tornado hit.

A. D. Johnson of McKeesport described the storm as "a white whirlwind shape," He saw a dozen houses blown off their foundations.

Rescue workers are still digging through wreckage in a search for more possible victims.

Residents of the West Virginia areas hit by the tornado described it as "a regular Kansas twister."

The hardest hit Pennsylvania towns outside of the Pittsburgh area were the mining communities of Clarksville and Chartiers, 40 miles south of Pittsburgh. The storm is the second tragedy in a fortnight for Chartiers. Two weeks ago a mine explosion and fire killed six men. Last night's tornado levelled almost every house in Chartiers. The widow and two children of one of the miners killed a week ago perished in last night's storm.

More than two hundred persons wer injured at Shinnston, West Virginia, and ambulance drivers and other rescue workers hurrying to the scene reported bodies along the roadside. Four companies of West Virginia State Guardsmen have been ordered into the devastated area.

Power was supplied to the stricken area by emergency service from Parkersburg. But Clarksburg, West Virginia's fourth largest city had no power until well into the morning.

The Red Cross has sent disaster relief crews into the stricken Pennsylvania and West Virginia areas with blood plasma, medical supplies, food and cots for the homeless and injured.

Other West Virginia communities hit besides Shinnston were Prospect Valley, Simpson, and points in Barbour and Randolph counties.

At Versailles Borough, Pennsylvania, a woman saw 16-hundred dollars she had withdrawn from a bank yesterday whisked away along with the wreckage of her home. But—rescue workers retrieved about 14-hundred dollars and gave it back to her.

Planes Whittle

At the same time it was announced by headquarters of the British 2nd Tactical Air Force that hundreds of its medium and fighter-bombers have battered the rocket-coast during the past two weeks. A spokesman for the R.A.F. disclosed that three Mosquito squadrons have devoted the whole of their time for two months to the destruction of the rocket installations.

Counter-Attacks Routine

Virtually every branch of the Allied Air Forces has taken a crack at the pilotless planes, which have been hitting Southern England day and night for 10 days. In addition to the assignment of aircraft to break up the launching bases of the robots by high-level precision bombing, by blanket bombing through cloud, or by strafing, many of Britain's fastest fighters are being held back to tackle the Nazi flying bombs when they are in the air.

The diversion of Allied air power entailed by Hitler's secret weapon is believed to be unique in this war. Attacks on Pas de Calais had been going on fully six months before a single robot was launched against Britain. Today Allied counter-attacks are a routine part of the day's operations, and, like every phase of air warfare, are on a mounting scale, although they contribute nothing positive to the Allied offensive.

Objectives included 10 railway bridges, six freight yards, 10 locomotives, four trains, 61 cars, 10 barges, 14 trucks, one anti-aircraft battery, a canal lock and a power station.

Circling further into France, fighters of the 9th A.A.F. bombed and shot up bridges and enemy communications south of Cherbourg. More than 200 aircraft struck between Tours and Poitiers and between Orleans and Vierzy. Bridges at Nantes, La Roche, Sumur and Niort were hit, as well as the freight yards of Le Mans.

The same pattern of assault was followed last night by the Royal Air Force when it despatched squadrons of Lancasters to Laon and Halifaxes to Rheims. Mosquitos stung Hamburg.

The full sweep of Allied strategic power was underlined in last night's announcement from Italy of renewed attacks on oil refineries at Ploesti and Giurgiu in Romania, and rail connections at Nish, communications bottleneck in Yugoslavia, by strong formations of heavy bombers.

Orsha Railway Cut.

The nightly Moscow communique, recorded in London by the Soviet radio monitor, announced that "during June 23 northwest and southeast of Vitebsk our troops, supported by massed blows from artillery and aviation, went over to the offensive against the German Fascist troops," and listed these immediate gains through heavy enemy fortifications:

Seven and one-half and nine and one-half miles on a 19-mile front northwest of Vitebsk, with more than 100 towns taken; and gains of five to six miles on a 16-mile-wide front southeast of Vitebsk, with more than 50 towns freed.

The railway between Vitebsk and Orsha, 50 miles to the south, has been cut with capture of Zamostoche, 14 miles south of Vitebsk, and two railway stations on the Vitebsk-Polotsk line to the northwest are among the captured places including the large one of Sirotino, 27 miles northwest of Vitebsk.

The White Russian front, possibly the most important of any on the east so far as defense of Germany itself is concerned, has been quiet since February, following a strong winter offensive which carried the Russians to but not through the defence positions which the Nazis frankly call the "bolt" of their eastern door.

General Concentric Attack

The chief military correspondent of the German propaganda agency, D.N.B., declared in a broadcast late tonight:

'Now we are face to face with the beginning of a concentric general attack on Europe.

"The first objective of the Soviet operation, launched on the third anniversary of the war, is to split the German southern and northern fronts by breaking through toward the Baltic States and getting a grip on this densely knit traffic network."

A Berlin military spokesman said the Russians struck along the upper reaches of the Dnestr River south of Mogilev; along the Vitebsk-Orsha highway; in a "focal area" north of Sirotino; in the area of Novorzhev 125 miles northwest of Vitebsk; and in the region of Ostrov which is 40 miles still further northwest.

Jap Carrier Goes To Bottom

PEARL HARBOR, June 24—(AP).—A Japanese aircraft carrier, one of the enemy's largest and newest of the 20,000-ton class, probably was sunk Sunday, hit by three torpedoes from an American submarine, United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters said in a communique Friday.

This blow brought to five the Japanese carriers sunk or damaged in the June 18-19 Philippine sea battle. One of these is definitely known to be sunk.

The carrier struck by the submarine was of the Shokaku class. She was hit Sunday, the first day of the victory scored by aircraft of U.S. Force 58.

One enemy destroyer, previously reported as severely damaged by air attack, definitely was sunk, said a supplementary communique. A small carrier, previously reported damaged, was hit by two aerial torpedoes.

The new report raised Japan's losses in the two-day engagement to five ships definitely sunk—a carrier of the Hayataka class, a destroyer and three tankers.

The Hayataka carriers are first-line vessels of 19,000 tonnage.

Probably sunk was the large Shokaku class carrier.

Damaged were nine other vessels, including three carriers severely crippled and a Kongo type battleship.

Janes Fighting Ships describes the Shokaku type carrier probably sent to the bottom by submarine attack as one of Japan's best.

The Shokaku itself is 800 feet long, has a speed of 30 knots, and carries 60 aircraft.

American tank and infantry forces slugged beyong Giuncarico, 11 miles northwest of Grosseto, and approached the coastal town of Folonica, some 55 miles south of Pisa. Another American column, thrusting inland up Highway 73, was reported on the outskirts of Roccastrada.

French Colonials in Lead

French Colonials, keeping a little ahead of the Americans, reached a point slightly north of the Village of Castiglione d'Orcia, which is 17 miles due west of Chiusi.

Between Perugia and the Adriatic coast, 8th Army forces were reported approaching the large towns of Camerino and Macerata, meeting but slight enemy resistance.

Bitter Fight

Nouainvville where rises one of the three peaks dominating the port. Octeville is a fortress site two miles east of Nouainville.

Before this breakthrough other American forces captured by storm a fortified high point at Tourlaville, a mile east of Cherbourg, another of the peaks.

Making Steady Progress

Presumably these two breakthroughs were being exploited in bitter fighting because the Supreme Command's Communique No. 37 noted this morning that "we are making steady progress and now are within a short distance of the north coast on both sides of the fortress."

(Berlin radio this morning said after several hours of heavy fighting the Americans had broken into the outer defence zone in the south and southeast, but asserted they were stopped there. It declared "no less than eight infantry and two tank divisions" had been thrown into the assault.

(The German communique today acknowledged that Americans had captured a number of strong points and made further progress toward Cherbourg. Local attacks were repulsed elsewhere in Normandy, and Nazi coastal batteries "scattered" an Allied landing unit east of the Orne River the High Command added, with naval units sinking a 3,000-ton Allied landing vessel and a destroyer.)

Battle on Ridge

To the south, Gen. Bradley's forces had gained a foothold on a hill position north of La Glacerie at La Mare a Canards, three miles from the city. To the west there was heavy fighting on a long ridge overlooking the Divette River whose eastern end slopes down past the Village Nouainville just under two miles from the western environs of Cherbourg.

Yesterday's progress indicates that the fall of Cherbourg can be expected fairly soon. The prospects that the Germans will be able to enforce siege tactics on the American forces are scant, although it is certain that capture of the town will not be accomplished without a full measure of heavy and bloody fighting.

Cherbourg, with many of its houses in flames as the result of bombing and persistent artillery fire, is isolated in the narrowest sense of the word. Amored patrols are believed to have reached the sea on both sides of the port, British light coastal forces broke up what may have been an attempt to slip supplies into the port by sea early yesterday morning, and Allied air supremacy over the city not only ensures relentless bombardment of its defences but prevents any attempt by the Germans to drop supplies by parachute.

Nears Climax.

While the battle for the port neared its climax there was increased activity on the eastern sector of the 95-mile perimeter of the bridgehead after seven days of static warfare.

British tanks were hammering back what were described here as the "best German troops in France" in two areas. There was bitter fighting in the streets of Ste. Honorine la Chardonette, four miles northeast of Caen across the Orne river and Caen canal.

Three miles southwest of Tilly at Langraye Canadian and British troops encountered German armor yesterday morning and started an action which flickered and flared across the green rolling country throughout the long June day.

The Germans are extremely sensitive to Allied movement throughout this area, the slightest British advance is followed by a violent counter-attack in force. Every building and hill feature has been turned into a fortified position by the enemy and British bombers have just destroyed a steel works east of Caen which the enemy had been fortifying since the start of the campaign.

Elements of three German divisions are penned up in Cherbourg. It was announced that the 91st German Infantry Division has been identified in Normandy, bringing to 16 the number of enemy divisions named in the fighting thus far.

Yesterday's assault on Cherbourg was not accompanied by an aerial bombardment comparable to Thursday's tremendous pounding. But as the lines went forward hundreds of guns spoke from the hills searching for blockhouses and machine-gun nests on which the defences of the city depend.

It was savage, costly fighting, according to all reports from the front. All day men of some of the finest regiments in the American Army smashed forward into heavy-shell and small-arms fire. Each time a position was taken it was pounded by German mortars and scourged by rattling Spandau machine-guns.

The men who had gained at position dug themselves in and waited while artillery hurled hundreds of shells into the German line, and reinforcements raced up to replace the fallen.

This sort of fighting took place on each of the three fronts, but appeared to have been the hardest south of the city where by nightfall the Doughboys could see the smoking port and the blue sea beyond

The Germans admitted loss of many "nests of resistance" in their defences, saying the fighting was stiffest to the east and south-east of the port, that is in the Tourlaville and La Glacerie areas. American troops fought their way almost to Octeville in the latter area, the Germans admit.

One of the paradoxes of the present position is that the swift American advance northward increased their difficulties. If Gen. Bradley's forces had arrived in front of Cherbourg 12 hours later, a large proportion of enemy field units now holding the fortress would have escaped from the city southward. As it was, they were driven into Cherbourg and thereby reinforced the garrison troops. The task is harder but the prize is greater, for the fall of Cherbourg will thus mean not only occupation of the big Atlantic port, but the final breaking up of at least three German divisions.

Time On Allied Side.

Time is on the side of the Allies. The Germans, who have neither the room nor the troops to stage the counter-attacks on which any successful defence rests, are probably already suffering from the attrition of morale and material. From the standpoint of morale it must be remembered that many of the garrison troops are over 40, an age at which men find it difficult to fight on under sustained bombing and artillery barrages.

Break-in Staged At Magee Garage

The garage operated by Magee Motors, Hunter street, was broken into during the night and a quantity of cigarettes and tobacco valued at $50 was stolen.

The break-in was discovered early this morning by Constable Harold Mesley while patrolling his beat. Flashing his light into the building he noticed that the door between the office and the garage, invariably kept closed at night was standing open. A closer inspection revealed packages of cigarette papers scattered around the floor and when the officer investigated the premises he found that the thieves had entered through the rear of building.

three Mark IV tanks had been destroyed and that another crew had surrendered their tank intact.

Late yesterday nine Mark IVs have been reported knocked out with no British losses.

The battle now is raging among green fields full of rich crops and thousands of red poppies.

A staff officer told me an hour ago: "The battle is going very successfully so far."

On the other side of the River Orne southeast of Cambes and round the outer northern perimeter defences of Caen, men of a renowned English county regiment threw in a small attack yesterday and occupied a chateau. They were counter-attacked and driven out. The men replied with another assault and rewon the chateau. A few hours ago they were beaten back again.

These flareups indicate a growing restlessness in a sector where British troops are determined to expand their beachhead and the enemy is just as determined to contain them in the present confined area. The enemy also is nervous of our movements lest they create a strong hinge for a flanking move on Caen.

Godbout Fires Bouchard From Post On Quebec Hydro

Senator Refuses To Retract Statements Criticizing Order Of Jacques Cartier

QUEBEC, June 24—(CP).—Premier Godbout announced Friday that Senator T. D. Bouchard had been relieved of his duties as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission. The Premier told newsmen the Cabinet had adopted an Order-in-Council and that Mr. Bouchard was leaving the Commission of which he became head in its formation two months ago.

The chairman's salary is $18,000 a year.

The announcement came two days after Senator Bouchard, in his maiden speech in the Senate, attacked the Order of Jacques Cartier as a secret order.

The Premier arrived here by car unexpectedly. The announcement was made after a short meeting of the Cabinet.

(Informed of the announcement, Senator Bouchard said in Montreal that he had "nothing to say for the moment.")

The local newspaper which generally speaks for the Church, L'Action Catholique, had warned the Godbout Government and the Liberals in general that "this political party will sink itself forever if it does not dissociate itself with such a vile man and does not disavow him completely and publicly within 24 hours."

Withdraws Nothing

MONTREAL, June 23 — (CP) — Senator T. D. Bouchard said in a statement issued today that "I am not withdrawing anything of what I said in the Senate" in a speech criticizing the Order of Jacques Cartier Wednesday.

"I am still asking my critics to prove that what I said, or even part of what I said, is contrary to the truth."

The Senator said his critics would not attempt to prove that he was wrong "because it is the very existence of those facts which compelled me to denounce them, and my action was not motivated by any personal interest."

In his statement, issued in French, Senator Bouchard said he was expecting the reaction which his speech produced and after he had made his speech after careful thought.

(Mr. Bouchard's statement was issued just a few minutes before Premier Godbout announced in Quebec that the Senator had been relieved of his duties as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission.)

"My only purpose was to be helpful to my French-speaking and my English-speaking compatriots, loyal to the Canadian ideal, and I was convinced that it was my duty to take the chances I took, while there was still time, to prevent a national catastrophe. . . .

Godbout Man of Good Faith

"I have read the statement made by Premier Godbout. Mr. Godbout is a man of good faith and if he holds the opinion which he expressed, it is only because he hasn't got the information which I have."

(Mr. Godbout had said that Senator Bouchard's speech was "absolutely unjustified and damaging" and added that it "in no way represented the opinion of the Provincial Government.")

"I wished that Mr. Godbout were right," he added, "about the existence or non-existence of the facts which compelled me to take the chances I took in making my speech."

Referring to a statement of Maurice Duplessis, Leader of the Opposition Union Nationale Party in the Quebec Legislature, calling for dismissal of the Senator from his Hydro position, Mr. Bouchard said: "I was expecting such a statement, since I have known Mr. Duplessis for a long time as the typical representative of those who cause national and religious discord whom I referred to in the Senate.

"Instead of answering my arguments, he uses terrorist weapons, and instead of proving that I was wrong he asks for my dismissal as chairman of Quebec Hydro. . . . When I accepted the position of chairman of Quebec Hydro I didn't give up my citizen's rights, and I did not engage myself to keep silent when I saw the peace of my fellow-citizens threatened.

". . . It was not in my interests that I accepted that position, but in the interests of the people of the Province of Quebec. . .

Not Anti-Clerical.

"I am not anti-clerical in the sense that Mr. Duplessis and the people of the Province use this word. For him and his followers, the word anti-clerical means anti-Catholic and anti-religious; if you give to the word anti-clerical its actual meaning . . . you might say I am an anti-clerical like Mgr. Saliegea, Archbishop of Toulouse, and like the late Cardinal Verdier, whose reputation as a Catholic was more worthy than that of the chief of the Union Nationale."

He quoted Mgr. Salleges as defining clericalism as follows:

"Clericalism is the corruption of religion, as nationalism is the cause of the decay of patriotism."

"I hope," he added, "that the people of the Province of Quebec will realize that as soon as possible."

Britain's Domestic Agriculture Will Be Kept At High Level

Britain, capitalizing on its wartime experience in meeting its own food requirements, will never in future years allow its domestic production of agricultural products to fall to the low levels that prevailed in 1939, and henceforth will attempt to produce to the highest point economically sound the foodstuffs its population requires, it was said Friday by Professor R. G. Knox, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, who addressed a large meeting of Kiwanis Club members and farmers of the Peterborough district at a luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

"Never again will the British people let themselves be found in a predicament similar to that which occurred at the beginning of the war," said Prof. Knox, "and very serious consideration is being given to this matter. In 1939 93 per cent. of the members of the House of Commons were representatives of business, industry and the professions, and only the remainder had any interest in agriculture. That is all changing now."

In a trip throughout the length and breadth of England and Scotland, which he took in the early months of this year, Prof. Knox availed himself of the opportunity of inspecting the present basis of agriculture in the old country and of sounding out people in many different walks of life as to their impressions of food-producing and food-importing relations with the Dominions after the war.

Look After Themselves

"On every hand I gained the impression," he said, "that though the people are more than grateful for our contributions of foodstuffs and munitions and are indeed amazed how we have done as much as we have, still, when the question of postwar supply arises, they unanimously agree that Britain will never go back to the state of domestic food-production deficiencies that were accepted as natural before. They intend to produce nationally to the highest point that is economically possible, and only thereafter import what they need or cannot grow themselves.

Canada's Contribution

"What will the United Kingdom desire of Canada after the war on these conditions?" was a question put by Prof. Knox to many people. "They say they will want wheat, of course, first, then bacon, cheese and fruit. And they say they will want only high-quality foodstuffs. Here is an opportunity for us; and Canada today as it sends over goods, would do well to bear in mind that the quality of its products now will influence the minds of English householders as to their desirability later on." As an example of the extent of Canada's contribution now to Britain's subsistence, Prof. Knox cited the single instance of the bacon supply, where 85 per cent. of the United Kingdom's requirements were being met by Canadian farmers. This compared, he added, with a figure of 18 per cent. in 1939.

Planned Diet

In his address the speaker traced the steps by which the whole theory and practice of English agriculture had been revolutionized by the necessities of war and trade restrictions. He stated it as his opinion that despite long hours of toil, air raids and other extraordinary war conditions, the British people were "enjoying a good measure of health." This fact could be traced back to the efforts of a small planning group, who early established a basic nutritious diet which could be followed in Britain despite the exigencies of war.

In the food program due consideration had been given, Prof. Knox declared, to essential foodstuffs for civilians; and this had led to priority for dairy products, beef, lamb and poultry, in that order. Dairy producers had been given priority as to feed supply; and with the increased emphasis on the drinking of milk, children today were taller and weighed more than children of the same age groups had in 1938. The health of livestock was being built up, and in the last year 75 per cent. of Britain's total dairy requirements had been met domestically as compared with a meagre 27 per cent. in 1939.

The marvel of national food production that Britain presented to the eye of a visitor over there for the first time since the beginning of the war was portrayed by Prof. Knox, who revealed that in their search for means to stretch the agricultural yield the British people had converted parks, golf courses, football fields and much other marginal land to growing purposes for the duration. "In spite of the fact that the Army and Air Force has taken over a half million acres of the best level land for airdrome sites and training camps, today there are 18 million acres under cultivation as compared with 12 million in 1939," the speaker said.

Mechanized Work

For the most part British agriculture was now mechanized, Prof. Knox declared, and he mentioned visiting farm after farm where no horses at all were to be seen. "Over 50 per cent of this machinery is operated by girls," he said. He also made mention of the labor problem and said that often old men, girls of the Women's Land Army and Italian prisoners might be seen working together in the same fields. At one farm he had inspected he found 98 cows being milked and taken care of by two girls and one man.

Potatoes were being grown where they had never been grown before, sugar beet production was way up, and in regard to vegetables Prof. Knox stated that the British people ate more fresh vegetables per capita than Canadians did last year. It was not the same with fruit, however, and children were being raised on synthetic fruit juices.

What he had seen of the accomplishment of British agriculture could be duplicated in other industries, the speaker told his audience. "They are working shoulder to shoulder in Britain; and I can safely say it is not in a spirit of revenge against the Hun, but in the true spirit of democracy and the preservation of the world."

Frank C. Paterson, local agricultural representative, introduced Prof. Knox to the dinner gathering, and the vote of thanks was moved by Kiwanian John Troke.

Conservatives Postpone Naming Officers

CAMPBELLFORD, June 24 (ENS)—The serious accident in which Harry Fowlds was injured, necessitated William Goodfellow, M.P.P., assuming the chair in the meeting called for the election of officers for the Progressive Conservative party in the town of Campbellford. A motion was unanimously that a letter of sympathy and hope for a speedy recovery be sent to Vice-President Fowlds and the election of officers was deferred to a later date. The chairman called on Major Drope, Progressive Conservative candidate of Northumberland county, to address the meeting.

After expressing sympathy to those hurt in the accident, he spoke also of those who were fighting the battles all over the world, and extended his sympathy to all in these anxious days, which he claimed were also Victory days.

Turning to the political situation he noted the Saskatchewan election. He thought that Socialism should be confined to provincial politics as it would be unsatisfactory in the Federal sphere. He spoke of the rationing of food stuff and I quote "At present we cannot get cold-storage in Toronto for butter, eggs and poultry, and as a cheese factory can store only a ten-day supply the government was clearly at fault."

France fell in twenty-nine days because its government was weak, he declared, and said he wanted Canada kept British, which he claimed was Leader John Bracken's policy. A strong government should be elected so that all business could be stabilized, for the prosperity of all depended on the primary producer. The market for produce is the question and the Ontario government had opened an office in London, England, as England is the largest buyer of Canadian goods. Successful organization is needed for Canada as a whole.

The chairman, in closing, claimed the candidate would be elected. John Bracken was a strong leader who would do for the Dominion what Premier Drew was doing for Ontario.

Daniel Babylonian Captive Rejects Luxurious Living

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 25 is Daniel 1:8-16, 19, 20, the Golden Text being Daniel 1:8, "But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties, nor with the wine which he drank.")

NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S first conquest of Judah was in 607 B.C., and the events that transpire in our lesson today must have taken place during some time in between 607 and 604.

Nebuchadnezzar and his soldiers took many captives back to Babylon with them, and among them were young boys. The king spoke to the master of the eunuchs telling him that he wished to have certain Jewish youths chosen for their beauty and intelligence, to be specially trained, so that they might "stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans."

It is thought possible that the language they were to be taught was the Acadian, which was to the Babylonian world what Latin was to Europe in the middle ages. At any rate, it was the language in which the lore of the Chaldean sages is stored up.

Four Are Chosen

Four young men were so chosen—Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. The prince of the eunuchs gave them different names which were Belteshazzar, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego. They were to be fed from the king's own table which was furnished with all sorts of rich foods, meats, wines, etc.

Now these boys had been strictly brought up in the Jewish tradition, and Daniel made up his mind that he would not eat of these foods nor drink of the wines. He talked to the prince of the eunuchs, who loved him, and asked that he might not defile himself. Why did he think such foods would defile him? He might have been afraid that the foods were in some way connected with adolatry, or that he would be expected to eat some meats that his people regarded unclean.

The prince of the eunuchs said he was afraid of the king's displeasure, for the king expected the boys to grow strong and handsome on the food served them, and he feared his head would be in danger if he did not serve this luxurious diet to the boys.

Then Daniel said to the steward that had them in especial charge, would he let them live on pulse and water for ten days, and at the end of that time he could see how this food and drink affected them.

So the steward consented, and the boys were fed what they asked, and at the end of the ten days their "countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children that did eat of the king's meat." It is surmised that the "pulse" was probably a vegetable diet. They continued this diet for the whole time they were being educated as the king wished.

Brought Before the King

"Now at the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them before Nebuchadnezzar.

"And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, therefore stood they before the king.

"And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm."

The Babylonians possessed a high civilization. They had the elements of the telescope, and a knowledge of the eclipses, and while part of their science is now proved erroneous, yet the wisdom and knowledge they possessed was far from being contemptible.

Two lessons that we may take to heart are suggested by this lesson: The first is the firmness of character displayed by Daniel. He might have been the subject of ridicule, even of persecution because of his determination not to eat the foods and drink the wines that were apportioned him. But he was ready for that if his conscience told him he was in the right.

The second lesson is that of simple living, without the rich foods, and especially the wines that might have made him a habitual drinker. Drink causes so much of the world's misery. So many homes are made desolate by it and so many fine people ruin their lives by indulgence in alcoholic beverages, that we cannot feel Christian people should indulge, even moderately. Better leave it strictly alone.

Wise Fisherman Is Aware Bait Must Attract the Fish

Jesus said unto Simon: Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men.—St. Luke 5:10.

Renan, himself a master of literature, writes that this Gospel according to St. Luke is the most beautiful book ever written. The average Christian reads this Book simply because it is the Gospel. He does not strive to see the beauty and loveliness of the stories.

Here we have a pen picture of an event in a man's life. From being an ordinary fisherman Simon Peter became the great fisherman of the Church of the living God.

St. Luke, with the eye of an artist for drama, writes: "When Simon Peter saw it he fell down at Jesus' knees saying: "Depart from me for I am a sinful man, O Lord." If you are a fisherman you can see the amazement in the eyes of Simon Peter at the wonderful catch. But you would never guess what he would say. "Depart from me" is the cry from his lips. A fortune lies at his feet. It means nothing to Simon. The plain fisherman looks deeper. The Master, Who could see below the surface of the sea, can see into the very heart of Simon. That thought leaves him paralyzed with horror. Naturally he exclaims: "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord."

Simon has looked into the eyes of the purest of men and his eyes are opened to see the contrast between himself and the Lord Jesus. This is the ideal of the Christian religion. "The pure in heart shall see God." That is the outstanding truth of the Christian religion that when men have seen the beauty of holiness in the Face of Jesus Christ, Who is the perfect image of the Living God, that their hearts are filled with horror at their own sinfulness.

The highly respected Isaiah sitting in the Temple has a vision of God. "I saw the Lord," he writes. He sees the contrast between his own respectability and the pureness of Jehovah. "Woe is me, for I am a man of unclean lips for mine eyes have seen the King."

The men in the other boats saw the multitude of fishes causing the boat to sink. They did not utter this cry. They only saw the fishes and envied Peter's good fortune.

The Lord is looking for men and like a wise Master He is testing them. One fell down at His knees and cried: "Depart from me for I am a sinful man, O Lord." Simon had the spiritual faculty to see the spiritual Presence and he responded to the sight.

You may have the faculty for art and stand in rapture at a lovely sunset. You may have the ear for music and be deeply moved by some symphony. But have you the eye for spiritual things? Are you color blind when it comes to spiritual things?

The Lord is choosing a small band of men that "They might be with Him." They were to be the foundation stones of His Kingdom. They were to be the Apostles—the SENT ONES. As such they must be absolutely reliable.

St. Luke looks back upon the events of that day and with the touch of an artist closes with the startling, thought-provoking words: "Jesus said unto Simon; fear not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men." The writer is a Greek and writes for the quick, subtle Greek mind. The Greek word "catch" means "catch alive."

They were to catch men alive; men who would live in this world but be dead to the things of this world. They were to be dead to the impurity, bitterness, selfishness of this world. In this world they were to be alive unto God through Jesus Christ Our Lord. They would reveal in their characters something of His sympathy, His patience and above all His attractive power, so that they also may catch others. They were to become "little Christs."

The wise fishermen know that the bait must attract the fish. They cannot force the fish to bite. Is your religious life attractive? You have lived beside your neighbor for many days. One day your neighbour receives the dread news. His beloved has been "killed in action." Would he naturally come to you for sympathy in the hour of his pain and sorrow? If so, thank God for the privilege of pointing him to the greatest of Fishermen, Who is full of compassion and whispers: "Come unto Me all that travail and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you."

I HEARD THE VOICE OF THE LORD SAYING UNTO ME: WHOM SHALL I SEND AND WHO WILL GO FOR US? THEN SAID I: HERE AM I. SEND ME.

FormerRector Archbishop

By OWSLEY ROBERT ROWLEY

The Venerable Frederick John Sawers, M.A., recently appointed Archdeacon of York, was born, bred, educated and ordained in the Diocese of Toronto.

The Sawyers are of Scotch descent. The Archdeacon's grandfather resigned a captaincy in the navy, came to Canada in 1831, settled at Bobcaygeon, later moved to Peterborough, established and edited the Peterborough Examiner, and became mayor of the town. His second son, the late Augustus Sawers came to Canada in 1859 with his wife, a daughter of the late Thomas Rush of Diss, Norfolk, Eng., settled at Cobourg and afterwards at Peterborough. They had five sons and two daughters. The second son, the Archdeacon of York, was born January 8th, 1880, at Peterborough.

He matriculated from the Peterborough schools, won the Wellington Scholarship in Classics, entered the University of Trinity College, Toronto, was gradauted in 1901, with first-class honors in Classics, the Prince of Wales prize, and the Jubilee Scholarship. He took his M.A. in 1907, after having gained honours and scholarships, with high rank as a student.

Ordained deacon in 1903 by the Bishop of Toronto (Sweatman), and priest in 1905, by the Archbishop of Montreal (Bond), he has spent 36 of the 41 years of his ministry in the Diocese of Toronto, as incumbent of Lakefield, rector of St. Luke's, Peterborough, of historic St. Peter's, Cobourg, and since 1925, of St. Matthew's Toronto. For nine years he has been Domestic Chaplain to the Archbishop of Toronto (Owen); for twelve years Hon. Secretary to the Toronto Diocesan Synod; and for two and a half years, Rural Dean of Toronto East. He is Past President, and now Vice-President, of the Neighborhood Workers' Association, a member of the Corporation of the Univesity of Trinity College, and Hon. Clerical Secretary of the General Synod. He has served with devotion and distinction in everything to which he has put his hand.

A military chaplain since 1912, he has a splendid record with the Prince of Wales Dragoons, Peterborough; the army at Aldershot, N.S., and St. John's, Que.; the Heavy Artillery, Cobourg; and since 1925, as Hon. Lieut.-Colonel and Chaplain of the 7th Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, Toronto.

In 1919, he married Marion Rush, elder daughter of the late Henry Rush of Peterborough, a gracious lady, greatly admired and keenly interested in all phases of church work.

Archdeacon Sawers is intensely interested in Social Service, Religious Education, summer camps for boys and the Boy Scout movement. He is a Prayer Book Churchman, possessed of many gifts. A great asset is the merry twinkle always to be seen in his blue eyes. He is a valued citizen, trustworthy, sympathetic, able, tactful and beloved by his parishioners and fellow citizens.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Ann Wicher, of Campbellford, living at 260 McGill street, and two sons, David aged 3 and Bryan aged 13 months.

Decoration Day Ceremonies Commenced 51 Years Ago

On Sunday, Peterborough Oddfellows will observe Decoration Day, thus following a fifty year old precedent. They will march in procession to Little Lake Cemetery and after a brief memorial service, will place flowers on the graves of departed members of the order who are buried there as a gesture of regretful remembrance.

The first Decoration Day was in June 29, 1893, but before giving any account of that day's ceremonies it is proposed to give a short account of the story of Local Oddfellowship, which extends back for nearly a century.

The Otonabee Lodge No. 13 was formed in Peterborough on March 11, 1846. Charter members were G. B. Hall, M.P.; N. G. F. Ferguson of Queen's Lodge, Montreal; Charles Perry, V. G.; William Cluxton, secretary; and Harry Easton, treasurer. It was at first very successful but their very success proved disastrous. It took upon itself burdens that were far too heavy, got into serious financial difficulties, and ceased to function in 1850. These difficulties chiefly came from the fitting up of an elaborate new hall, situated on Rubidge street, between Brock and Hunter streets, which was later the residence of Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, Peterborough's great benefactress. During 1882 successful efforts were made to revive the Lodge under its old Charter and on December 8, 1882 opening ceremonies were held. Two Grand Lodge officers came to conduct the proceedings, M. V. Brother Robertson and Grand Secretary R. W. Brother J. B. King and they were formally received by a deputation consisting of William Cluxton, Dr. R. W. Bell, John McKee, and Mayor H. H. Smith. The following officers were installed: W. Cluxton, N. B.; James Stevenson, V.G.; Dr. R. W. Bell, R. S. U. G.; John McKee, L. S. N. G.; William Rose, R. S. V. G.; H. H. Smith, L. S. V. G.; E. E. Henderson, secretary; G. B. Shrover, treasurer; Joseph McClelland, financial secretary. Of these W. Cluxton and James Stevenson were original members in the old days of 1846.

In the early 1870's with the Otonabee Lodge, a movement was set on foot to form a new lodge and the Peterborough Lodge No. 11 was inaugurated in May 3, 1873. The Charter members went to Port Hope for initiation by brethern of the Durham Lodge of that town and included W. H. Scott, first N. G. Samuel White, Thomas Quincey, Edgerton Wallow, Richard Elder and George Mitchell, and 22 members were initiated at the opening meeting.

Coming back to the first Decoration Day on June 29, 1883, carrying bouquets and wreaths of flowers to deposit on the graves of departed brethern the members of the two lodges, Otonabee No. 13 and Peterboorugh No. 111 assembled at the Lodge Hall. Then as now situated at the corner of George and Hunter Streets, formerly know as the Cluxton Block—at 3 p.m. They proceeded to Little Lake Cemetery, 70 in number, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, and a very large number of the public attended at the Cemetery to view the proceedings.

On arrival the procession formed into circle, with the band in the centre and sang that grand old hymn "Nearer My God To Thee" and then marched to the grave of Judge Hall headed by W. Cluxton, N. G. of the Otonabee Lodge and J. T. Lacey, N.G. of the Peterborough Lodge. Flowers were placed on the grave by the leaders of the procession, and Noble Grand Cluxton said: "Brethren we deposit these flowers in affectionate remembrance of our departed Brother, Judge G. B. Hall, M. P. First Noble Grand of the Otonabee Lodge". And after more than 60 years the same formula will be used on Sunday This ceremony was repeated at the graves of 34 departed brethren. There names are available to anyone interested. It is estimated that there are now some 250 graves to be decorated.

The Oddfellows again formed a circle and sang the old Hymn "The Sweet By and By", and returned to the Lodge Rooms.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—II Corinthians 4:1-5:21

Scripture—Daniel 1:8-16, 19, 20

After Nebuchadnezzar conquered Judah, he chosen certain of the children of Israel to be reared as Chaldeans, and Daniel was one. Daniel, however, would not eat the meat or drink the king's wine.

The prince of the eunuchs loved David, and David told him how he felt about the king's food and asked the eunuch to serve him pulse and water, but the eunuch was afraid to disobey the king.

Daniel appealed to Melzar, whom the prince of eunuchs had set over him and the others, and he set before them pulse and water for ten days, and at the end of the time they were fresh and fat.

After this the king found these lads were better than all his magicians and astrologers that were in his realm in all matters of wisdom and understanding.

Decoration Day

Thanks to the members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows there has grown in Peterborough a yearly ceremony of honouring the memories of those who have passed on. It is good for us, in this modern day and age, to one day in the year let our thoughts go back through the years, and try to picture in our minds just what our forefathers, who now lie in God's Acre had to suffer, had to work hard for and had to fight for, so that we today might have a nation to be proud of.

They fought for freedom and democracy, they had to fight to get it, just as we are having to fight today to be permitted to keep it. Freedom down through the ages has been continually defended and millions of men have died defending it.

But to get back to Decoration Day. On June 29, 1893, the first Decoration Day at Little Lake cemetery was held by Otonabee and Peterborough lodges, and Sunday will see the fifty-first parade down George Street of Oddfellows. That first ceremony honoured the memory of 34 departed members, and fifty-one years later some 250 graves will be decorated.

But this ceremony inaugurated by the Oddfellows soon received the approval and support of the general public until now the entire community joins in decorating the graves in our cemeteries.

The flowers placed on the graves will wilt and fade; however, it has been good, for one short period in the year, that our departed relatives' and friends' memories, often held very dear, have been honoured.

Who's For National Sap Week?

The Brantford Expositor thinks that the business of tag-days, and the observance of special days and weeks in honour of Father, Mother, Fish, Onions, Apples and so forth has gone far enough, and as a compliment to those who think up and promote such orgies it suggests that next spring we should celebrate National Sap Week. We are completely in accord with our contemporary in this matter. Honour the Sap! How would the world ever get along without him!

We warn the Expositor, however, that it is not an easy thing to get a Week going. First of all, seven days have to be found on the calendar which are not already devoted to the rites of some fruit, vegetable or relative, and this is by no means easy to do. And then the week has to be popularized, and this is harder than it looks. About a year ago we attempted to promote a Let Your Body Slump Week, in which we wanted everyone to co-operate by giving up physical exercise (which we showed conclusively was injurious to the health of anyone over 18) and indulging freely in fattening foods and drinks. Believe it or not, we had no success whatever. When Mother's Day came they deluged all adult females in the country with flowers and sweets; on Father's Day they let their progenitors sleep as late as 7.30 a.m. and excused them from washing the dishes; Clean-Up Weeks swept the country and Onion Week was strongly supported. But we could not get a soul to slump in Let Your Body Slump Week; we slumped as much as we could, and people were merely rude about it.

National Sap Week will take careful promotion, and full co-operation by national federations of saps. But if it can be worked, it should become a big thing. There is an opening for something which will give saps a break.

Helping The Farmer

A farmer's wife with a sound of desperation in her voice telephoned the Examiner yesterday, asking for help to harvest the hay crop. Their crop was ready to harvest, but there was only one man on the farm to do it. Haying is not a woman's job for it is heavy work and we are sure the appeal which she directed is being expressed by hundreds of farmers throughout this district. Many of our school children have signed up for farm work this summer, but at the present time it is adults who are needed, and going to be needed much more in the next few weeks. This appeal is being made to the city dweller to give some help to the rural man.

The suggestion has been made that men might give up their holidays and help out on the farms. An excellent sounding suggestion, but one of doubtful value, both to the farmer and to the man himself. Few men from the city of the white-collar class are capable of giving help and those labouring men who have worked hard and under terrific strain for the past year are badly in need of relaxation. After a week or two in the fields they would return to their jobs more fagged than when they went away.

There are on the other hand men quite able to give a day a week or two half-days a week without impairing their physical capacity, and it is these men that Mr. George A. Gillespie is seeking to recruit. Mr. Gillespie did a splendid job last summer and we are sure he will do an equally creditable job this year.

But the extra help must be found and this help will have to come from some other source than the city folk. There is a reserve which still remains untapped and this reserve is to be found in our trainee forces. If these men are not going to be sent overseas, then they should be called upon to render some useful service to relieve the manpower shortage on the farms.

Humour And Horror

The emotions of mankind do not exist in watertight compartments; they flow freely through the whole realm of the spirit, and sometimes they form incongruous mixtures. How often, for instance, the solemnity of the mourners at a funeral will be disrupted by some small incident which impresses them as ridiculous, and they either restrain their laughter with difficulty, or give way to it and mar the occasion with their hilarity. The most horrible of acts may, by a sudden unaccountable turn of affairs, be shown up in a comic light.

Nobody understands this ambivalence of emotion better than the London Cockney, much of whose humour exists in the border country between what is uproariously funny and what is horrible or pathetic. Consider this Cockney song, which was quoted in a recently published autobiography:

Every Saturday afternoon we loves to drown our sorrows,
So we always visits the waxwork show
and sits in the Chamber of 'Orrors;
There's a beautiful statue of mother
there wot gives us pleasure—rather,
For we likes to think of her as she look- ed the night she strangled father.

This belongs in a somewhat different category of humour from that which is entirely heartless, of which the following may serve as an example:

In December little Willie suffered with a nasty cough
When they gave him a thermometer, he
bit the end right off;
At the funeral, Willie's mother (laugh- ing) said to Mrs. Brown,
"'Twas a chilly day for Willie when the mercury went down!"

Indeed, our first quotation belongs in the category which gave Britain one of its most popular convivial songs, the full text of which we add here:

MOTHER:
My baby 'as gone down the plug 'ole,
My baby 'as gone down the plug;
Poor little mite, so still and so white,
It should have been bathed in a jug.

CHORUS OF ANGELS:
Your baby 'as gone down the plug 'ole,
'Twill feel pain and sorrow no more;
Your darling now floats in the sewer,
Not lost, but gone before.

The people who created these songs were the people who withstood the worst of the London blitz. They learned to look misfortune in the face, and laugh at it, years ago.

Diary Of A Hot Week

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Another perfect day; whatever the weather may do to us during the week it has given us a succession of magnificent Sundays this summer. I had all my meals out-of-doors, and ate my first piece of watermelon this season. There are those who have a poor opinion of watermelon; they say, with justice, that most of it is water. Ah, but what water! Chilled and distilled in the labyrinthine maw of the melon, flavoured with natural sugar, it is nectar. The very sight of a watermelon parches my throat, and I must slake my thirst at once. At certain old religious festivals it was the custom for the worshippers to fall upon the body of the sacrificial victim, to tear off gobbets of his flesh and devour it, hoping thereby to gain a blessing. It is in that spirit of frenzy that I approach a slice of watermelon; tossing all seemliness to the winds I tear and gulp and drink, looking with scorn on those who pick at their melon, saying "Not a bad slice of melon." Poor wretches, they do not know what ecstasy can be!

MONDAY: Looked up the text of Matthew Arnold's "Dover Beach" today, as it has been much in the news since the invasion. Last night I heard a man read it from Vancouver, on the CBC "Songs Of Empire" program, and was not impressed; he cut the poem up into scraps, and each scrap was accompanied by mysterious squeaks and groans on the fiddles; this, I presume, was to lend "atmosphere." Arnold was quite capable of creating his own atmosphere without indifferent music to help him.... Worked on my scrapbooks, tonight; I am an inveterate scrap-book man. Mine are particularly full of juice, and are to be my gift to posterity. They record many aspects of our modern civilization which should surprise and amuse future ages. I have a particularly choice selection of advertisements, which throw a brilliant light on some of our modern preoccupations with Romance, getting your man, smelling nice, elimination, and making oneself desirable. It is hard to say whether Narcissus of Venus is more powerful in our twentieth-century Pantheon.

TUESDAY: Nothing interesting happened to me today; I was busy all day and had no time to notice what was going on about me. Often I am astonished, lost in admiration, at the amount of sheer clerical work—reading, writing and looking up things in books—which I manage to get through in the course of a day (Advt.).... But I did see a priest giving a group of girls some pointers about softball, and from the way he handled the bat I judged that he had been a first-rate athlete not long ago. It is surprising what a number of athletes of all kinds choose the ministry as their profession....Was asked by a young woman of my acquaintance this evening to mend her doll's carriage, which I did with a great deal of hammering and pounding, and holding nails in the mouth and similar professional swagger, which impressed her greatly. It was an easy job, and it was a shame to impose on her credulity, but I am such a bad carpenter that I must take praise where I can get it. The only nail that I ever hit straight and hard is that which grows on my left thumb, but like many men I am ashamed to admit that I cannot mend things.

WEDNESDAY: Visited my dentist today; I must be growing old, for I can now face a dentist with comparative nonchalance. As a child I had to be dragged; as a youth I used to think that the sum of human bliss would be never to see a dentist again; as a young man I sat sweating in the chair, yearning for the day when I would have a complete outfit of false teeth; but now I go to the dentist with only a mild queasiness of the stomach, and watch him fondle his array of button-hooks and nut-picks in resigned silence....When I was younger, I read somewhere that Mussolini had such perfect control of his nervous system that he relaxed completely in the dentist's chair, and let the demon jab and grind freely: I never mastered the art of relaxation to that extent. In the dentist's chair I roll my eyes, groan and occasionally pretend to faint, just to keep the dentist in a gentle humour....Why is it, by the way, that all dentists ask one questions when one is wholly unable to answer? When a dentist has all the upper part of his body, a light bulb and a kit of tools inside my mouth, I cannot articulate, and dare not yell for fear of swallowing the fellow.

THURSDAY: This was election day in Saskatchewan, and the old parties received a notable shellacking at the hands of the C.C.F.; now that a C.C.F. government is in power it will be interesting to see what it will do. The West has a passion for evangelistic politics; will Bible Clem Douglas go the way of Bible Bill Aberhart? ....Ate salmon today for the first time in many moons. Our Canadian Restigouche boiled in milk with a few herbs judiciously added, has no equal. I did not ask what it cost; the news might have impaired by appetite. Sometimes people say to me: "Mr. Marchbanks, you write a lot about food in a somewhat greedy manner. How can you do so when so many people in Europe starve?" My reply is: "At one time and another I have been forced by circumstances to eat vile food, and I deeply pity people who have to go short now. But as this great Dominion provides us with an unequalled plenty and variety of food, what good does it do the starving Europeans if I neglect it?"....One of the minor pleasures of the post-war period will be eating dates again. Should I ever be forced to live among Arabs, their date diet would agree with me perfectly.

FRIDAY: Received a note from the girl in the lawyer's office whose curious working habits I commented upon some time ago; she says that she does not want any liver pills but could make good use of the rose I offered. I must send one of my best home-grown ones over at once. It may have aphides on it, but I'm sure she will not mind. Aphides are curable with nicotine spray, but I have never been much good at chewing tobacco....Georges Barrere is dead; he was one of the greatest flute-players in the world, and certainly the finest I have ever heard. Before his time composers tended to look upon the flute as a tweet-tweet instrument, useful for imitating birds and for bolstering up coloraturas in mad scenes. Bach, as usual, was an exception to the rule. Barrere used to march on the platform with his flute over his shoulder like a gun; I believe that he was in the French army at one time; now he is dead, but he leaves several brilliant pupils to testify to his mastery of a very beautiful and difficult instrument.

SATURDAY: Following upon my complaint about the shortage of men's shorts last week I have had two communications. One is from a schoolteacher, whose occupation keeps her much in the public eye, who says: "When a man's shorts fall down he at least has his trousers to shroud his shame." Another, from a gentleman who sings the woes of a size 46, contain an interesting anecdote. It appears that this large gentleman had a friend whom I shall call P. G., a student at O.C.E. some years ago, who was so fond of betting on horses that he never had any money to buy underwear; but his fiancee used to borrow her aunt's silk knee-smalls for him (unknown to the aunt) and for three years he was gorgeous in purple and orange, even though his glories were concealed. Upon graduating from O.C.E. he was offered a school in Jerusalem, of all places, but as acceptance meant giving up his borrowed finery, and as he dared not go to the Holy City without any shorts of any kind, he refused the offer. Later he got another school, but whether he still wears Auntie's panties my correspondent does not say....This story is certified to be true; schoolchildren please note.

MILITARY IDIOTS ARE BAFFLING —By Thomas

In The City of St. Francis

(NEW YORK TIMES)

IN Umbria our troops are occupying the country of the most ancient race in Italy. The Umbrians, apparently the first settlers on the coast of the Adriatic and in the valley of the Po, were gradually pushed out by the Etrurians. The Umbrian plain, rich in meadow and vineyard, mulberries and maize and wheat, with its old olive trees, its oaks and here and there poplar or cypress, its gardens and orchards, its hills crowned with famous cities, has as much beauty, perhaps, as can be seen even in Italy. Our men who reached Perugia the other day are now in its neighbour, Assisi. On their way they crossed a Roman bridge over the Tiber.

In the city the portico of a temple of Minerva with six Corinthian columns greets them on a public square. A renowned Latin poet, Propertius, was born in Assisi, but it is the city of a far greater poet, St. Francis. This was his country, this plain he could see from his father's house. More than 700 years after his death the young man about town who gave up ease and riches to serve lepers and the poor is one of the best beloved of saints and endeared to very many outside of his own communion. His Friars of Orders Gray continue worthily his work. The Order of Poor Clares still hallows the name of its founder, the noble lady who gave up wealth, inspired by the example of St. Francis.

The fifteenth-century churches full of the treasures of revived art are the most interesting monuments of the city. You may see the garden where the briars he rode among brought forth roses, the garden of San Damiano, where he wrote "The Canticle of the Sun." The only fault of Rome is the excess of sights. Assisi is more easily surveyed.

Fighting the C.C.F.

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

FOLLOWING Saskatchewan, the old parties exhort us to fight the C.C.F. But while the old parties talk one way they increasingly act another way; their idea seeming to be that the way to fight the C.C.F. is to appease and surrender to it.

Not that way will the C.C.F. be defeated. If the old parties want defeat of collectivism and all that goes with it they will have to offer something better, something more courageous than a collectivism of their own. They are not doing that now.

What they are doing now, in the main, is to try to compete with the C.C.F. in promises of a heaven on earth; telling people that this or that can be done, no matter how costly, regardless of the national income, and, what is more, regardless of the national will.

That sort of talk, abandonment by the old parties of their traditional principles, not to speak of abandonment of common sense, is not helping the old parties. It is helping the C.C.F. Because people who want radicalism, who want change for the sake of change, are not going to seek it from the old parties. They will seek it, and naturally, in a radical party.

There is something else. If the leaders of the old parties want the support of the mass of the people they must go out and talk to the people. Democracy just can't be carried on, and political parties can't be kept alive, when political leaders adjourn discussion. That—adjournment of discussion—is what has happened in Canada. True, there has been talk—all too much of it—in Parliament; but most of it has been so irrelevant and so futile that the public has ceased listening. What hasn't come, and what should come, is a revival of the old, sound practice of public men going out into the country to meet and talk to the public; the old tradition of platform discussion now superseded by radio talks or no discussion at all.

The leaders of our old parties will have to learn that people don't sit glued to their radios awaiting pronouncements or speeches from public men. They want to meet them; see and hear them on the platform; be in a position to cross-examine them, if necessary.

The C.C.F., with its crusading zeal, know this. Much better psychologists than Liberals or Conservatives, they know the value of intimate contacts; have their discussion clubs and their volunteer workers—have what we call the "common touch."

A little more of the "common touch", of getting back to the people as the source of power, might do the old parties some good. That, plus more of courage in sticking to their principles.

General Alexander

At this juncture it is worth recalling that General Sir Harold Alexander, the Allied leader in Italy, is a brother of the Earl of Caledon and belongs to a family that has been associated with Co. Tyrone and Derry for more than 300 years. His wife, a daughter of the Earl of Lucan, is a piece of the Duchess of Abercorn.

At Dunkerque, General Alexander, then in command of the British Expeditionary Force, and a naval officer were the last to leave the beach. Later he was Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in Burma. In the war of 1914-18 he commanded a battalion at 24, went "over the top" 30 times, and won the D.S.O., the M.C. and five mentions in dispatches. Ultimately he was severely wounded, and on being discharged from hospital, he retired to the family seat at Caledon to recuperate.

Although still weak he insisted on walking to Castlederg—a feat of endurance which few fit men would contemplate—in order to show that he was ready for service again.—Belfast News-Letter.

Recasting 'Big Ben'

"Big Ben" is something more than a familiar part of the Westminster landscape or a symbol of the strength and traditions of Empire and Parliament. It is a loyal public servant. It is the most famous clock in the world. Besides being the largest striking clock, it is also the most accurate public clock in the world (uncontrolled, be it noted, by Greenwich Observatory).

The first bell was cast in 1856, but after being rung occasionally for some weeks it cracked at a great flaw where the two streams of metal meeting round it had not joined. It was broken up and recast in 1858 as the present bell of about 13½ tons. This, too, cracked partially after a few months, and for three years the hours were struck on the fourth quarter bell. Then the striking was resumed on the great bell with a lighter hammer striking in a different place. Mr. Harold Atkinson, who points out these facts in a letter to the Times, suggests that the end of the war would be a very fitting opportunity to recast "Big Ben." The present tone, though familiar, is, Mr. Atkinson says, harsh and unmusical in comparison with the quarter bells. This, he adds, is more important in these days than formerly, because of the widespread radiation of "Big Ben" by means of the wireless.—London Times.

War and Cocktails

The "blabbing" major general who was demoted to lieutenant colonel and sent home from England turns out to be General Henry J. F. Miller, a West Point classmate of General Eisenhower. At a London cocktail party Miller talked loosely about D-Day, when thousands of lives and possibly the success of the invasion depended upon secrecy. There was only one thing to do. The Supreme Commander did it, regardless of past relations with the offender.

The incident is regrettable, but the punishment was swift and merited. It should reassure the nation that as in the Patton incident, that General Eisenhow is thinking of one thing: VICTORY.—Detroit Free Press.

"COOKIE"

Well-deserved tributes are constantly voiced by press, platform and radio to men in the armed forces on land, on sea and in the air.

A word of genuine appreciation also should be spoken of the "domestic" units of the forces—field bakeries and kitchens—the men who bake the bread and prepare the meals just behind the lines. Not much recognition comes their way, but cheerfully and efficiently they carry on with their indispensable job.

Today, as ever, "an army marches on its stomach"—so here's a "well done" to the men in the field kitchens with the armies and air forces and in the galleys on our naval and merchant ships.

They also serve who only stand and cook!—Halifax Herald.

SHOE ON OTHER FOOT

Nobody has to tell the Germans the value of sabotage and civilian confusion behind the enemy's lines. One of the big reasons for the sudden collapse of France in 1940 was the havoc wreaked by Nazi agents among French transportation facilities far to the rear of the fighting front.

Now it looks very much as if the sabotage-civilian confusion shoe were being tried on the other foot. French patriots are reported rising in various parts of the country far distant from the fighting in Normandy.

The Germans made effective use of the Fifth Column when they conquered France in 1940. Now it seems they are about to discover how well the French patriots have made use of the four years in which they have been preparing for retaliation. — Buffalo Courier-Express.

A Bible Message

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. (Isa. 2: 2, 3.)

Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed Barnabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren: and they wrote letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia....

So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle: which when they had read, they rejoiced for the consolation....

And some days after Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do. And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.... And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem.

And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily. (Acts 15: 22, 23, 30, 31, 36, 40; 16: 4, 4.)

Johnson-Cooney Nuptials Solemnized at George St.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated at the ceremony this afternoon, against a background of ferns and palms, when Kathleen (Kay) Cooney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cooney, 112 McDonnel street, became the bride of Osborne Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Johnson, 574 Division street. Mrs. C. Renaud played the wedding music, and accompanied Miss Phyllis Cowie during the signing of the register, when she sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white corded taffeta, with a sweetheart neckline, the skirt falling to the floor in varied loops from the gathered waist. Her veil and train of embroidered net was caught to a high halo edged in seed pearls, and she wore silk mittens and carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

She was attended by Miss Peggy Cooney and Mrs. R. O. Parnell, who were frocked alike in floor-length white embossed organdy, with full skirt, fitted bodice, and three-quarter length sleeves. The gowns were caught at the waist with Old Rose taffeta sashes, tied in big bows, and reached the floor, and each wore a Sweetheart halo of white net. Little Beverly Anne Cooney, niece of the bride, was flower girl, in long white taffeta, with a blue sash, and wearing a white poke bonnet. All carried nosegays of roses and sweet peas.

The best man was Fred Scates, and ushers were Ted Cooney and Don Pearse.

After the ceremony, the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, in a gown of mauve figured georgette, with a white picture hat, and a corsage of yellow roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in a gown of navy blue lace with matching hat, and a corsage of pink roses.

For a trip to Toronto and Buffalo, the bride chose a pink lace dress, with hat and bag of matching material, a beige boucle coat with platinum fox, and a corsage of red roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will live on Hunter street.

DOROTHY DIX

PHILANDERERS CAN BE CURED

Wives' Anonymous Letters About Reciprocal Attentions Bring Back Husbands

The most heartbreaking problem that a woman is ever called upon to solve is what to do about a philandering husband. Shall she suffer and be strong, or take the children and go back to Mother? Shall she kiss and forgive, or pay him back in his own coin by doing a little sidestepping herself? When her husband asks her for a divorce, should she meekly hand one out to him like a self-abnegating saint, or should she act like a dog in the manger?

Each theory has its advocates, but none of them seem to work out just right in real life, for there is always the broken home and the half-orphaned children to complicate the situation. Nor has anyone yet ever found any salve that will soothe the hurt pride of a wife who sees her husband prefer another woman to her, or dull the ache of her loneliness when she waits, hour after hour, for the sound of a footstep that is going to another's door.

So it is no wonder that when wives see their husbands starting down the primrose path that, because of their pain, resentment and bewilderment, they do not know how to stop them and head them back home. It is just a tragical fact that they almost always tke the wrong method and use the tactics tha drive their husbands still further away from them and into the Other Woman's arms, instead of luring them back into their own corrals.

The neglected wife, for instance, practically always dissolves into a sodden mass of tears who presents an invidious comparison to a glamorous creature with a freshly powdered nose and shining eyes and perfume behind her ears. Also, the neglected wife's conservation consists of reproaches about how she has given the best years of her life to her husband and all she has done and sacrificed for him, and it is not surprising that he doesn't enjoy being made to feel like the heel he is, and that he seeks the society of gayer and more entertaining ladies.

Good Way To Handle Husband

Sometimes, however, a woman who has a husband with a roving foot does rise to the occasion. Two of them have recently written me telling how they managed it, and the advise is so good that I pass it on as a tip to other wives.

One said she turned the trick by writing her husband anonymous letters. One read: "Your wife is young and pretty. Do you think she is sitting at home sucking her thumb while you are away?" Another said: "Do you even wonder why your wife never objects to your stepping out at night?" Still another asked: "Who is the man who comes to see your wife just as soon as you leave home?" And these letters, said the woman, got her husband so worried that he turned into a home body.

A wife, whose husband thought he had fallen in love with an 18-year-old girl and asked her to divorce him so he could marry the kid, said she told him that she would be perfectly willing to give him the divorce on condition that he would take the five children, one of whom was a babe in arms. The girl gave one look at the ready-made family and called off the romance.

So perhaps the best way of dealing with a philandering husband is to laugh at him, instead of weeping over him.

Westman—McMullen

HAVELOCK, June 24 (ENS) — The marriage took place in Knox Presbyterian church today at 2 p.m. of Helen Evangeline Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen to Earl James Westman, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Westman, of Peterborough, with Rev. John Davey officiating. The church was decorated with baskets of orange blossoms and the wedding music was played by Mrs. L. Colquohoun.

The bride was given away by her father, and she wore a gown of sea-way blue crepe, trimmed with an appliqued georgette yoke, and she wore a shoulder length white veil, caught with chrysanthemums, and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of pink Rapture roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Meryl McMullen, who wore a Queen's blue dress, made on princess lines, with a coronet of matching flowers in her hair, and white accessories. She carried a nosegay of pink and white roses. The best man was Williard Westman of Peterborough, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother received, wearing a British navy dress with white accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of Royal blue with navy accessories. Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. For travelling, the bride wore a beige ensemble with luggage tan accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Pretty Wedding Solemnized At Lakefield

A wedding of interest took place in Lakefield Presbyterian Church this afternoon, when Muriel Mable Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Smith, 541 Gilchrist street, became the bride of Lorne Noble Mahood, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Mahood, Smith township. Rev. Sharpe officiated, in a church decorated with ferns and peonies. Mrs. G. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length triple sheer, with inserts of lace in a full skirt, a sweetheart neckline, a fitted bodice buttoned at the back from neck to waistline, and long fitted sleeves coming to a point over the hand. The maid of honor received a locket, and the best man, a wallet. The organists's gift was a set of pictures, and the soloist's was a silver dish. The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely locket.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

For our readers today we have a mixed assortment of recipes, but for the fresh fruits now coming along, each one of these recipes will be helpful to the one doing the cooking. Given a guimpe it goes blithely off to town looking as urban as can be. This pretty New York design is of black shantung for the trim jumper which here is illustrated worn over a sleeved blouse of peppermint striped crepe in red and white. ## THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, June 25

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for all manner of serious, studious and spiritual activities, having as objective the stabilizing of all aspirations and ambitions of worth and endurance. This should apply to business and personal interests, in which the individual merit, responsibility and fidelity of advanced ideals should meet approbation from influential sources. Social, artistic and intellectual pursuits are favored. Personal magnetism is a factor.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which all serious ambitions and earnest endeavors should reach safe and sound foundations, in which elders, superiors and those in high places may be generously responsive. The personal element is strong and may be judiciously exercised for enduring and responsible results. Business, investments, labor, as well as all social, domestic and affectional affiliations are recompensed generously according to their worth. And there may be much pleasure along the way, but refrain from overdoing, and extravagance.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many sterling characteristics and dependable skills and talents, winning the support of those in power, with enduring success and happiness.

For Monday, June 26

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of sudden and quite unlooked for events, of a devastating and disruptive influence of far reaching importance in both the business and private relations. There may be defeating upsets but by a quick insight into conditions, with novel, original and ingenious plans adversities may be offset. Face issues with cleverness, and sagacity. Safeguard romantic ties.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by turmoil, uprooting or disrupting and devastating events, which demand the utmost intuition, sagacity and ingenuity to circumvent. Novelty, originality and daring may be the safest weapons for such onslaught, to result in happy denouement of surprise and personal gratification. Be prudent in all relations lest there be estrangements or disruption.

A child born on this day may have temperament and probably erratic trends with its own peculiar way of accomplishing its ends. Its originality and strange grasp of reversals and disintegrating circumstances may bring surprising results.

Duets Featured At Piano Recital

An excellent program of short, well-played pieces was presented by the pupils of Miss Elsie Chambers, in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening. Numbers were played with poise and assurance, with fine toning showing even in younger pupils. All selections were memorized, adding greatly to the effect, and the smooth-running flow of melody reflected patient teaching and application.

Miss Helen Parkinson, mezzo-soprano, who assisted at the recital, sang four selections, which were well chosen for her pleasing, expressive voice. Her diction and expression were particularly fine, and showed well in her solos, "Morning," "A Page's Roadsong," "Mah Lindy Lou,' and "The Enchanted Glade."

An interesting feature which Miss Chambers included in her program were the duets which her pupils played Instead of the teacher taking part, the students, all quite young, played both treble and bass parts. Duets on the program included "Climbing Roses" by Beverley Goodwin and Shirley McQuaig, "Echoes of Vienna" by Sheila Jones and Bobby Turner, and "Village Blacksmith' by Eleanor McGee and Miss Chambers.

Other numbers were: "My First Duet," "Pirate Crew" and "Yankee Doodle" by Fay Blackwell; "Daisy' by Nancy Zolomy; "Wallflower" by Joyce Edwards; "My First Tune" by Margaret Bryant; "Tulip" by Dorothy Kitchen; "My Lady's Mantle" and "Columbine" by Lola Harrison; "Marigold" by Sheila Jones; "Sea Song" by Margaret Freeman; "Slavic March" by Barbara Bryant; "Lullaby" and "Southern Nights" by Mary Robinson; "Roses Dream" by Shirley McQuaig; "The Merry-Go-Round' by Spencer Hope; "Old French Song" and "Waltz" by Beverley Goodwin; "Capriccio" and "Cat and the Fiddle" by Bobby Turner; "Sonata" and "Spinning Song" by Jean Rogers; "Blue Danube Waltz" by Marian Dugan; "Minuet in D minor," "Sonatina" and "Monkeys in the Tree" by Joan Billingsley "Tales from Vienna Woods' by Shirley Lawrence; "Sonata in F major" and "Waltz in A flat" by Eleanor McGee.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The two old rivals Westclox and Aircraft will tie into each other in a crucial Girls' Softball League game at the Ashburnham Bowl this evening and one of the best battles of the year should result. We call it crucial because if the Big Bens who defeated Aircraft at the beginning of the season were to pull off another victory this evening they would be very hard to head off, with a two-game lead over their nearest rivals. On the other hand the swing-skirted Aircrafters have the incentive that a triumph over the champs would pull them up on even terms at the top of the heap. Either Norma Strickland or Marg Selkirk will do the pitching for the Aircraft team with Annette DeCarlo behind the bat and other well-known players in the lineup are Eleanor Craig, Audrey Patterson, Helen Hunt, Irma Perdue, Marg Barrie and Lavine Whetung. Isobel Bullock will probably draw the pitching assignment for the Westclox team with Jean Castle working behind the bat. Other well-known performers with the champs are Marg Hawthorne, Aggie Anderson, Viola McLean, Beryl Dobbin, Verna Patterson, Barbara Rome, Nona Whetung and Joyce Withers. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and should be a wow all the way.

Every game in the City League these nights has an important bearing on the standing and the improvement shown by the second division clubs is making each battle a standout. Incidentally upsets are becoming common so that the fans have arrived at the conclusion that they cannot afford to miss a single fixture for fear they may pass up one of the season's best games. Monday night St. Peter's and Switchgear will meet for the third time this season and judging by the two previous tussles between the two this should prove a real argument. Switchgear won the first by 10 to 9 with the Saints almost spilling the beans in the final frame while the second game saw the leaders win by scoring four runs in the opening inning after which they were hogtied for the balance of the game by Gene Reynolds. Both outfits want a win in the worst way. Switchgear by losing this week find themselves threatened for first place by Plazas and cannot afford to drop another one while Saints and Soldiers are now tied for third place and a loss for the former Monday night would send them down a notch. Either Bert Harrison or Ron Akers will pitch for Switchgear while the Saints will use Bill Moorhead or Gene Renyolds.

Remember Senese

Memorable battles between the Peterborough Maple Leafs and the Niagara Falls juveniles in the Ontario juvenile finals a decade ago are recalled by a paragraph in the column of Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette in which the Cataract sports writer initmates that the march of time has caught up with Dominic Senese whose pitching was a feature of that well-remembered series. Says Gaynon: "It's tough to admit it, but what we have seen in games this season, Dominic Senese is no longer the outstanding thrower of past years. The boy who learned his baseball on the Niagara Falls sand lots, has been treated badly in recent games, both Welland and Pt. Colborne treating him roughly his last two trips to the hill. When the former Bright star was tossing them for Falls teams, he was a mighty dependable worker, but he has not displayed the same stuff since leaving the area. Dominic has a record that may never be equalled by a peninsula hurler, a nineteen consecutive winning streak. He really had lots on the agate those days, but the way he has been tapped this schedule, one is forced to think that it's not the same Senese. We have followed Dominic's play since his days with Canadian National juveniles, when he was the sparkplug in the club's climb to an O.B.A. title, and we hope he can shake his present slump and regain his Falls work."

* * * * * *

Pat Calladine and the members of the Peterborough Maple Leafs will remember Senese without any trouble for he was the pitcher who stopped them in the final game for the Ontario title after a great series. The Peterborough team lost the first game in Niagara Falls with Lefty Lesurf doing the firing and then evened up the series by a brilliant win at Riverside Park in which Bill Calladine pitched a no-hit game and had the Cataract kids eating out of his hand. The teams were ordered to play off at Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto but rain interfered on the date first set and both outfits made the trip to Toronto for nothing. However the third game was finally played at the Stadium on Thanksgiving Day and the result was disastrous for the Petes for Senese blanked them with a cool display of effective pitching. Bill Calladine was almost as effective for eight frames, allowing Niagara Falls only one run on a passed ball but the lid blew off in the ninth and the Cataract youngsters scored a flock of runs to make their win decisive. On that Peterborough team in addition to Calladine were Mutt Mowry, backstop of the club who is now catching in the Niagara Peninsula and Les Burton who went on to star in the Central Ontario League afterward.

* * * * * *

Peterborough fans who remember the clever battery of the Stratford Kroehlers, Pitcher Hazel Baynton and Catcher Jean Aiken who were the mainstay of the Classic City team which defeated the local Westclox in the provincial playdowns last season will be interested in learning that they are making a good showing in Montreal where they drifted a short time ago and that they may eventually land in the classy American All-Star Girls' League. Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald tells about their prowess as follows: "Apparently Hazel Baynton and Jean Aiken are doing alright for themselves in the classy girls' softball they have in Montreal, and according to reports from the Quebec metropolis both of them have caught the public fancy. The ability of Hazel and Jean, together with that of other players in the Montreal league, apparently has attracted more than usual attention, because Jim Hamilton, vice-president of the All-American Girls' Softball League, is paying Montreal a scouting visit, and the two former Stratford players are listed among the prospects he will give the once-over."

* * * * * *

Some good pitching feats featured yesterday's baseball, with Brooklyn's Ed Head contributing the outstanding achievement when he blanked the Phillies 2 to 0 on two hits. Interestingly enough the two blows were from the bat of Charlie Letchas who was with the Toronto Maple Leafs last season. St. Louis Cards and the Pittsburg Pirates went 14 innings to a 5-5 tie and Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati Reds 3 to 1 despite a six-hit effort by Clyde Shoun. In the American League the Yanks didn't have much trouble beating Luke Hamlin and the Philadelphia A's 5 to 1 with Walter Dubiel contributing a neat pitching performance. Boston Red Sox, the hottest club in baseball a week ago, but effectually cooled off by the Philadelphia Athletics were slowed down still further last night by the Washington Senators who bumped them 7 to 1. Early Wynn on the rubber for the winners had the Sox batters handcuffed all the way while Stan Spence and Gilberto Torres did some hard and timely hitting for the Senators. Incidentally New York's win and a 5 to 1 defeat by the Chicago White Sox at the expense of the Cleveland Indians left the Yanks and the Sox tied for third place. The Brownies increased their lead by a 5 to 0 shutout over the Detroit Tigers.

Cincinnati First Sacker One Of Most Durable Players

FRANK McCORMICK . . . DURABLE FIRST SACKER

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian

Hard - hitting Frank Andrew (Buck) McCormick, Cincinnati's star first baseman, is highly considered for his work at the plate and his finesse around the bag.

But Frank also is one of the most durable players in baseball.

While his achievements as a solid citizen at first haven't rivalled the "iron man" qualities of the late Lou Gehrig, the Cincinnati socker has proven his dependability since he joined the Reds in 1938 as a Syracuse rookie.

From the time Manager Bill McKechnie made him the regular Red first sacker in 1938 until he gave way to Bert Haas, May 25, 1942, because of a back injury, McCormick played in 652 successive games at first base.

Will Reach 1,000

That back injury stopped him from approaching or surpassing the National league mark of 822 set by Gus Suhr, ex-Pirate first sacker.

But McCormick has earned other distinctions as a durable player.

The big first sacker already has played in more than 975 games for the Reds. He'll hit the 1,000 mark some time within the next month. When he does he will become only the sixth Cincinnati player in history to play in 1,000 or more games.

Eddie Roush, one-time famous outfielder, holds the Cincy record with 1,399 games, Tommy Corcoran, the Cincy shortstop from 1897 to 1906, played in 1,224 tilts; Heinie Groh, infielder, appeared in 1,211 games; Ernie Lombardi, the catcher, saw action in 1,203, and Ivy Wingo, another well-known receiver of yesterday, 1,010.

McCormick, a native New Yorker, is rounding out 10 years in baseball.

Shifted Around

He began his pro career with Beckley, W. Va., in the Mid-Atlantic league, in 1934. He batted .347 and moved up to Cincinnati late in the season for a trial.

He wasn't ready, so Cincinnati sent him to Toronto, Ont., where his stop was brief. During the 1935 season McCormick virtually lived on a train. He'd just get his bags unpacked when he's be sent to some other club. Starting with Toronto, he was sent, in succession, to Fort Worth, Nashville, Dayton and finally Decatur.

At the start of the 1936 season he wore a Durham uniform. This time he stayed put, playing in 140 games for the Piedmont league club. He swatted the ball for a mighty .381 average. This brought him back to Cincy for the 1937 campaign. Once again he was shifted to the minors, playing most of the season with Syracuse.

For five out of the six years in the majors McCormick was picked on the all-star squad.

He has a grand batting average of .304 for his years in the majors. Included among his totals are 80 home runs.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

This week's play in the schedule has made very little difference as far as the leaders are concerned, but it might be interesting to note that there are one or two teams, in each group, that are right up on the heels of the leaders. And there are a few more further down the list that a couple of wins would put them right on top. No one is safe yet and no one is entirely out of the running.

The group standing to date:

MEN'S SECTION

| T. McMillan | 8 |
| H. Darling | 8 |

Last night's tournament will have to go down in our official book as "rained out." There was no fooling about it. The heavy storm around 4 p.m. settled the issue.

The bowlers in groups 3 and 4 are reminedd to be out sharp at 7 p.m. Monday. It is their night to begin play in the club's handicap singles. H. Newman is convener of this contest.

If the weather fairs up we intend to have our mixed tournament this evening. 7:30 is the hour.

Open Day Held At Cairo School

FRASERVILLE, June 24 (ENS) — The pupils and teacher, Miss Jean Staples of Cairo School, Fraserville, held Open Day at the school this week, from 1.30 to 3.30.

An interesting program was put on by the pupils. It consisted of different readings and several songs sung by the school. The names of all the boys of the community who are serving in the army were read and all joined in singing O Canada in their honor.

At the close of the program a surprise had been prepared by the pupils for Miss Staples, who has been their teacher for three years and is leaving this term. She was asked to take a chair on the platform, and the pupils formed a half circle around her. John Waterman read an address on behalf of the pupils, voicing their regret in losing their teacher. Billy Douglas presented Miss Staples with a silver bread tray with the letter "S" engraved on it, and the year 1944. Greta Moncrief also presented her with an autograph book with a verse written in it by each pupil.

The pupils work was on display and a half-hour was spent inspecting these things. The pupils had some wood work on display which they had made under the leadership of their craft teacher.

It Wasn't Murder

CHICAGO, June 24—(AP). — Herbert Abiley, radio operator at the suburban Willow Spring county highway police station, was disturbed when the two-way radio station shrieked: "Murder, dirty, dirty murder." The cries obviously came from a roving squad car. The voice repeated "Murder," and once shrieked, "Someone put water in my beer." Deputy Sheriff Jerry Counter explained the disturbance. While he and his partner were investigating a case a practical joker had put a parrot in their squad car—and the radio microphone was on.

Didn't Remember Marriage In 1921

HAMILTON, June 24 — (CP).— Oglar George Yake, 42-year-old farmer of Bronte, Ont., pleading guilty to a charge of bigamy, yesterday told Magistrate H. A. Burbidge he didn't remember his first marriage on July 12, 1921, in Toronto where he had gone to take part in a lodge celebration.

At that time he married his third cousin and aunt by marriage, Elizabeth Jane Marling, who then was 31. Yake went through a form of marriage again on November 20, 1941. He maintained he did not know his first wife, with whom he said he had had no communication for 18 years, was still alive.

Yake was remanded to June 28 for sentence.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Football came to life last night when the organization meeting of the Ontario Rugby Football Union was held with delegates present from five clubs which, according to Secretary Harold Bailey, will probably constitute the 1944 circuit. A subsequent meeting is to be called to consider any further team possibilities, however. The five known starters comprise Hamilton Flying Wildcats, who won the Dominion title last fall, Ottawa Combines, Toronto Balmy Beach, Toronto Indians, and H.M.C.S. York, also of Toronto.

William Ziegler's Bounding Home, winner of the Belmont Stakes, is among the favorites in a field of 10 three-year-olds for the $50,000 Dwyer Sakes to-day at Aqueduct Park. Other contenders include By Jiminy, winer of the Shevlin last week; Stir Up, which finished third in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, and Lucky Draw.

Veteran Wins.

Babe Didriksen Zaharias vanquished 18-year-old Betty Jane Haermerle of St. Louis, 2 and 1, in the semi-final yesterday of the women's western open golf tournament at Chicago, and will meet Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia for the title to-day. Miss Haermerle had distinguished herself in the first round by eliminating Patty Berg, former champion.

The American Hockey Association which suspended operations for the duration, held its annual meeting yesterday at St. Louis when Paul W. Loudon of Minneapolis was elected president. The members will meet in September to decide if the scheduled games will be resumed next winter.

The Philadelphia Nationals yesterday released Catcher Andy Seminick to Buffalo Bisons of the International League, subject to a 24-hour recall.

A recent arrival in Toronto from Vancouver, Eddie Smith, captured the junior 36-hole medal competition of the Ontario Golf Association yesterday at Rosedale Golf Club, but only after playing an extra hole with Bob Dilworth of Orillia with whom he had tied at 161.

First-Sacker Ace In Pinches

By The Associated Press

Ed Stevens, Montreal first baseman, is one of the big reasons why the Royals are in the thick of the fight for the International League pennant.

Stevens' knack of coming through in the pinches has won many a game for the Royals. In yesterday's game the only one played in the League, Big Ed smashed a home run in the last half of the 11th inning to give the Canadian team a 4-3 triumph over the Newark Bears.

The round-tripper was his sixth of the season and gave him a total of 37 run batted in. Only teammate Marris Aderholt has more, with 40.

Montreal collected but five hits, two less than Johnny Travis allowed the Bears. But Travis fanned seven to gain his second triumph of the campaign.

EVINRUDE

A Vital Factor in Amphibious Warfare

● It's only logical that the Outboard Motor, the most efficient and adaptable means of water transportation in peacetime, should be a vital factor in wartime marine operations . . . and Evinrude, the outstanding peacetime outboard motor, is the obvious choice for wartime efficiency. These rugged Evinrudes are packed with power and endurance. Light in weight for the power they supply, they are easily detachable and completely manoeuvrable. The uses the army and navy find for these motors are innumerable for they perform vital service in ferrying troops, driving rubber landing barges and powering assault boats as well as lightering freighters; building pontoon bridges and transporting equipment.

In order to enable you to obtain the most efficient service from your own outboard motor during these difficult war years; Evinrude offers you a FREE, fifty-two page conservation booklet, "Know Your Outboard Motor." Address your request to our plant in Peterboro or to your dealer.

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO, June 24 —(CP)—The one sure way to defeat the weather's vagaries — and there have been plenty of them this year—apparently was discovered by two female golfers out in Edmonton. They got tired waiting for the rains to stop, so donned bathing suits and hied forth to the fairways, splashing merrily across the soggy greens.

We didn't hear how they made out or what their scores were, but imagine they had a heap of fun. They stole a march on the other golfers anyway, since they were practically the only people who played golf all week in the Edmonton area, opined George Mackintosh in the Edmonton Journal.

The thing opens up great possibilities, though. Who knows but what those hardy she-westerners may come up with a brand new game of water-golf or suchlike that will revolutionize the ancient pastime.

Home Ties:

Regimental Sergeant Major Bill Hogarth, one-time prominent hockeyist and athlete around Fort William, is overseas but still is thinking of sport.

He has offered to donate a cup to the athlete male or female, doing the most for the Lakehead City in the sport world. The cup would be dedicated to the 4th Field Ambulance unit.

By The Way:

There wasn't much to choose between the top riders at Montreal's King's Park race meet, just concluded. Jockey Leslie Backett was top rider, but only 10 points separated the first four boys. Backett's placings and showings gave him the edge....The Rothesay (N.B.) Yacht Club has decided to install a nickelodeon in the clubhouse this summer. We hope the yachtsmen aren't going soft. There was a time when your true sailor thought of other things besides listening to jive when he sailed past the clubhouse marker and hit what corresponded to your golfer's 19th hole....Night soccer is being inaugurated in Montreal next month.

Base-Stealing Stirnweiss Aiding Yankees

BY JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

George (Snyffy) Stirnweiss second basemen of the New York Yankees not only has filled the shoes of Joe Gordon to everybody's satisfaction, but is stealing everything in sight with them.

Yesterday he was responsible for all his team's runs, besides pilfering his 16th base in 18 attempts, as the Yankees defeated the Philadelphia athletics, 5-1. This victory enabled the world champions to climb into a tie for third place with the Chicago White Sox.

Stirnweiss made three hits, including a double, drove in three runs and scored the other two. One of his tallies resulted from his steal in the third inning, and it was the 14th time he had scored by a steal. Snuffy leads all the Yankees at bat with at .284 average.

2nd Shutout

Sigmund Jukacki hurled his second successive shutout against Detroit to give the League-leading St. Louis Browns a 5-0 victory.

Cleveland climbed into a three-way tie for sixth place with Philadelphia and Washington by defeating the Chicago White Sox 5-1. Al Smith stymied the pale hose with four hits for his fourth triumph.

The Senators dropped the Boston Red Sox to three games from first place by scoring an easy 7-1 triumph. Gilbert Torress and Stan Spence led the Nats' attack with three hits apiece and each drove in a pair of runs.

Ed Head, sore-arm Dodger hurler, pitched his fourth victory of the season without a defeat when he held the Philadelphia Phillies to two hits in blanking them 2-0.

St. Louis and Pittsburgh battled 14 innings to a 5-5 tie in a game called by curfew. Each team used five pitchers.

The Chicago Cubs handed the Reds their fourth straight defeat, scoring twice in the opening stanza, to win 3-1.

School Pupils Take Part In Track Meet

The annual picnic of Queen Mary School was coupled with a field and track meet, this year, to make an afternoon of especial interest to children and grown-ups. Three special series of events were conducted: boys and girls from Grades 1 to 5; boys from Grades 4 to 8; and girls from 11 to 14 years of age. A special cup was awarded by O. M. Steer, principal, to the class winning the most points in the events open to pupils from kindergarten to Grade 5, with Miss J. McNaughton's class with 10 points, leading the field in the competition.

Ribbons and treats were awarded to champions in other fields. Several competitions were conducted, with first, second, and third receiving a certain number of points. The pupil with the highest total was named a champion. # Says Free Press Essential To World Peace

DETROIT, June 24 (AP)—Terming freedom of the press throughout the world a means of preserving future peace, John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, today appointed a committee of 13 editors to establish the principle in future national and international agreements.

"The people do not desire war and all peoples would discourage it if the real causes or motives for war were exposed through the daily publication of news free from the influence of self interest," said Knight, publisher of the Detroit Free Press, the Akron Beacon Journal and the Miami Herald.

Appointment of the committee on freedom of communications" was provided for in a resolution adopted at the April meeting of the A.S.N.E. Its first action, Knight said, would be to seek adoption of freedom of the press resolutions by the Republican, Democratic National political conventions.

Members of th committee are: Ralph E. McGill, Atlanta Constitution, chairman; Carl W. Ackerman, graduate school of journalism, Columbia University, vice-chairman; Palmer Hoyt, Portland Oregonian; Laurence L. Winship, Boston Globe; Ralph Coghlan, St. Louis Post Dispatch; Raymond McCaw, New York Times; Paul Scott Mowrer, Chicago Daily News; Nelson D. Poynter, St. Petersburg Times; Carl D. Groat, Cincinnati Post; Sevellon Brown, Providence Journal Bulletin; James E. Chappell, Birmingham News and Age Herald; Gardener Cowles, Jr., Des Moines Register and Tribune; and John H. Sorrells, Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Knight, who recently completed an assignment in London as liaison officer between British and United States censorship offices, urged "all persons having to do with the freedom of the press and who are interested in any movement connected with peace settlement" to seek provisions in future agreements guaranteeing:

1. A declaration for freedom of speech and press, and condemnation of peace-time censorship and distortion and tainting of the flow of news and information.

2. Equality of access in all countries by all properly accredited press and radio representatives, domestic or foreign, to news at its source, for if truth is available to all at the same time, truthful men and reporters will be present, and truthful accounts will eventually prevail.

3. Equality of access for all properly accredited press and radio representatives to transmission facilities, which shall be adequate, and which shall promptly transmit news at reasonable rates.

First Permanent Group Of C.W.A.C.'s Reach Italy

By BILL DOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 24 (CP Cable).—Reinforcements for infantry, armored, artillery and administrative units, together with another mixed Canadian concert party and the first C.W.A.C. detachment assigned for permanent duty in this theatre are among the latest Canadiau service personnel to reach Italy.

Also included in the draft were a Canadian tobacco depot, part of the military postal service, which came to inaugurate a new method of gift cigarette delivery to the troops, and the first Canadian officers to come to Italy for service with British army units.

There were 25 members in the C.W.A.C. party, which included a concert group led by CSM. Bill Harding, Toronto actor. All privates except Sgt. Connie Vernon, Toronto comedienne, the C.W.A.C. concert party included May Gilchrist, Windsor, Ont., Jean Gillant, Hamilton, Ont., and Doris Shepherd, Kingston Ont. The party staged five shows during the voyage.

Under Lieut. Joe D. O'Connell of Vancouver the tobacco depot will institute the new cigaret delivery system. Beginning next month parcels will go forth from bulk stores here with gummed address slips flown regularly from Canada.

Under this new system it is expected smokes will be delivered within a fortnight of the order being placed in Canada. Already there are supplies of "hundreds of millions" of cigarets in this country ready for arrival of the first labels. Each officer and man will be limited to three packages of 300 cigarettes a month. Packages of 1,000 cigarets will be discontinued.

Tobacco Depot

Members of the tobacco depot included Cpl. John Haughton, Guelph, Ont., and Pte. V. E. McBride, Windsor, Ont.

Captains Jack Chambers and Maurice J. Creehan and Lieutenants Alastier McLennan and Gus Lefevere, all of Vancouver, were the first Canadians to reach Italy for service with British Army Units. Formerly officers in the Irish Fusiliers, a Vancouver regiment, they volunteered under the government scheme making trained Canadia[illegible] leaders available to Britain. Th[illegible] four chose the Irish Fusiliers, parent regiment of their Vancouver unit.

Included in the draft was a small gorup of R.C.A.F. personnel, among whom were LACS. Don Skeere, Brantford, Ont., Jack Waldron, [illegible]n, Ont. and Ralph Bowers, [illegible], Ont.,

Among Infantry reinforcements were Ptes. Lawrence Kelly, Ottawa, Donald Sakin, Weymouth, N. S., Archie R. Rasley, former Halifax Chronicle Sport Writer, Roy W. Taylor, Hamilton, Ont., and John O. Turcotte, Owen Sound.

Best Miniature Gardens Win Prizes

WESTWOOD, June 24—(ENS)—Twenty-seven women attended the June meeting of the Women's Institute this week in the town hall. The president, Mrs. S. Graham, presided over an interesting program. The life of the Canadian poetess, Mrs. Alfred Watt, was reviewed by Mrs. Jane Thompson. A splendid report of the district annual convention held recently in Peterborough was given by the delegate, Mrs. A. Wood. One of the features stressed was the continuance of the oratorical contests for public school children and suggested early preparation in September for the coming fall season.

An excellent paper on "What a Good Home Is" was given by Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge, giving many valuable hints on the proper method of raising children. A solo, "When the Harbor Lights Are Burning," by Mrs. Morris and a humorous reading, "Mr. Turvy-Top Sews On a Button," by Mrs. Wood, were given.

W.M.S. Of St. Andrew's Church Plans Quilting

MILLBROOK, June 24—(ENS)—The June meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church was held Wednesday at the parsonage, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, and her mother, Mrs. George Trevor, of Masonville, Quebec, were joint hostesses.

It was decided to hold a quilting sometime in July or August and to combine with this the regular session this gathering to take the place of two summer meetings.

Mrs. Irwin Hatherly read an interesting letter from Miss M. Banfill, missionary nurse in Newfoundland, and Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Brown of Lindsay, who is Miss M. E. Needham's guest, upon request, gave an impromptu talk on the work done by the community friendship committee of the W.M.S. in Queen Street United Church in her home town. As the Presbyterial secretary for this important work, Mrs. Brown's talk was informative, since there are so many war workers in Lindsay, and many new families coming and going all the time. Others outside the W.M.S. membership are asked to help with the visiting and relief work, and ten new members have been gained through the friendship visitations.

Miss E. L. Hetherington gave a few items of interest from the recent meeting of the Dominion Board, and also told of the work being done by a local member, Miss Luella Kennedy, who is engaged as assistant superintendent in the farm service camp at Holland Marsh, north of Toronto. There are 60 boys in the camp, and seven women to look after their needs, with a man in charge of the boys' sleeping quarters. The women rise at 5:30 a.m., prepare breakfast, and lunches which the boys take with them for the noon hour, a hot dinner being ready when they return at 5:30 p.m. Miss Kennedy's room-mate is a Japanese girl, a graduate of the University of Toronto, cultured, belonging to a good family, and a capable and clever worker at the camp. She is to be married in the fall to a man of her own race, also a university graduate, in chemistry. Both are loyal to the Allied cause. A letter conveying the Auxiliary's greetings will be sent to Miss Kennedy this week.

Mrs. J. H. George gave the closing prayer, after Mrs. J. McKnight had presented the temperance message, and Mrs. F. J. Smith that on Christian stewardship. Afterward the hostesses served lunch, Mrs. Trevor pouring tea, and Mrs. H. A. Kerr assisting Mrs. Sisco with more than thirty guests. The latter, before leaving were invited to go upstairs and view the wedding gifts of Mrs. Vernon Ryerse (nee Barbara Sisco), whose marriage took place the previous Saturday.

SHE BUILDS SHIPS, TOO—Smiling at you here is Vivian Peterson, who won the semi-final contest in the "Beautiful Legs" competition at Palisades Park, N.J., and who will compete in the grand finals on July 1. Miss Peterson made that novel bathing suit in her spare time. When she isn't winning leg contests Miss Peterson builds ships as a welder.

Housing Scheme Annoys Hon. J. F. Pouliot

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 24 — (CP). — Housing is a top ranking problem for many Canadians these days and J. F. Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) thinks that members of the Commons and Senate are being discriminated against because they are barred frim taking advantage of the Government's housing plan.

The Independence of Parliament Act, which prevents members of Parliament from entering into contracts with the Government, is the stumbling block, but when the subject received passing reference in the House the other day, Finance Minister Isley expressed doubt whether the Government would be justified in amending the Act for the purpose, Mr. Pouliot suggested.

"All other Canadians can take advantage of the housing schemes and I don't see why the Independence of Parliament Act should not be amended to permit a member of Parliament to have his own little home under a Government housing scheme, the same as any other Canadians," Mr. Pouliot said.

"Some members might say that they are entitled to have their own little contracts with the Government just like any other Canadian citizen, but they cannot," Mr. Ilsley replied.

Carnival To Operate If Rain Holds Off

Although the Rotary carnival was washed out Friday night by the downpour and the weather this morning was not reassuring the Rotarians decided that unless it was raining early this evening they would go ahead with the carnival.

Weather sharps have predicted that it would clear up this afternoon and that it would be quite possible to go ahead with the big event tonight, hence the decision to go ahead-unless the bad weather persisted until the early evening.

So if it is clear this evening the annual event will be in full swing with the draw for the automobile and also for a $50 Victory bond as big items on the program.

Should however the conditions in the early evening prove unfavorable the carnival will be postponed until next week, with no definite date as yet decided.

Sunday Schools Meet At Hiawatha

The annual convention of Sunday Schools of the Township of Otonabee was held at Hiawatha recently, with Miss Marion Beatty, president, presiding. The theme for the program was "They shall all be taught of God." The worship period conducted by four young women of the Coldsprings Sunday School followed the address of welcome by H. Lander, who has charge of the church activities.

Miss Margaret Robb, a representative of the Religious Educational Council of Toronto, gave two inspiring talks in the afternoon and also led in the community singing. The business session was in charge of William W. Dawson, the secretary-treasurer.

While the offering was being received, the children of the Hiawatha School delighted the audience with their singing. Rev. Mr. Murray of Keene United Church led a discussion on "Things we would like to see in our Township.' This brought the afternoon session to a close. A delicious supper was served in the hall by the women of the village.

The evening session opened with a worship period under the leadership of Bethel Sunday School, supplemented by a solo by Miss Robb. After a short talk by Mr. Rowland, the officers for the coming year were installed by Rev. Mr. Murray, as follows: President, Angus Adamson; vice-president, Mary Tully; secretary-treasurer, William Dawson; boys' work, T. Gall; girls' work Mrs. R. McIntyre; children's work Mrs. D. Rose.

William Drummond and his daughter of Keene United Church contributed a musical number. This was followed by the address of the evening by Miss Robb.

96 Work Permits Issued In City

KINGSTON, June 23 — Forty-seven work permits have been issued by the school attendance officer, Mrs. J. A. Capell, for the first five months of this year.

In cities of comparable size, Oshawa and Peterborough, Trustee E. B. Cogswell, who conducted a survey into the subject, discovered 28 permits had been issued in the former city for the same period of time and 94 had been issued in Peterborough.

The survey was made in answer to a question asked by Trustee F. B. Pense at the last regular meeting of the board. At that time he said he thought there were a great number of youngsters of school age working in different plants in the city and asked if all had secured permits.

Trustee Cogswell secured figures from the Board of Education in Toronto, and the Department of Education. He learned that work permits issued in the Province of Ontario in 1938 totalled 2,257; 1939, 2,856; 1940, 6,214; 1941, 10,734; 1942, 12,792. Figures for last year were not available.

But last year, permits issued in Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston, including home permits amounted to 118 in Peterborough, 341 in Oshawa and 166 here.

Rocket Bombing Creates Need For Greater Aid

Since the beginning of time, war has always been a most cruel thing, but even at that there have always been some things that were considered outside its pale, and in recognition of this certain agreements between nations were made which if adhered to, would afford the civilian population some measure of freedom from the many atrocities that abounded in the days of the dark ages.

That these agreements or conventions mean nothing or represent just a mere scrap of paper to the enemies now ranged against the Empire has for a long time been apparent, and as time has progressed since the beginning of the present conflict this has become more evident, the latest examples of which are the rocket bombings of Britain from the north shores of the coast of France.

These missiles with their death dealing charges have now been making attacks for the past ten days in increasing numbers, and since they can only be aimed in a general sense, and do their work of destruction on the first thing they hit, it can readily be seen that this is a type of warfare that knows no discrimination of persons, whether young or old, nor type of building whether it be an institution of mercy such as hospitals or churches etc.

Indeed, only last Sunday both a hospital and church were hit, the latter while people were in attendance at their devotions, and to add to all the horror of this type of warfare, in the most recent days, an incendiary bomb has been added to add the horror of fire to the other destructive things they are capable of.

All of this must undoubtedly creates a greater need of assistance, which from the plenty that abounds in this part of the globe could well be given, if everyone could catch the picture of the horror these people must live under at the moment, and find that God given chord of sympathy in their hearts to loose the purse strings and extend them aid in their day of trouble. The Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund has every facility for transmitting this aid to them, and acts solely on behalf of the people of this city and district in this matter, giving of its services to the cause of Empire without any deduction for necessary expenses for time spent on its behalf, so that every dollar still has one hundred cents when it reaches them.

Regent Theatre Foto Nite

Under the leadership of Jack Marshall who acts as M.C. at the Regent Theatre Foto Nite every Monday, an event of some sort has been arranged to give the fund a further boost to coincide with the collection from the penny box located at this place of entertainment.

Another such was held last Monday, this time a collection being taken from those attending, to which the theatre added the $5 which it usually disburses in prizes, the whole making up the nice sum of $11.50, and when the box was emptied and counted, it added another $10.14, making a total in all of $21.64 that today stands to the credit of the theatre and its patrons.

In this manner, from out of the pleasure that numbers receive by their attendance at this place of amusement, other people are going to have much needed pleasure as well, and to those who have all assisted the fund in a steady manner for over three years now in this way, the fund management would express its sincere thanks.

1,837 Articles Sent Out By Red Shield

Mrs. J. T. Braund, president of the Red Shield Women's Auxiliary Peterborough, reports that in the five-month period from February to June, inclusive, 1,837 articles have been made up and despatched from the Auxiliary and its affiliated groups in Peterborough and district.

These shipments, which average 367 articles a month consisted of woollen articles for men of the forces and a great number of beautifully-made garments and much bedding for war victims in England. Mrs. J. T. Braund, with Mrs. J. Wood, supervise this extensive work. It is expected that Dominion-wide scheme will soon be launched to procure clothing for the post-war needs of European war victims.

FEMALE WOLVES

How to make love in one easy lesson was demonstrated in one of the restaurants Friday night, to the enjoyment of the patrons and performers alike. Two men in uniform were eating their dinner when two girls, who evidently knew them, joined the party. Some of the smoothest kissing outside of the movies was shown before the girls left. The men weren't leaving for the front lines, but they reaped the rewards.

City Escapes Worst Of Storm's Fury

The fury of a storm that struck with great violence in many parts of lower Ontario and caused episodes of striking damage due to wind and lightning as near to Peterborough as Toronto, happily avoided disrupting public utilities services in the city Friday night, or causing any very serious damage. Apparently Peterborough was on the edge of the storm, and all it got was rain.

But by the weatherman's report rainfall here was of near-record dimensions, and in the 16-hour period up to 8 a.m. this morning 1.63 inches had drenched the city and countryside. Between the time the downpour got underway, shortly after 4 p.m., and 9 o'clock there was .98 of an inch rainfall.

The aftermath of a giant gust of wind that blew down a tree in Toronto and cut the lines of the CPR telegraph was felt in the city as it was all over Eastern Ontario and all telegraph service via CPR. was interrupted for several hours early this morning. The CNR. telegraph office here, however, reported no interruptions of its service through the night or this morning.

It was lack of any forceful wind during the course of the storm that kept the Hydro and the telephone company free of casualties and enabled them to say this morning that all had gone well during the night. "We got off easy," said Ross Dobbin at the Utilities Commission, even though the men had rather expected something to develop." The story was of the same tenor at the Bell Telephone Co., where Frank Tufford the manager, said that "All was clear. And we consider we've been lucky, too."

The City Engineer's office reported that no calls had been received during the night, and R. H. Parsons said that he had heard of no damage himself. Here and there limbs of trees could be observed lying in the streets or back from the road, and a particularly large one fell across Douro street just east of the junction with Rogers; but none of these apparently had wrought any damage in their descent.

Peterboro Men Arrive Home On Hospital Ship

Pte. Nelson Windsor, 26, overseas three years with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, and injured in an accident three months ago in England, is one of the district men returning to Canada this week. The hospital train bringing Ontario casualties to their homes arrived in Kingston last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Windsor, River Road North were first informed of the fact that their son was coming home when a telegram reached them Friday from their two daughters, Wren Blanche McCloy and Audrey Windsor, who met their brother in Halifax.

Official sources have never disclosed to the Windsors in exactly what manner their son met with his accident, though it is felt likely that he was a victim of a bombing raid. He is reported to have fallen four stories, receiving injuries about the head and shoulders.

Pte. Windsor, who was with the Prince of Wales Rangers for three years before his enlistment in the Highlanders, worked at the Peterborough Lumber Co. for two years. He attended the Collegiate. A younger brother, Garnet, now in British Columbia, was in the army for a short time; and there are six sisters. The soldier is a cousin of Elwood Young, who just recently also returned from overseas.

Park, commanding officer of the 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers. The family is living at 52 Playter Boulevard, Toronto. It is not believed Lieut. Park was a stretcher case.

Other district men who arrived home this week included Sgt. D. I. R. Hornsby, whose father is Walter Hornsby of Cordova Mines; Gnr. W. A. MacLeod, the son of William N. MacLeod, 17A King street east, Cobourg; and Pte. G. C. Stacey, the son of Mrs. Flossie May Stacey of Wooler.

Jitterbug Dance Delights English Girls

English boys camplain left and right that it is impossible to find one of their own girls who can dance since "those Canadians" arrived, and the girls get back at them by asking why they don't learn to jitterbug, Charles Rogers of Brantford, Y.M.C.A. secretary overseas, mentions in a report to his Canadian headquarters.

Writing from an English town centre which until recently fairly swarmed with Canadians, Rogers reports that the odd Canadian still around is regarded "with that reverent awe, which I fancy was bestowed by the citizens of ancient Rome on the returning conquerors." The whole town had taken them to its heart, he says, and everyone was genuinely sorry to see them go.

"Until a few weeks ago everywhere one looked there were Canadians. Always within earshot was the Canadian accent. It seems disconcertingly strange now. Just as though one had moved away from his home town."

The work British women do for the troops is taken too much for granted, Rogers believes. He tells of women, young and old, who have lost husbands and brothers in action, and yet turn out to help at Canadian "Y" centres regularly, never mentioning their personal grief.

"One woman travels in from the country four times a week on a crowded bus. Her husband is an invalid from the last war. No doubt she is often tired and probably 'fed-up.' Those young Canadians drinking her tea and coffee will never surmise that inward battles against mental depression are constantly waged and won."

Comrades Take War Worker Bride-to-Be For Early Morning Buggy Ride Around City

Peterborough's early risers, or night shift workers, were greatly amazed, shortly after six o'clock this morning, to see a pretty war worker being towed up the main street in an old-fashioned buggy, decorated in crepe paper, and the usual humorous placards. The little miss so honored was Ann McKenzie, bride-elect, and a night shift worker in the Plastics Department of the C.G.E. At six o'clock this morning, when she came off duty, she was met by several of her co-workers, who put her in the buggy and gave her a royal ride uptown.

After enjoying lunch at the Churchill restaurant, Miss McKenzie was bundled back into the buggy, and taken to the C.G.E. where Arnold Smith, the prospective groom and well-known athlete was unceremoniously placed beside her, for another wild ride around the town. Finally relenting, the merry-makers gave the couple a ride home, and deposited them, smiling, but slightly the worse for wear, on their respective doorsteps.

Proving that their intentions were good, however, the group presented Miss McKenzie with a lovely floor lamp, as a wedding present. Two boys sitting in a trunk at the rear of the car towing the buggy held the shafts of the "Dobbin" vehicle.

CCF Gains Seat In Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 24 (CP) — C.C.F. membership in the next Saskatchewan Legislature was increased to 45 today with the election of Dr. H. E. Houze in Gravelbourg, a doubtful seat since the general election.

The Liberals have elected five members, including Hon. W. J. Patterson, whose Liberal administration was defeated June 15.

Dr. Houze defeated Major E. M. Culliton, Minister Without Portfolio in the Patterson Cabinet, with a majority of 95. The vote was Houze, 2,681; Culliton, 2,586.

The chief electoral office today received official returns from constituency returning officers, but they came in slowly, the first release containing only reports from 13 constituencies.

The official count in Cannington reduced Mr. Patterson's plurality to six. He polled 3,210 votes; Mrs. Gladys Strum, C.C.F., 3,204, and William Brigden, Progressive Conservative 687.

C. M. Fines, president of the Saskatchewan section, C.C.F., has announced that his party will request a recount in Cannington.

Electors vote tomorrow in the deferred election in Cumberland, remote northern constituency, where three candidates seek a seat in the Saskatchewan Legislature. D. A. Hall, Liberal, is seeking re-election and is apposed by R. O. St. Dennis, Progressive Conservative, and A. L. Lee, C.C.F. Mr. Hall was elected by a majority of 491 in the 1938 general election, defeating G. W. Smith, Conservative.

BISHOP TO RESIGN

OXFORD, England — (CP) — Rt. Rev. P. H. Eliot, Bishop of Buckingham, has announced that later in the summer he will resign both his suffragan see and his archdeaconry.

Liberals Chose Bruce McNevin

LINDSAY, June 24.— Bruce McNevin, M.P., was re-elected Liberal candidate in the constituency of Victoria and Haliburton at a convention held here Friday.

In the absence of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, the advertised speaker, an address was delivered by W. A. Tucker, M.P. for Rosthern, Sask.

Mr. Tucker dealt with the matter of conscription, stating he believed it would be introduced by the Progressive Conservatives at the forthcoming election. "In theory perhaps we should have conscription, but it would wreck the unity of Canada, one of the things our boys overseas are fighting for and sacrificing their lives for."

Under the Government policy 900,000 persons had volunteered their services, Mr. Tucker said. He claimed the callup policy was preserving the unity of Canada. The Home Defence Army was contributing to the war effort, he said, by maintaining and supporting the armies overseas. "Some people believe these 60,000 should be called up," he added. "If we adopt this method the country, after the war, will be torn apart. No, I believe the present Government policy of voluntary contribution is the best, and will work for the unity of Canada.

"We will have to face the facts and steel ourselves to meet the issue when it is brought up in the coming election."

On the rural and farm problem, Mr. Tucker said: "The long-run prosperity of the farmers and fishermen of Canada will depend, not on the exceptional demands created by war, but on secure markets at remunerative prices. We advocate a policy under which Canada will seek external markets through international co-operation, the liberation and promotion of world trade and the removal of trade barriers, expand the domestic market by increasing purchasing power, by stimulating consumption of protective foods and by other means; develop the growth of co-operative enterprise, keep down production costs by keeping down costs of the tools of production and primary producers."

LEARN BRIDGE FAST
80—The Hold-Up Play

THERE ARE many occasions, especially in No Trump play, when a declarer should refuse to take a particular trick because it is more important for him to take a later one. "Hold-up" is the name applied to thus holding up a high card. The purpose of doing this is usually to wait until the partner of the defender with the long suit has no more cards of the suit. Then, if he wins a later trick, he will be unable to return the dangerous suit, which by then will be established in his partner's hand.

This play is useful also sometimes in suit play, when special reasons for it exist. But it should not be employed as a mere matter of habit. There are times when it should not be employed even at No Trump because using it would defeat the very kind of purpose for which it is intended.

Here are four situations involving its consideration:

| | Declarer | Dummy |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | ♠A 7 4 | ♠6 3 |
| | ♥7 3 | ♥A K J 10 |
| | ♦A K J 10 4 | ♦9 5 3 |
| | ♣K 7 4 | ♣A Q 8 2 |
| 2. | ♠A 7 4 | ♠6 3 |
| | ♥7 3 | ♥K Q J 10 |
| | ♦A 8 6 3 2 | ♦9 5 3 |
| | ♣A K J | ♣Q 10 6 4 |
| 3. | ♠A 7 4 | ♠6 3 2 |
| | ♥7 3 | ♥A K Q 4 |
| | ♦A K J 10 4 | ♦9 5 3 |
| | ♣K 7 4 | ♣8 6 2 |
| 4. | ♠A K 4 | ♠6 3 2 |
| | ♥7 3 | ♥Q J 10 9 5 |
| | ♦A 7 5 3 | ♦K 6 |
| | ♣K 5 3 2 | ♣A 9 7 |

Suppose the opening lead against 3-No Trumps in No. 1 is the spade Q and the other defender plays the encouraging 8. By waiting for the third round to take his A, so that third hand has no more spades, the declarer has a virtually sure way to make his contract, by finessing hearts. Even if the finesse loses, the holder of the Q will be unable to return a spade. So nine tricks will be certain—one in spades, three in hearts, two in diamonds and three in clubs.

With the same spade Q lead against 3-No Trumps in No. 2, the declarer again should hold up his ace for the third round, then try hearts, hoping that the partner of the spade-suit holder has the heart ace. If he has, the contract is safe, and if he has not, it could not be made anyway.

No. 3 presents a case in which the hold-up should not be used at 3-No Trumps if the lead is the spade J and third hand puts on the Q, especially if the opening leader had made a spade bid during the auction. It is a virtual certainty that the bidder holds the club honors, and declarer would not like to have a switch of lead on the second trick through his club K. His best chance is to hope that third hand has the diamond Q. He should play his spade A on the first trick and stake his entire hopes for nine tricks on a successful diamond finesse.

No. 4 shows a case in which the spade J is led and covered by third hand's Q against his 3-No Trumps, even though he has a double stopper in the suit. If the leader's suit was of five cards, third hand would have only two spades. Declarer could win the second, then lead hearts, which third hand probably would win. If he then could not return a spade, declarer could afford to lose the next heart to the opening leader, whose spade return would find the suit still stopped. If declarer took the first trick, then when he lost one in hearts to third hand, the latter could return a spade, and the opening leader could then hammer the last spade stopper out while still holding a heart winner for re-entry.

Congress Meets Next Aug. 1 Recess Friday

WASHINGTON, June 24—(AP)—Congressmen pulled their travelling bags off the shelves Friday and railroad and airline offices in the capital did a booming business, with an adjournment to Aug. 1 expected by nightfall.

Republicans want to be in Chicago where the presidential nominating convention starts Monday. The Democrats convene in the same city July 19 for the same purpose.

The recess until Aug. 1 was fixed yesterday.

The legislators swept the docket almost clean yesterday by relaying to President Roosevelt bills providing $3,920,570,000 for lend-lease and world relief; $1,031,900,000 for war agencies; $562,145,918 for the agricultural department and $69,000,000 for the District of Columbia government.

The presidential nomination issue, which National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler says will be settled by next Wednesday, produced a statement from backers of Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York that party leaders from 22 states and two territories are behind a "draft-Dewey" movement. Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio told reporters he is in the race to the finish and expects to be nominated.

Interest High

On the Democratic side, much interest was aroused in Washington by a report from Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia that President Roosevelt told him he was "very pleased" to hear prospects are good for re-election of Senator Walter F. George, whose defeat he called for in 1938.

The President's reported remark led to speculation about his mollifying Democrats down south who have complained, and acted, against the administration.

Bearing on the southern political situation were these other developments:

Gov. Arnall predicted President Roosevelt will be nominated for a fourth term and said he may make known his willingness to run by means of a public statement shortly after the Republican convention.

The Texas Supreme Court, dealing Roosevelt supporters in the state a sharp setback, ruled that Democratic presidential electors chosen by the state convention and not bound to vote for the party's nominees will be on the November ballot.

Police Wound Youth Trying To Escape

BARRIE, Ont., June 24—(CP). — Henry Peterson, 19, of Toronto, is in hospital here under police guard following a chase along a nearby highway. Police say that Peterson was wounded in the legs when he refused to obey an order. Carl Checkett, 20, of Toronto, is being held in Simcoe County jail in connection with the case of a nominal charge of vagrancy.

Early today Owen Sound police notified Collingwood and Barrie police to be on the look-out for a stolen car. Sometime later two Collingwood Provincial Police constables noticed two men jump out of a flour mill; one of the men disappeared and the other made off in a car. Barrie police who were on the look-out near Stayner noticed a car answering the description.

Constable W. Robinson tried to stop the car and failing that he and Provincial Constable Tom Huffman gave chase. The car left the road within the Barrie limits and crashed into a service station. Peterson got out of the car and when he disobeyed the order to halt was shot in the legs by Robinson with a sawed-off shot-gun.

MANAGED FARM AT 102

BARKESTONE, Leicestershire, England — (CP) — Mrs. Mary Hornbuckle, aunt of Sir Horace Hamilton, permanent secretary of state for Scotland, died at her farm home here, aged 102. She managed the farm's affairs until three months ago.

WASH-TIME ON A CHINESE FARM—Every person in China, regardless of age and sex, has turned to the huge job of growing and preparing the food to sustain personnel of Allied air and ground crews that operate in China under Maj.-Gen. Claire Chennault and his 14th U.S. Army Air Force. Here a group of Chinese farm women, after a hard day in the fields, wash their clothes in a small stream. One woman carries her baby "papoose fashion" on her back. Since supplies brought into the country by air over "The Hump" from India, are restricted almost entirely to fuel, parts and equipment for planes, the feeding problem devolves upon the Chinese, who are meeting it splendidly.

Algonquin Does 3 Jobs During Invasion

Written for The Canadian Press By Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie, R.C.N.V.R.

ABOARD H.M.C.S. ALGONQUIN, June 24 (CP Cable)—The Algonquin has carried out with customary efficiency another bombardment task in support of Allied invasion troops as she did on D-Day.

The order to the Canadian ship was to exterminate a pesky Nazi spotting plane which had landed at Gonnerville Sur Merville, east of the Oiustreham Canal; smash a concentration of enemy troops in the field at Aux Braux and mete similar punishment to a further contingent of German infantry coming down the main road west of Gonnerville.

The Canadian destroyer carried out all three gunnery tasks with such despatch that the following message was received: "Commanding officer and all ranks of Royal Marine Commandos wish to record appreciation for excellent support during operation, success of which largely due your co-operation."

This was the climax to a week-end of history-making events for Canada in which the Algonquin, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. D. W. Piers of Halifax, played a leading role. Details of the main event will not be revealed for some days but it can be said that a few hours after the Algonquin carried out her mission she was in the thick of things again.

Led by the gunnery officer, Lieut. V. M. (Corky) Knight of Halifax, the Algonquin's crews knocked out the offending aircraft, softened up the Nazis at Aux Braux for an attack by the Commandos and then, when the Commandos had withdrawn with their prisoners, salvos from the Algonquin cleared the road of enemy troops coming down to support the concentration which the Commandos and destroyer's guns had already mopped up.

Senator Wants New Text-Book

OTTAWA, June 24 (CP)— Senator P. R. DuTremblay (L-Quebec) speaking in the Senate yesterday gave limited support to a motion by Senator L. A. David (L-Quebec) calling for a uniform textbook on Canadian history.

Senator DuTremblay made no reference to the speech yesterday by Senator T. D. Bouchard (L-Quebec) in which he attacked the Jacques Cartier Order as an organization which hampered Canadian unity and attempted to curb goodwill between French and English Canadians.

The motion seeks the appointment at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference of a special committee to have a history prepared which would meet approval of all the provinces.

Senator DuTremblay said the motion should be amended to define the history as a basic work which could be supplemented by other histories dealing with phases of history in which each province had a particular interest.

He said it should be recognized that it would be extremely difficult to get complete agreement on a single history and strong opposition to the proposal had already been voiced in the Quebec Legislature.

Debate on the motion was adjourned by Senator Cyrille Vallancourt (L-Quebec) who is expected to speak to-day.

TO MAKE CARS AGAIN

LONDON — (CP) — British manufacturers anticipate government permission soon to start making a number of motor cars for export mainly for colonial markets. They call them "X" models, either 10 or 12 horsepower family cars of small build.

TONI SEVEN—Meet Hollywood's newest star, 21-year-old Toni Seven—the only girl in motion pictures who uses a numeral for her surname—Toni 7. Until recently Miss Seven was June Millarde and then she appeared in court and petitioned that her name be changed to Toni Seven because she wants to begin a professional career "based upon her own ability." Toni is the daughter of the late June Caprice, motion picture star, and the late Harry Millarde, film director.

German Robot Bomb Damage Over-Estimated

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, June 24 — (AP). — German flying bombs have caused little damage of national importance and public utilities have been affected only slightly, Home Secretary Herbert S. Morrison told the House of Commons today.

The situation they have created has no resemblance to the lurid and over-dramatized picture German propagandists have been painting for the German home front, Mr. Morrison said, adding that if the enemy intention was to upset British morale the robots had been a signal failure.

"There have been periods when some 10 or more flying bombs were in the air at the same time," the Home Secretary said.

A few hours before he spoke the Germans sent incendiary and explosive flying bombs against Southern England in one of the heaviest attacks since the new weapon was put in action. Two fires were started, but they were quickly extinguished.

R.A.F. night fighters, guided by powerful searchlights, knocked down a number before they could do any damage.

Mr. Morrison contrasted the effect of the flying bombs with the German air attack early this year.

"Last February there were raids on Southern England on five nights between February 18 and February 25, lasting on hour or two each night," he said. "I have compared the number of persons killed in Southern England on five nights of attack by the flying bombs and the number is less than the February figure."

He described the results achieved by British fighters and anti-aircraft batteries in shooting down the flying bombs as "substantial."

He told of German radio claims that the British Government had abandoned London and provoked laughter with the dry comment: "Well, here we are assembled in Parliament in London."

An Object Lesson

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP).—Boys from rival Brooklyn hoodlum gangs were hailed into Kings county court on Thursday to witness, as an object lesson, the sentencing of one of their 16-year-old members to 10 to 20 years in prison for a shooting. The boys were rounded up on street corners by police and court attendants on instructions from Judge Louis Goldstein.

Soldiers Differ Slightly In Their Views

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 24—(CP Cable)—There doesn't seem to be much difference between the individual American doughboy and the Canadian soldier although the average Canadian, with longer training, has a more professional approach to his fighting.

The Americans are just as cheerful as the Canadians and just as enthusiastic. In many cases the only difference between the two fighting men who are neighbors in North America is the uniform.

The doughboy is the more talkative, particularly about home. He also is inclined to discuss the strength of all aspects of the American offensive which has been powerful indeed. The Canadian gives more attention to his individual role, looking upon such features of the invasion as the overwhelming air strength as something to be grateful for, but which still leaves him the job of rooting the German out of a house or stronghold by his own initiative.

The Canadian is more skeptical and takes less for granted. The Canadian, like the British Tommy, does more to be comfortable even in the front line.

On the matter of food, both soldiers agree. Because of the monotony of his individual rations the Canadian, who has tried American rations, thinks they're wonderful. The American for a change likes British army food which the Canadian eats.

The American can't forget home. The Canadian thinks as much about it but doesn't say much. The doughboy is confident the war won't last long now; the Canadian hopes it won't last long."

SALE and DELIVERY OF HOT AIR FURNACES

Temporarily suspended—commencing June 20th

Due to shortage of materials and labor, the supply of hot air furnaces will not meet overall requirements for replacements and new buildings, by a wide margin.

To ensure that the limited supply is made available to those most in need of them, the sale and delivery of hot air furnaces to builders, building owners and other users is temporarily suspended—pending a detailed inventory of stocks throughout the country. This temporary suspension does not apply to sales and deliveries by manufacturers to wholesalers, retailers and other established sellers of hot air furnaces—who may purchase for resale, but who may only sell to users against Certificates of Essentiality.

Manufacturers — Importers — Wholesalers — Retailers ARE REQUIRED TO REPORT

DELIVERIES IN 1943 AND 1944, AND STOCKS ON HAND:

MANUFACTURERS: Each manufacturer or importer must report to the Administrator not later than July 10th, 1944, the following information:

(a) A list of the names and addresses of all the customers to whom he made deliveries during the year 1943, and the number of hot air furnaces delivered to each customer (i) in the aforesaid year 1943, and (ii) during the first six months of the year 1944.

(b) Each manufacturer or importer who sells any hot air furnace or furnaces to a user (i.e., to building contractors or other users of hot air furnaces as opposed to retailers or others who buy for resale) must place a distinguishing mark against the name of each customer on the list referred to in paragraph (a) above to indicate that they are users and not retailers.

(c) His total production or importation of new hot air furnaces during the first six months of 1944.

(d) His stocks of manufactured hot air furnaces on hand as of June 30, 1944, not including "retained stock".

(e) The number of hot air furnaces held in "retained stock".

WHOLESALERS AND JOBBERS: Each wholesaler or jobber dealing in hot air furnaces must report to the Administrator not later than July 10th, 1944, the following information:

(a) A list of the names and addresses of the customers to whom he made deliveries during the year 1943, and the number of hot air furnaces delivered to each customer (i) in the aforesaid year 1943, and (ii) during the first six months of 1944.

(b) Each wholesaler or jobber who sells any hot air furnace or furnaces to a user (i.e., to building contractors or other users of hot air furnaces as opposed to retailers or others who buy for resale) must place a distinguishing mark against the name of each such customer on the list referred to in paragraph (a) above to indicate that they are users and not retailers.

(c) His total stocks of hot air furnaces on hand as of June 30, 1944.

(d) A list of the names and addresses of his suppliers, showing separately with respect to each, total deliveries received in 1943, and total deliveries received during the first six months of 1944.

RETAILERS: Each retailer dealing in hot air furnaces must report in writing to the nearest office of the Board not later than July 10th, 1944, the following information:

(b) A list of the names and addresses of his suppliers showing separately with respect to each (i) total deliveries received in 1943 and (ii) total deliveries received during the first six months of 1944.

(For the purposes of this Order, Retailers include plumbers, tinsmiths, and heating contractors who buy for resale).

REGULAR REPORTS of stocks on hand and deliveries must be made monthly by Manufacturers, Wholesalers and Retailers, on or before the 20th of the following month, starting August 20th.

APPLICATIONS FOR CERTIFICATES OF ESSENTIALITY for the purchase of hot air furnaces will be available after July 1st at Regional and Local Offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Applications must be completed by the person who owns the building in which the furnace is to be installed. Certificate will be granted in accordance with available supplies in each area, and only in cases of essential need.

No retailer may accept an order unless a Certificate of Essentiality has been presented.

Complete information and instructions are being sent direct to all sections of the trade. If not received by June 30th, applications should be made at the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office.
